COUNCIL ADOPTS CLASS CAP RULE STARTING MARCH

Classes Must Choose Colors At Once, Is Decision

The regulation governing the class caps will go into effect on March 15, according to the act of Student Council which made these regulations official last Monday night.

These rules require all students to wear their class caps between the hours of 3 p.m. and 9 p.m. on school days. The caps must also be worn at any function sponsored by the college administration or by Student Council in the Yeshiva building.

Classes are expected to meet before next week to decide on the colors of their caps which in all cases must be peaked. Any color combination except the Blue and White of Yeshiva College may be used, but no two classes may wear the same colors.

The colors chosen by the several classes will be retained by them throughout their stay at Yeshiva. Future Freshman classes will be required to choose their colors at the beginning of the year.

Enforcement of these regulations will be in the hands of the cap committee, consisting of the class presidents. Students found violating these rules three times will be penalized in such manner as the committee may see fit. Such penalties may take the form of fines or possibly, even of suspension.

EXPLAINS CHECK-UP

The purpose of the regulation requiring students of the Yeshiva to receive permission before accepting teaching jobs is to facilitate check-up on attendance, Norman B. Abrams announced last week. A complete record is necessary in order to excuse absences of those students who teach, he said.

Council Becomes Both N.S.F.A. And U.S.A. Conscious As Referenda Are Discussed

Seniors of the past few years who were subjected by former student councils to the unpleasant necessity of committing themselves on every subject under the sun in the inevitable pre-commencement questionnaire, may well chuckle now that the tables have been turned.

For ten long minutes Student Council sat Monday night in deliberation over the problems of the Mid-Atlantic Region of the N.S.F.A., the N.S.F.A. itself and of course—the U.S.A.

To begin with, the Councilors ratified the results of the student referendum which by the enormous majority of 7-3 (a grand total of 36 students voting) called for participation of the N.S.F.A. in the American Youth Congress. Apparently, the fact that various organizations of like-minded young men have joined was sufficient to dispell the bogey of A.S.U. participation.

The council also voiced its approval of amending the N.S.F.A. constitution to allow regional officers to be elected at the regional convention. The students of Yeshiva College seem to wish their representatives at N.S.F.A. to know for whom they are voting.

During the greater portion of this ten-minute period, the members were occupied with taking a stand for the benefit of N.S.F.A. on the problems of peace. With unanimous gusto, the Council threw itself behind the peace movement. Not content with mere optional neutrality legislation, it voted in favor of mandatory neutrality. As a mere matter of course, they voted for extension of reciprocal trade agreement, a trade at your own risk policy, a general policy of disarmament, and military defense sufficient for the protection of the continent.

The council also declared itself in favor of the anti-war action.

Term's First Assembly To Be Held Thursday

A special student assembly will be held in the synagogue on Thursday, February 18, at 4:15 p.m., Irving Ribner, president of Student Council, announced today.

Matters of pressing importance will be taken up, and Ribner urged the necessity of a unanimous attendance on the part of undergraduates. Student leaders will address the gathering on matters vital to students and to the activities of Student Council.

A report will be made on the various acts passed by Council during the past week. Unless sufficient students attend, this will probably be the last assembly of the semester, said Ribner.

LIBRARY RECEIVES GIFTS OF CASH AND VOLUMES

Faculty Men Continue To Donate Books

The first financial gift of the semester was made to the library this week, it was announced yesterday by Isaac Goldberg, Assistant Librarian. The gift was made by Mr. David Zuckerman of Newark, N. J., who gave $10, and promised his co-operation in the future.

Mr. Philip Kraus, of the Education Department, Dr. Aaron M. Margalith, of the Government Department, and Dr. Alexander Brody, of the History Department, presented books in the fields of Education, History, Economics, and Psychology.

The re-organized Library Staff consists of the following: Israel Diamond, Albert Hans, Menahem Jacobowitz, Albert L. Lewis, Robert Marmorstein, Eugene Michaly, Allan Mirvis, Louis Nulman, Norman Panker, Jack Rosenblum, Martin Rubinroth, Robert Schwartz, Meyer Shapiro, Harry Walker. It was announced that student members of the Staff are required to work a minimum of five hours a week in the Library.

ANNUAL PURIM PARTIES TO BE PRESENTED SOON

Both Yeshiva And T. I. Prepare Programs

The annual Purim Chagiga of Yeshiva are soon to be presented in their traditional manners, it was announced by student leaders of the Yeshiva and the Teachers Institute.

The Yeshiva will present its Chagiga Wednesday evening, February 24, in the Yeshiva Dining Hall. The program will consist of "a good meal, fine entertainment consisting of a play, and songs by an excellent cantor," Morris Werb, president of S.O.Y., announced.

The Teachers Institute will follow with its fiesta on Monday evening, March 1, according to Aaron Kaplan, president of Student Organization. The Institute will offer the same type of affair introduced last Chanukah and which proved to be highly successful. Haman-taschen, drinks, and other Purim delicacies will be served at a sweet table while the program, which "promises to be unprecedented both in character and entertainment value," is presented.

HARTSTEIN TO DISCUSS SCHOOL REQUIREMENTS WITH LOWER CLASSMEN

Registrar Will Meet Classes To Explain Administrative Questions

Mr. Hartstein, registrar, will meet the Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman classes on dates designated by the respective class officers.

He will discuss requirements for graduation and for concentration. He will also divulge the grading system and credits allowed in Hebrew courses. He expects to issue a memorandum on these points in the near future.

Mr. Hartstein announces that, if the marks "E" or "Incomplete" are not made up within the first four weeks of the next semester, the marks will automatically become "F." The same rule will hold for anyone who fails to register his excuses for excess absences during the same period.

Mr. Hartstein requests all students to watch the bulletin board outside his office for further notices.

DEBATERS ACTIVE

Yeshiva College Debating Team has extended challenges to various local college teams, and expects to have a very elaborate program for this season, according to Benjamin Kreitman '39, secretary of the society.

The second meeting of this group will be held on February 23, at 8 p. m.

GIVES CAMERA

The photography staff of the Commentator has received the gift of a photo camera from Louis Kohn '35, it was revealed today. The camera will be used in taking news pictures for publication in the Commentator.

COUNCIL APPROPRIATES $450 AT FIRST MEETING

HEALTH CLINICS HELD ON FRIDAY MORNINGS

Medical Department Now In New Quarters

Health clinics are being held every Friday morning at 10 a.m. with a special physician being present for all personal examinations, according to Julius Dorfman '39, head of the student medical staff. All persons wishing professional advice on health problems are urged to make use of the health clinics.

This system marks a new departure for the college medical department, after many years of endeavor. Four rooms have been allocated to the medical department on the second floor of the dormitory building, and are now in the process of renovation.

At present the student medical staff consists of Julius Dorfman '39, Arnold Miller '39, and Milton Elefant '39.

COMMITTEE TAKING ORDERS FOR SUITS

Measurements for the suits to be ready before Passover will be taken during the next few weeks by a committee consisting of Theodore Adams '36, chairman, Israel Klaven '37, A. Weissman '37, and S. Schechter.

All suits will be made to order by the "3 G's" clothing company and, although no definite price has yet been set, they will not cost more than $11.50.

The sale of suits was begun yesterday and will continue for the remainder of the week. Since there are only a limited number of these suits available, all students who are interested in this offer are requested to notify the committee before the end of the week.

Various Activities Share Moneys Granted At Initial Session

REPORTS HEARD

Class Caps To Become Mandatory Within One Month

Approximately $450 was appropriated by Student Council for the maintenance of the various student activities at the opening meeting of the spring semester last Monday night.

The major items of the council budget included an appropriation of $100 for the Commentator, $100 for the Masmid and $138.76 for athletics. A loan of $50 was given to the Commentator in addition to its regular appropriation, and a $25 loan made last semester to the Co-op store was extended for another month.

Consideration of the Dramatic Society's request for a loan of $100 was postponed, pending a decision of Council concerning means of raising additional money to meet further expenses.

Reports Required

Motions were passed requiring chairmen of committees to submit written reports to Council once every month and the presidents of chartered organizations to submit such reports every two months. A resolution was also passed to the effect that no one was empowered to delay anyone's payment of registration fees. This resolution was made necessary, according to its sponsors, by the slowness with which Council funds have been coming in, often causing a paralysis of student activities.

Acting upon the request of Lester Silverman '37, manager of the Co-op store, Student Council gave

That Delightful Paint Odor Is Here Again; Whole Building Getting A Nice New Coat

The building is being painted. Not just the first, second, or third floors, but the entire building, including the dorm-rooms of Klets Hall. In fact, Mr. Purvis already has a plan, too lengthy to be recorded here, whereby the dorms can be painted with the least disturbance to the residents. He stated that as long as the Yeshiva continues to supply him with its fifty-gallon installments of paint, he will retain his two men at the wage of two dollars a day.

To Miss Dinginess

Yeshiva's martyrs to the cause of science will miss the lulling dinginess of their rooms. The science lecture hall is to be painted, its lighting system remodeled, its roof repaired, each window (with glass in it) cleaned, and each pane beautified. Even your lab will take on a new coat.

It is hoped that the painters will have white-washed the walls before the students have blackened them. It is a race to between worker and pupil as to who can smear up the walls first. And, that assiduous pencil in the hand of a Yeshivannihilator cannot be outdone.

Classes Exiled

Nor is the cleaning without its humorous aspects. Lost battalions of students wander aimlessly through the corridors. Hagg-eyed professors are on the watch, ready to pounce on any awkward pupil they chance upon. The office, it seems, has one opinion as to where paint-odored collections should go: the instructors have another; and the Yeshivites (ragged individuals to the core) refuse to be bullied out of their third chance.

In conclusion we would say that those dorm occupants who equate their rooms with a paint can and who say "I'm not painting my room" are making a mistake. The paint is already in the can, and it is only a matter of time before it is used.

Entrance Requirements

The recent suspension of several students by the administration brings forcibly to our attention the laxity of the present admission regulations at Yeshiva. It is true that the standard of scholarship required from students entering Yeshiva College is probably as high as that of most colleges. Nevertheless the necessity for more stringent entrance qualifications is strongly felt.

In the first place, the double curriculum which the Yeshiva student must carry necessitates greater scholastic aptitude than do the ordinary college courses. Moreover, greater attention should be paid to scholastic attainments of candidates for entrance in the field of Jewish studies. Certain minimum requirements must be set, even for those who take the special Jewish studies courses.

Above all, it must be realized, as has been emphasized repeatedly, that Yeshiva College is not just an institution where certain courses must be taken. We are endeavoring to form a certain tradition and to attain a distinct outlook. Students lacking the proper Jewish background cannot be expected to share the spirit which is supposed to permeate Yeshiva. Before a student may enter Yeshiva, it must be ascertained that he does possess a proper background.

In order to pass adequately on these qualifications of applicants for admission, it is necessary that they be interviewed and judged on the basis of such an interview. At various times we have heard of plans for a faculty committee for this purpose, but nothing seems to have come of these plans. Now is the time for the formation of such a committee, especially since the probable decrease in the number of applications for entrance, due to the introduction of the five year plan, would offer strong temptation for accepting students who may be unfit.

Toward Cooperation

Earlier in the year, the Commentator suggested that closer cooperation be established among the student organizations of the several departments which comprise the institution so that problems affecting all students may be dealt with in common.

Unfortunately, at that time certain controversial issues which had arisen among the administrations of these organizations made efforts in this direction impossible. Now that the controversy of a few months ago has subsided, we wish to bring this matter up for consideration once more.

The fact that there are certain activities which can best be carried on by the joint efforts of the several student organizations has been recognized for some time. Thus, the employment bureaus of the S.O.Y. and of the college organizations have been jointly run during the past few years. The presidents of the college, Yeshiva and Teachers Institute student bodies have cooperated in representing the students with regard to N.Y.A. questions.

In fields where such cooperation has not been maintained there has been much duplication of effort as well as conflict of activities. Both the college and Yeshiva student organizations have at various times maintained dormitory committees. At present there exist two student dormitory committees neither of which seems to be very effective.

Another example of such conflict of activities is the competition of the various Yeshiva publications for ads. To the difficulties of procuring ads in general are added those which are due to the fact that all of these periodicals approach the same advertisers. Nothing, so far, has been done to help solve this problem.

Adequate cooperation of the student organizations would not only help mitigate such difficulties, but would also permit one organization to secure the aid of another in carrying out its own specific activities. There are many ways in which the student council of one department could help support functions of another.

Finally, closer contact would thus be established between students of the different departments and greater mutual understanding could be obtained. There exist unfortunately at present certain antagonisms between the different branches of the institutions. The removal of these antagonisms and a greater congeniality in the attitude of these departments towards one another would be a great step forward.

We believe that the leaders of the three student organizations should begin immediately to set up the machinery for such cooperation.

A Laudable Venture

The Hebrew theatre, for one reason or another, has never flourished in America. Whether due to the lack of an audience capable of appreciating dramatic works in Hebrew, or for lack of suitable exponents, the fact remains that Hebrew theatre groups have come and gone without making any appreciable dent on the Jewish play-goer's consciousness.

It is a distinct sign of encouragement, therefore, that the recent performance by the Hebrew Youth Federation's "Pargod" elicited such enthusiastic response from local Hebrew-speaking circles. The size of the audience and the eagerness with which the production was received were ample demonstration of the fact that a definite cultural need exists in this direction.

Of even greater moment is the youthfulness of the crowd that filled City College auditorium. The fact that the audience, of necessity a highly restricted group, was comprised predominantly of young men and women augurs well for the future of Hebrew culture in America, and is reassuring as to the likelihood of its growth.

"Pargod" showed courage in attempting the enterprise and well deserved its success. The spoken Hebrew word can be spread through no better medium than the stage, and every attempt at bringing living Hebrew before an audience is deserving of commendation and encouragement.

REVIEWS

By HAROLD POLSKOFF

After months of preparation, Sholom Aleichem's "Amcha" was presented by the Histadruth Hanoar Haivri's "Pargod" at the City College Auditorium last Saturday night. An enthusiastic audience came to see and hear the first Hebrew production to be presented in America for some time. To the people sitting in the auditorium, this production meant more than an ordinary play. As a matter of fact, most of them cared very little whether the play was well done or not. To them "Amcha" represented the establishment of an active Hebrew theatre wherein the Hebrew language would be used exclusively.

The fact that the work has been nicely presented by the group of young men and women who comprise the cast certainly should increase the enthusiasm of those who are interested in the various phases of modern Hebrew culture. This presentation was admirable in many respects.

First honors should go to the players, who exhibited uncommon skill in handling their parts. If, as was the case with some of the actors, great dramatic ability was lacking, it was compensated for by their enthusiasm and their apparent devotion to the play. This enthusiasm transcended the footlights and caught up the entire audience which burst out with repeated applause.

Especially good in their roles were David Telsner, Moshe Davis and Herman Stein. Sol Greenberg, Viola Sainer, Sylvia Cutler and G. Eisenberg were also very good.

As far as the direction is concerned—I'm sorry, but I still maintain that Ben Ari's very obvious lack of restraint, and his equally obvious trends towards over-emotionalizing are handicaps that cannot be easily overcome.

The story, as you probably know, deals with a poor tailor who wins 200,000 rubles in a lottery, whereupon he and his family become highly respected members of their community. Upon learning that he hasn't really won, his aristocratic friends and would-be-in-laws desert him, and Shimele Soroker, his family, and his apprentices go back to their humble trade.

The settings by Nat Lichtman and the dances by Corinne Chochem are adequate. The music was arranged by A. Ben Shemer (plus our own Mordecai L. Gabriel.)

MAYBE I'M WRONG

By ELIAZER GOLDMAN

These are trying days for the ideals of the "law-abiding" labor-hating (or will Judge Galoda convict me of tautology) citizens of the nation. During the past few weeks the flag has been insulted and the very home and family have been threatened by the "red" strikers in Flint. Even the legally and politically sanctified right of the possessors of capital to exploit the less fortunate members of the human species has been violated by the terroristic sit-downers of the A.W.U.

The fact that the governor of Michigan allowed himself to be intimidated by the claims of the lawless unionists and, above all, that the right of the national guard and the city vigilantes to shoot down the workers was tampered with, led us almost to believe that the Constitution had been abolished.

It sounded like a voice in the wilderness when a good citizen of Flint declared that were it not for the valuable machinery in the plants, they ought to have been swept by machine guns. Only he appeared to recognize that it was necessary to demonstrate once for all that the laws of Michigan were worth the lives of ten thousand strikers. It seemed as though our political leaders were being lured away from the hallowed traditions of property rights by a heretical dabbling in problems of human welfare.

We all but saw the horrible spectre of an industrial union arguing on equal footing with a great industrial combine. We seemed threatened by the anarchy which must inevitably result from a denial by the laborers of the absolute authority of the industrial and financial overlords over the conditions of labor. Worst of all was the dread of a real national labor organization whose head we dare mention only in whispers—John L. Lewis.

In the face of such conditions it was a most timely gesture for Governor Hoffman to assume militant leadership of the "law-abiding" forces of the country by threatening bloodshed should a sit-down strike occur in New Jersey.

At a moment when one of the strongest political bulwarks of privilege, the Supreme Court, threatens to collapse, the exponents of absolute property rights must resort to the ultimate basis of their authority, the machine gun and gas bomb.

In The Editor's Mail Box

To the Editor of The Commentator:
Dear Sir:

It is well known to the students of Yeshiva College that the Co-operative Store is an integral function of the institution. It is also well known that in its present quarters, congestion is one of the greatest handicaps to its serving the students properly.

In order to alleviate this situation, I presented a petition to members of Student Council to procure larger quarters for the Co-op. Instead of giving the matter deep and serious consideration, Council tabled the petition.

Mr. Abrams had informed me that he is willing to move the History Library of the T. A., provided that he is given the room now occupied by the Mr. The Mr. uses its quarters but once a month. This information was given to Council and yet it did not act on the matter.

I believe that it is in the right of the students to know the situation as it now stands.

ELIAZER M. SILVERMAN,
Manager of The Co-op Store.

ON THE SIDELINES

By ABE NOVICK

The love of gossip and the rabid interest in other people's business have been tremendously important factors in the success of the Yeshiva student. He is informed of everything worth knowing and is thus extremely valuable on sight-seeing trips for visitors.

On the right we have the main office, the home of mimeographing machines, letters, telephones, stenographers, operators, Messrs. Matz and Sar. Where there's a will there's a way, and where there's a girl there's ten Yeshiva students.

On the left we have the seat of high school admit slips containing N.B.A. himself without any cumbersome relatives. Directly north and upwards, to the third floor, the college office is situated. Here resides the college.

To the left, and to the right, to the North and to the South, to the East and to the West, are the classrooms; places where Yeshiva students acquire knowledge, good, bad or otherwise. This room is inhabited by philosophers where one can learn everything ranging from soup to nuts; mostly nuts. "Know thyself", said Socrates, "In the head", shouted Kant, but it is still "three aces" with Solanche, and any sort of a game you want.

Yeshiva has always been a hot-bed of rumors. Inform Itz Goodman of a good and secret "secret", and it will hit the fifth floor inside of five minutes, stop watch time, by courtesy of Aaron Kaplan and the basketball team. Start a fight in the gymnasium, and in room 426, Prero's beard will be tingling with excitement in no time flat. Tell a joke in the same room, and the school will read it in the Commentator that afternoon.

There is a rumor slowly making the rounds at the present moment of an attempt to bring together the varsity and the faculty on the basketball court. Wouldn't be a bad idea at that if it is true. Would just love to see a few of the professors prancing about the basketball court.

Doc Litman, for example, would simply apply his Aristotelian tactics of ambulation to the game at a faster tempo, and emerge a pretty good forward. Doc Abel with his height would be at advantage at center, and by means of his famed ventriloquy could succeed in involving the team in quite a controversy before the game is over. Doc Margalith would merely transfer his anecdotal ability and ping pong mastery to the scoring of baskets, putting his opponents

INSTITUTE STARS ARE TOO BRIGHT FOR OUR QUINTS

Frank Merriwell Climax Features Close Of Game

There were just five too many opponents on the floor when the Blue and White met up with the Hebrew Institute of University Heights All Stars last Sunday night at the former's home court. The result was a sound shellacking for our boys, which they close score, 34-30, fails to imply.

Although there can be no justification for the sloppy playing and failure of our boys to diagnose the strategy of the H.I.U.H. five, it was obvious that the man-to-man defense used by the H.I.U.H. five was ideally suited to the high-ceilinged court, whereas the zone defense used by Yeshiva was a handicap to them.

Sink Long Shots
The opposing five calmly curved long shots into the hoop from mid-floor with amazing accuracy. Yet the Yeshivaites failed to change their style of play and time after time had the ball taken away from them when they tried to maneuver it under the basket on the crowded little court.

H. I. U. H. Scores
Yeshiva broke the ice soon after the whistle with a long shot by Goldklang. One point more was added on a foul shot by Koslovsky before long shots from all parts of the court began to pour in the Yeshiva basket. When the storm cleared a bit, the H.I.U.H. five stood on the long end of a 12-3 score.

Up till now, the Yeshiva Five looked like a family of flat-footed quintuplets out for an aimless stroll, but beginning with the second half they began to abandon the zone defense and to concentrate on a man-to-man defense. Able thus to play more freely, Yeshiva developed a new fighting spirit and demonstrated that it could act like a basketball team, in a pinch. But Levine of the home team still managed to break away and to sink impossible shots too often to please the rooters for the Blue and White.

Yeshiva Improves
With the minutes waning in the final quarter, Yeshiva put in a rousing, almost hopeless, bid for victory. Playing at a torrid clip, they forced the ball down the field and succeeded in doing what they had failed to do all evening.

The final moments of the game had the spectators on edge with its Frank Merriwell climax. A few minutes more might have given a victory to our boys, but with the in stitches and sewing up the games.

Naturally, to assure good competition the faculty team would have to put in a little time for practice. Foul and lay up shots must be sunk, otherwise some sort of penalty would have to be forced upon the teaching vein of the college. Standing on one's nose for instance would be an interesting and entertaining punishment.

Ping Pong Tournament Opens This Evening

The scheduled Ping Pong Tournament will begin tonight at 8:30 sharp it was announced today by Jerry Gordon '38, manager. Only those students who handed in their names before last Monday to either Gordon or Aaron Kaplan '37 will be allowed to compete.

All registrants must appear this evening whether they play or not, to arrange for scheduled games. Failure to do so will mean elimination from the contest.

SOPHS SMEARED AS JUNIORS JEER

Referee Charney Shows Ability As Player

The Junior quintet, first half champions of the intramural league began the second half campaign by swamping the Sophomore five last night in the gymnasium. The upper classmen were entirely too powerful for the Sophs and rolled up the overwhelming score of 35-14.

The first quarter was rather rough with sloppy playing and handling of the ball. There was very little scoring during this part of the game, the quarter ending with the score 6-4.

Juniors go to Town
The Juniors really went to town in the second quarter. Charney and Rose scored on successive passes from Gordon, and were followed by Newman. The half ended with the score 11-6.

The second half was a repetition of the first, the Junior's passwork working men into scoring position time after time, and scoring at will. Charney and Newman were high scorers for the Junior with eight points each, while Gordon and Rose of the Juniors, and Kastenbaum and Pliskin of the Sophs scored six points apiece.

SEMINARY LOSES TO YESHIVA BOYS BY CLOSE SCORE

Quints Show True Form In Second Half Of Game

Yeshiva College defeated the Jewish Theological Seminary five in a close game played on the home court last night. The Quinhoplets, abandoning their usual zone defense due to the loss of two of their stars, Capt. Max Levy and Abe Avrick, both injured in the last game, won by the score of 32-30.

The first half showed few signs of action, the Seminary team playing cautiously and Yeshiva showing poor form. Fox, a former George Washington U. basketball star, led the visitors in a scoring spree, using a freak backhand dribble.

The Seminary gradually increased its pace and continued to score. Yeshiva, passing poorly and moving slowly, managed to keep the score close, nevertheless. The score at the half was tie, Yeshiva 14, Seminary 14.

Yeshiva played an improved game in the second half and showed a great deal of fight. Goldklang and Koslovsky sank in baskets to give the Blue a slight lead. Mager, playing well, and Rubinroth, new recruit to the team, helped add to the score. Gordon, former Yeshiva varsity man, and Fox led the Seminary in keeping its end of the score close until the final exciting moments of the game. The final score was Yeshiva 32, Seminary 30.

FROM THE STICKS

Duty of The Week
There should be no monotony in studying your botany; It helps to spur and train the brain Unless you haven't got any.

So They Say:

When writing a newspaper lead, $500 is better news than any college president.

One has to read all these popular books like "Gone With the Wind" in order not to appear stupid, but it doesn't do any good.

It was during the time of the play "Getting Gertie's Garter," but one may suppose that most of you weren't around when they were doing that sort of thing... No, darn it! And now it's too late—they roll them.

Statistics show that out of seven freshmen in the average American college two graduate. Judging from the number of familiar faces that are missing around the campus the past few days, Yeshiva is out to set a new low. Or are the students to blame?

A gentleman by the name of Dr. Visetally calculates that two hundred thousand words have been recently added to our national vocabulary in the last few years. He must have been around during the recent finals.

At Case Tech, Bob Wagner has the whole metallurgy department scratching like a bunch of monkeys. Mr. Wagner seems to be all puffed up and covered with hives. The power of suggestion is just too much for the boys.

A University Professor from Australia traveled 12,000 miles to attend the empire universities' congress at London, only to find that he was a year ahead of time. The misunderstanding was caused by a typist's error. Stenographers in the main office better take heed or else trips to Florida may be made months before schedule.

Ohio's Governor Martin L. Davey was not called upon to give the shirt off his back, but he was requested to give up a pair of shorts. As an initiation stunt, a student at Ohio State University was ordered to obtain an autographed pair of the governor's shorts. After finding out the governor's size, he bought a pair, called at the executive's office and proposed a swap. With the governor consenting, our student soon retired with the autographed shorts.

Ten undergraduate students working under Professor Tilden at the University of Minnesota, have the trying task of finding names for 100,000 plants never previously classified. With Yeshiva biologists trained in the basket classification theory, they would find it an easy task.

Donald A. Smalley instructor of English at Indiana University, thinks that the poetry of John Donne and Robert Browning presents the effect of the alarm clock and not of the harp or of "Wagner rather than Mozart."

Since it's the right time of the school year to tell stories about freshmen, Ben Schmoeker of the University of Minnesota relates this one:

"Not long ago a freshman stepped me and said, 'Can you tell me in what building the library is?' But what was the damn when we think of Yeshiva?"
