Thousands Pay Last Tribute To Rabbi Moses Soloveitchik

Book Section To Honor Dr. Revel Planned

A resolution to establish a Memorial Reference Collection as part of the library facilities, the funds for which would be obtained by contribution from each student, was carried unanimously by Student Council. Although books to be purchased for this section will honor deceased members of the faculty, the sum of student subscriptions will be used exclusively for the purchase of books in honor of the late Dr. Rabbi Bernard Revel, founder and first president of the school.

All books purchased by student contributions will be of the general reference type and will be marked as presented by the Students' Organization of Yeshiva College. These books are expected to serve as a nucleus for a more expanded reference section.

It was further revealed that a concerted drive is under way to solicit funds for this section from the Alumni Association of Yeshiva College. To facilitate the collection of these funds, a committee consisting of Ephraim F. Mandelcorn '41, chairman, Abraham Zuroff '41, and Joseph Appelbaum '44 was appointed and charged with the appointment of sub-committee from each class to work in conjunction with the official committee for a rapid collection of monies.

At the same meeting, a motion to grant the Deutscher Verein a charter was defeated, the reason given being that it is not an activity in which all students can equally participate.

Hasiuk Adopts Eight Babies

By H. E. C. K.

"Will this waiting never cease? The end must be near. This constant watching and pacing, pacing and thinking, thinking and worrying are driving me mad. Won't someone say something to me—just one word, that's all, just one? Maybe I'll look for myself. I'm the father or the uncle or something, and I have a right to see how she's taking it. I'll just take one peek." And with these words of anxiety, Sol Hasiuk, '41's claim to Biology fame heaved a sigh of anticipation and darted into the maternity ward of the fourth floor—the Bio Lab.

The following morning found Hasiuk in said ward gazing with paternal benevolence and bleary eyes upon the lovable bodies of eight squirming rats—known to the more intellectual as members of the species Albinus Rattus Fuzziuosus.

Sol's first concern was not with his own welfare—not with the fact that he had neither slept nor tasted food for eleven hours. This new family was his prime interest. For now in addition to his tape-worm, he had eight more mouths to feed. The duty of fatherhood lay heavily upon him. But neve one to fall beneath the burden of necessity, our newly-made sire hastily hopped, skipped, and slid into the waiting arms of Brenner's bus boy. Out of this quick huddle a meal fit for a mouse was concocted, consisting of two grams of cheese, a dram of saphenes and fourteen molecules of distilled peraphera. Sol reentered the room of confinement, and, tasting each morsel beforehand, testing for unknowns, he fed his progeny hefty portions by means of an eyedropper and a strainer. And then his wornframe gave way to exhaustion he sank back slowly on the bio table. The rats, suddenly aware of their benefactor's despondency and oblivious to their food toddled to the screen of their cage and, peering with saddened countenances upon their Sol, gave way to squeakful grief. But not for long, for the kind, motherly hands of a new entrant into the room—those of Miss Gribetz—soothed their saddened plight with alleviating condolences.

Hasiuk, steeped in a semi-coma, realized that his own had ceased to whimper and, peering with red-rimmed eyes into the calm, understanding orbs of this new healer, he pointed to the mice and, with the accompaniment fervent flurry of heroic gestures, proudly shouted, "They may be white they may be fuzzy; but their mine—all mine."

All candidates for graduation will be photographed on February 17, while group pictures will be taken on the school grounds on February 20.

The appointment of Samuel Sobel '41, Aaron Seidman '41, and Howard Singer '43 as assistant editors was revealed by Heller together with those of Seymour Krutman '44 and Martin Zion '42 as literary editors. Other appointments include Gabriel Schonfeld '41, sports editor, Alfred Wiesel '42, art editor, and David (Continued on Page 4)

Choose Head For Dorm To Replace Simon

Replacing Mr. and Mrs. I. Simon, Maurice S. Plotnick, of London, England, will assume his new duties as dormitory supervisor this coming week, it was announced by Mrs. Blanche Schlang and Mrs. M. Courland of the Women's Organization. While expressing satisfaction with the work done by the Simons "within the limit of their ability", Mrs. Courland stated that it was deemed advisable to turn the position over to a position with a "more cultured background" and wider experience.

The new supervisor is an honor graduate of Cambridge University, where he majored in mathematics. He is also the recipient of a degree from London University, and was a student at the Sorbonne in Paris for some time. His pedagogical experience was obtained in his teaching of sciences, mathematics and modern languages in England, Germany and Iraq. He has traveled extensively around the world, especially in Europe and the Near East, and pursued his Jewish studies at the Yeshiva Etz Chaim in London.

Library To Sell Music Recordings

A special service soon to be offered by the library will procure for accredited students phonograph records of classical music at a 15% discount of their list price, Mr. Isaac Goldberg '33, acting librarian, announced, his service will involve no cost for the student other than the reduced price plus the costs of transportation.

This privilege will be granted only to those students presenting at the time of reservation the official student cards which were distributed from the bursar's office at registration for the semester.

Students desiring to borrow books from the library will also be required to present these cards to the librarian in charge, Mr. Goldberg stated.

Hyman Laks '41 has been appointed editor of the Bookend, mouthpiece of the library. The Bookend, the first edition of which appeared in January, will be issued monthly in mimeographed form. The publication will try to promote the use of the library facilities for the benefit of the student body by furnishing information concerning all new books added to its shelves.

Recent donors of books to the library are Humphrey C. Bousfeld, chief of the Readers' Division of the New York University library, through whom the college has obtained approximately 100 volumes. These books are mostly in the field of education. He also contributed twenty publications of the Institute of French Studies.

Noted Sage Was Senior Rosh Yeshiva Here For 11 Years

By JACOB WALKER

A mass gathering of American Jewry estimated at over 4,000 assembled in the Nathan Lampport Auditorium last Sunday to pay their final respects to the late Rabbi Moses Soloveitchik. The hall was packed to capacity by 11 a. m. and many hundreds of mourners braved the cold to witness the procession to and from the Yeshiva building.

Rabbi Soloveitchik, senior Rosh Hayeshiva, passed away on Friday, January 31, at 10 a. m. at Mount Sinai Hospital. Seriously ill for only a short time, it was not known until Thursday night that his condition was critical. The efforts of specialists and physicians of the hospital were News of his death soon spread throughout the country and on the following Sunday morning distinguished leaders of communal and academic life arrived in the city.

The pallbearers, students of the deceased, carried the coffin from his home to the synagogue which he frequented. The body was then borne to the Yeshiva to be placed in the room where he had taught. For the duration of the service it was laid at the foot of the speaker's platform.

The first speaker, Rabbi M. Rosen, representing the Agudath Horabonum, likened the great sage to the "high priest of Israel, who, in former days, atoned for the sins of the nation as a whole". Rabbi I. Dushowitz, of the Rabbinical Organization of Greater New York, stated, in a very dramatic speech, that the "Yeshiva students are now left as orphans with both their father and mother, Dr. Revel and Rabbi Soloveitchik, gone".

Other speakers included Rabbi A. I. Zalmanovitz, who represented the various faculties of Yeshiva; Rabbi M. Feinstein, Rosh Hayeshiva of Yeshivath Tifereth Jerusalem; Rabbi A. Dachowitz of Brooklyn; Rabbi Samuel K. Mirsky representing the Teachers' Institute, and Rabbi Samuel Pardes of Chicago.

By far the most touching words of the afternoon came from the lips of Rabbi Soloveitchik's oldest son, Rabbi Dr. Joseph B. Soloveitchik, chief rabbi of Boston. He portrayed to the weeping audience how he and his father had continually exchanged profound and intricate matters of Jewish law.

Cantor Schechter rendered the concluding prayer, after which the earthly remains of the deceased were (Continued on Page 3) of no avail and on Friday morning the heart of the sixty-two year old gaon ceased functioning.

Ruling Board Formed

A special committee of the Board of Directors to deal with problems resulting from the demise of President Revel was announced recently by Mr. Samuel Levy, chairman of the Board, who will head the group. Other members are Messrs. Herman Gottesman, Abraham Mazer, Judge Geller, Samuel Hausman, Mendel S. Goldstein, Joseph H. Lookstein Samuel Melitz, and Rabbis Herbert and Jeo Jung.

Commenting on another administrative innovation, the Inter-Faculty Committee, which was announced a few weeks ago, Mr. Levy remarked: "The formation of this body is a novel attempt at effecting a greater measure of unity of purpose in the academic efforts of the different branches of Yeshiva College. A constant exchange of ideas between the representatives of the schools will establish more effective contact leading to wider expression of the fundamental policies and ideals of this institution, namely, those of a comprehensive and harmonious religion and academic education.

In order to solve another difficulty raised by the passing away of two of the Talmudic scholars who were members of the three man semicha board, Dr. Revel and Rabbi Soloveitchik, a temporary board consisting of Dr. Joseph B. Soloveitchik, Rabbis Bernard L. Levinthal and Benjamin Aaronowitz, was formed.

Dean Of Manhattan Talks To Ed. Class

Brother Agatho, Dean of Manhattan College and a member of the Christian Brothers, addressed the Education 11A class on the philosophy and function of his Order on Tuesday, Jan. 14, by invitation of Mr. J. I. Hartstein, instructor in education.

The lecturer addressed the class on St. Jean Baptiste De La Salle, founder of the "Brothers of the Christian Schools," and his contributions to education. Describing De La Salle as a member of the lower aristocracy in France who established the first school where free elementary instruction was given to poor children. The speaker characterized the French pioneer in education as a "Kind and benevolent person interested in the welfare of the poor." Since its inception, the Order has widened its scope to include secondary and higher education.

A Star Has Fallen

We were just beginning to regain our senses from the stunning shock following the demise of the late Dr. Bernard Revel, of sainted memory, when another stupefying jolt jarred us upon the news of the death of Rabbi Moses Soloveitchik.

For Rabbi Soloveitchik—or as all Jewry was wont to call him, Rob Moshe—represented the ideal goal in Jewish learning and sanctity as Yeshiva strives to implant them in its students. Himself the scion of a long standing aristocracy of brilliant scholarship and superlative spirituality, he was the living incarnation of the long chain of Jewish tradition and of the Jewish spirit.

The many thousands who came to pay their final tribute to him by shedding a tear and recounting his great spiritual stature gave ample evidence of the high esteem in which all factions and groups in the Jewish community honored and loved him. He was the smoldering fire of zeal and devotion to Torah. He bore a love unsurpassed for all that constituted the greatness and glory of our tradition.

While a recognized leader of Polish Jewry he had the vision to see the fertile field here in which to sow and germinate the spirit of his illustrious forbears. Torah was his consuming love and the Talmud and Rambam the essence of life. To these he pledged himself, body and soul and in these he found his life's work.

With his mighty stature of intellect and saintliness he couple a simple love of his fellowman. His ways with his students, of whom there were thousands, was one of fatherly solicitude and tenderness, matched only by the request and consideration of his colleagues. To world Jewry he was the epitome of scholarly sanctity, while the Yeshiva student saw in him an inspiring teacher and loving father.

Especially in these dark days for Jewry, when the glow of spirit and knowledge is most needed, has it sustained a major catastrophe. A guiding star has fallen in Israel. Tehi Nafsho Tzruroh Bitzror Hachayyim.

New Dorm Supervisor

A new change is in store for the dormitory which, it is to be hoped, will prove a real boon to all concerned. With the appointment of Mr. Plotnick as new supervisor, our expectations rise for a real life in the dorm; such as we have never previously enjoyed.

The action is indeed none too early. That something was to be done has long been recognized. As a matter of justice, however, we cannot but condemn the action of those who, without consideration, turned out of its home the family of the former occupant of the supervisor's post. Suddenly dismissing them with but a few days' notice is certainly an irresponsible and unwarranted injustice.

To the new appointee the Commentator and student organization bid welcome. There has long been a need for a supervisor who would, by virtue of training and temperament, have a sympathetic understanding of the social problem facing the dorm resident. Making a home—and the dorm is a student home—involves more than merely furnishing sleeping quarters. What must lie beneath this student home is a feeling of congeniality, of a sympathetic, understanding spirit which will tie more closely together all the members of the home.

Mr. Plotnick, it appears, is ideally equipped for the task at hand and we have much confidence in his success.

MEET THE SENIORS

Ackerman, Jack: Between avid perusal of novels, occasional visits to the Talmud classes, incessant warfare with his science teachers, and playing Sancho Pancho to Chanover's Don Quixote—official title, Student Council Secretary, Jack finds time to sleep two or three hours a night. Although he is partial to New Jersey womanhood, and despite the fact that he has been known to call many a chip off the old (Bensonhurst) block, his true passion is the amocba, whose life and loves will occupy his attention in graduate work.

Adler, Joseph: Only Bensonhurst could have produced Joe, and only Joe can produce the lengthy dissertations which amuse his classmates and bemuse his instructor, but enlighten no one. Even women and children have not been immune to his gas attacks, the former as ladies organization audiences and the latter as campers over whom he has resigned for a few summers. In trend with the times, Joe dispatches countless communiques to the Commentator on the various projected accomplishments of one, J. Adler. He takes special interest in Dr. Savitsky — we wouldn't know if it's vice versa.

Azner, J. Leonard: No shrinking violet is J. Leonard, except in regard to his name, which has lost a "Shansky" in the shuffle. Ordained or not, Azner, to all his own intents and purposes, is already a rabbi—witness his incoming mail and the Philly phone book. He evidently liked the view in the waiting room of the registrar's former office, but has quit dorming there since it moved upstairs. A veteran orator, the Illui of Az made another step toward the rabbinate when he began carrying a Chulin. (One of these days he's going to learn it.)

Beer, Samuel: On the Heights of New York's Island stand the height of Sam Beer. One of the few Reus around the school, and he can't deny it. But his heart is as big as his stature. He is another one of the suffering scientists, and describes his experiments in detail every Saturday evening. His kindness and his height both would have hampered him if he had wanted to sleep in Sadom and Gommorah.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor of the Commentator:
Dear Sir:

Last year, an announcement was made in the Commencement program that the Jane Fischel prize for 1940 would be awarded in the fall of 1940. To date, no mention has been made of the winner of the prize; yet notices have already appeared about the 1941 contest.

It is unfair to those who have worked so hard in preparing an essay last year to be completely forgotten, because of the neglect or carelessness of those in charge. It is no wonder that the students are discouraged from entering these contests. I have already approached those whom I thought responsible, and received no satisfactory answer.

I request that some action be taken, and that the winner of the prize for 1940 be announced.

Yours truly,
MEYER HELLER,
A contestant.

Who's Who In The Faculty

By CHARLES KATZ

Yeshiva has finally found an instructor on whom students cannot pull any pranks in any language except pig-latin. For the new professor, Dr. Rubenstein, lectures in seven languages, including German, French and Hebrew which, (besides Yiddish and broken-English) are the most fluently spoken languages in Yeshiva.

Dr. Rubenstein is a native of Vilna, having been born into the household of the Chief Rabbi of that city. In his widespread travels he has visited more countries than are at present German-occupied.

While voyaging he was surprised many a time by things that he heard or saw, but the greatest surprise was the one on coming to America where he found that there was such an institution as Yeshiva—"the only college of liberal arts and sciences under Jewish auspices in the world." Among Yeshiva students, he said, he has found men who could make the grade in the scientific world if only the necessary facilities were available. He expressed his hopes, however, that these would be available in the near future. He also urged that Yeshiva students would engage in the study of science as found in the Talmud. Dr. Rubenstein, himself, has done some work in this field, having made a study of medicine in the Talmud and in Maimonides.

Dr. Rubenstein received his education in Vienna and in Paris, and it was in the latter city that he received his M.D. degree. He also taught at the University of Paris, and, strange as it may seem to Yeshiva students who know him as a fine instructor of Bacteriology, it was Physiology that he taught. And it is in the field of Physiology that he has done most of his work, having had published about forty articles on the subject in the "Proceedings of the International Congress of Science" and being at present engaged in research work on tissue cultures concerned with regeneration of cells en vivo and en ritro.

Collegiana

The Poor Editor
(From the Toreador, Texas Technological college.)

Lo, the poor editor! By day he slaveth, and by night his candles burn. And with 25 new reporters, most of whom couldn't write two inches on the Chicago fire, the editor himself is beginning to burn already!

"A campfire will be carried out with games and singing," wrote one of the most brilliant of the embryo Hearsts, and the copy reader is still confined to the hospital with nervous heebie-jeebies.

"Two love seats have been purchased from the dormitories. A clothing class will cover them," reads another and members of that clothing class were madder than 16 kinds of hades at the implication. "Swedish" costumes and games figured three times in one story, as Webster was relegated to the trash basket, and the author began her own particular style of spelling.

"Professor (censored) has just come back from (censored) where he stayed this summer. He was there on vacation. He said that he had a very good time. He will start to work on his masters degree next summer." This, readers, is NEWS!

Typical of the dashing style in which many stories are begun, is this gem-written at the cost of hours of real work: "Casa Linda elected officers the past week. Casa Linda is the only cooperative girls house on the campus." Of course we can hope that the girls in the house are cooperative. But what Dean Doak is going to say about publishing such information is another thing.

And so, kind friend, if perchance a weary, sad-faced man, with gentle eyes, should be found in a pool of his own blood in front of The Toreador office—you will know that the editor has finally given up the struggle, laid down his weary head, and passed into the quiet and peace beyond—where reporters do not exist, and where there is no such thing as "Swedish" monsters or "cooperative girls."

ON THE SIDELINES

Yeshiva's annual pilgrimage to the home of the Dodgers and Murder Inc., will take place next Wednesday, February 12, when the Brooklyn College Kingsmen play host to our own Quin'hooplets. The Kingsmen have been an "on and off" team this season, taking the measure of such teams as St. John's and Fordham, and dropping a one point decision to N.Y.U.

On a good night Brooklyn is generally conceded to be able to give any team in the country a run for its money—for when they're hot they sizzle!

The Quints have been pointing to this game all season—and upsets have been in order since 1917 David bounced a boulder off Goliath's bean.

Don't buck the crowd. Join it, and you'll see the game you'll be telling your grandchildren about.

For the past couple of years, John Marshall, one of New Jersey's leading basketball teams, has been booking Yeshiva as a "breather." And in the past, Yeshiva has lived up to Marshall's expectations. A thirty point loss was considered a moral victory.

This year it was a different story however. Only seven members of the squad could make the trip to Jersey. Hesh Esterson was in bed with the grippe. The boys took the court and fought the highly favored Marshall five, shot for shot, basket for basket. The half ended with our boys but four points behind.

Fatigue took its toll during the second half. Yeshiva had no replacements, and the same men had to go through the whole game. Marshall won, but not until the Quints had put the fear of Yeshiva in 'em.

A rematch was arranged by Milton Kramer, out athletic manager, to be held at the Bronx Y on Saturday evening, March 8. The game promises to be a humdinger. A lavish program of entertainment will be presented after the game, and an enjoyable evening is assured to all.

Proceeds of the game will go towards the improvement of recreational and medical facilities at Yeshiva.

All alumni and friends of Yeshiva are being invited to attend this gala affair and to help this worthy cause.

Brooklyn, John Marshall Last Major Encounters

Opposing Brooklyn College on Wednesday, February 12, the Quin'hooplets will be meeting the first of their two final main opponents. The team will face John Marshall on March 8 as the second and last of its important adversaries.

Yeshiva's game with Brooklyn College, the initial meeting of the two schools, was originally scheduled for Saturday night; but, due to an unforeseen event, the contest was postponed until tomorrow evening. This game, to be contested at Brooklyn's gymnasium at 8:30 p.m., will be followed by excellent entertainment. A Yeshiva basketball season ticket will enable its holder to purchase admittance into the gym for the price of 25 cents. General admission will be 50 cents.

Seeking to avenge a defeat suffered at the hands of the strong John Marshall outfit earlier in the season, the Blue and White boys will attempt to vanquish that same squad when they meet in a return contest on the floor of the Bronx Y.M.H.A. gym. The date of this event will be Saturday night, March 8, under the sponsorship of the Athletic Association and the health education department of Yeshiva, the game will employ its proceeds in the betterment of recreation and health facilities at the college.

A preliminary game between the Talmudical Academy and the Brooklyn Academy will take place at 7:30 p.m. of the same evening. Following the contests will be an extensive program of entertainment including acrobatics, magic and ventriloquism. General admission 50 cents, with a season pass, 40 cents.

Tennis Varsity Starts Practice

Tryouts for positions on the tennis will be held next Tuesday in the gymnasium, it was announced by the co-captains, Joseph Peyser '43 and Al Salkowitz '43. With only three regulars of last year's squad remaining, there are several places open for prospective players, it was further revealed.

With Peyser, Salkowitz and Murray Leitner '43, leading a newly organized team, a full schedule of contests will be played during the spring season. In addition to games played at the opponents' courts, several home games will be scheduled. This will enable the student body to see the team in action.

Arrangements for contests are now being made with Jersey State Teachers' College, Webb Institute, Bergen College and all Metropolitan schools.

"A wealth of freshman material, coupled with the return to action of last year's veterans, insures the Yeshiva netmen their most successful season to date," Peyser predicted.

Frosh Trounce Sophomores, 31-8

The Freshman team, displaying the precision and cooperation that brought them the intramural crown last term, continued their unmarred record at the expense of the sophomores last night. Limiting their opponents to a single tally by Peyser in the first half, the frosh, led by Kaplan, scored 18 points.

The second half promised to be a different story when, in a few seconds, Salkowitz had dropped two markers for the revived sophs. But the freshmen failed to falter, and playing a game of marksmanship and interception, gained an easy victory of 39 to 8.

Kaplan with 12 points and Hartstein and Lehrman with 10 each led the attack for the frosh.

Quints Triumph Over Wash. Square

Displaying the same efficient defense as in their previous encounters, the Quints coasted to an easy 36-25 victory over N.Y.U. Washington Square, last Wednesday night on their home court.

The Yeshivaites led by the high scoring Jaret and Steinberg who tallied 17 and 12 points respectively, took the lead dearly in the first frame, and were never seriously threatened.

Using a fast break, the home boys dropped tally after tally almost at will in the first half, at the same time limiting their opponents to two lay-ups totaling four points.

Coming back for the second half 14 points in the lead, the Quints were outscored 21 to 18 in the final two frames, but took the encounter 36-25.

Wood was high scorer for N.Y.U. with 4 tallies and 1 foul, making a 9 point total.

Levin To Help Edit Penn. Law Review

Topping the achievements of his career to date, A. Leo Levin '39, now in his second year at the University of Pennsylvania Law School, has been appointed managing editor of the University Law Review.

While yet in his undergraduate years at Yeshiva, Levin was outstanding in student activities, being president of Student Council in his Senior year, and editor of the Commentator as a junior. In his Freshman year he was the recipient of the Feuerstein Award For Journalism. Last year he was the ranking member of his Freshman class at Penn, and was presented with the only medal awarded to a Freshman law student.

His U. S. Defense Program has affected Yeshiva alumni by claiming Rabbi Norman Siegel '34 as a chaplain with the rank of a first lieutenant in the U. S. Army. Rabbi Siegel is now stationed at Camp Upton, L. I.

The alumni on the home front are also active in publishing a journal in connection with the Charter Day celebration to be held on Sunday, March 30. Their quota has been set at $2,500, and all alumni are urged to cooperate in making this journal a success.

The last number of the Alumni News Letter, issued on January 17, contained an array of interesting news on the whereabouts and activities of alumni. Jerry Kestenbaum '39, is now at Peoria, Ill., while Irving Ehrenthal '39, is studying biochemistry at the Graduate School of the University of Minnesota.

On the domestic front, our alumni are also active. Recently married were Abe Gutterman '32, and D. Telgman '35, and on Feb. 9, Rabbi Fred Kolatch '37 will wed Miss Mollie Nissenfeld. A hearty Mazel Tov also to Rev. Sam Adelman '38, who is now the proud father of a baby girl.

removed from the building to be taken to their final resting place.

A descendant of a family that gained international reputation as heads of the Volozhin Yeshiva, Rabbi Soloveitchik came to America at the request of Yeshiva leaders, to assume the position of Rosh Hayeshiva left vacant by the death of Rabbi Polatchek in 1929.

His grandfather was the famous Reb Yoshe Ber and his father the renowned Reb Chaim Brisker. While still young, Rabbi Soloveitchik was noted for his wide range of knowledge and his deep, penetrating understanding of the complex "sugyoth" of the Talmud.

He is survived by two married daughters and three sons, Rabbi Joseph Beer, Aaron, of the Class of '40, and Samuel Soloveitchik, a chemical engineer now doing research work at Ohio State University.

Miller '42, photography editor. Assisting Jerome Rosenblum '41, business manager, are Jack Cooperband '41, Samuel Beer '41, Isidore Ribner '43, and Arthur Cohen '44.

As in former years the Masmid is offering an attractive commission for all "ads" brought in by non-staff members.

In an effort to avoid any confusion or misunderstanding as to eligibility and exact time of photographs, complete information concerning requirements will be posted on the Masmid bulletin board. These notices will list the groups and individuals eligible for sittings and also the hours, places and prices of these pictures.

Before the names of club members will be posted on the bulletin board, presidents of all club chartered by the Student Council are requested to see Jerome Rosenblum on or before, February 10.

At Florida State college, Dr. Anna Forbes Liddell, head of the department of philosophy and religion, declares that an increase in registrations for Bible courses reflects upset world conditions.

Looking for "basic values to which they can hold," college students over the entire country have evidenced increased interest in Bible courses for the last year or more, she says.
