Financial Crisis Hits University; Surplus Monies Reported

A financial crisis has hit Yeshiva University. There seems to be a noted surplus of monies. Try as they may, the University can find no money to spend. It is reported that the University has a surplus of money.

But, alas, the University remains four million dollars in debt with surplus funds.

This problem of extra money seems to be a devastating one not only for Yeshiva University, but for all institutions of higher learning, particularly in recent months. Yeshiva University has joined the national endeavor to spend Money Fast. SMF groups have been formed in all parts of the nation, and have come to encompass the oldest and largest institutions under any and all auspices.

The SMF leaders welcome any suggestions from our readership as to new and more effective ways to alleviate the critical problem of the overabundance of money.

George McBundy Applies For Financial Aid; "Fundy Bundy" Earns Scholarship

After a two-year period of deliberation and consideration, George McBundy's financial aid application to Yeshiva University was finally reviewed and acted upon. It was decided that McBundy's financial status and religious conviction warrant his receipt of the McBundy Funds. A native of Albany, George, affectionately called "Fundy Bundy" by his associates, was recently observed attending non-sectarian Synagogue services, it was noted by an on-the-scene OBSERVANT reporter.

McBundy was granted the scholarship and, upon admission, was assigned to room in the Morgue with Mr. Jeffrey Sliver.

President Visits China Ping-Pong Play Proposed

Special to the OBSERVANT

A special on-the-spot OBSERVANT reporter noted with shocked interest that our president, Sister Leah, was seen leaving the country during intercession. Although sky marshals at the Orange Terminal at El Al refused to specify the exact destiny of the flight, it is believed that the President was on her way to visit China on a peace-making trip. This is the first journey of its kind ever made by a President of Stern College Student Council.

Rumor has it that the purpose of the trip was to establish an intramural ping-pong game between China and Stern. Such a friendly competition would enable Stern to open up a sister school in China to properly educate China dolls in the arts of Kosher Chinese cooking. At the airport, Chinese Checkers were seen inspecting Sister Leah's luggage, and the rackets found therein indicated the possibility of an imminent ping-pong game.

When questioned about the potential of a successful Stern gathering the type of enrollment necessary to establish the oldest and largest Chinese ping-pong team under Jewish auspices, an unidentified Chinaman, Sam-Wang Hartstein, claimed "Sure!" Because these words were so emphatically expressed by our public relations man in China, OBSERVANT experts feel that a Chinese Stern is on its way into existence. OBSERVANT detectives were curious as to Albany's reaction to a Chinese school being established under Stern auspices. No comment is yet forthcoming. However, there is talk of a possible men's division of Stern College, probably to be located in Taiwan and to be called Formosa University. The chances of Formosa Tech having a ping-pong team is very slim, since it is expected that the men's division will concentrate on Torah scholarship and such important Halachic questions as the direction in which to face at the recital of the Shemona Esrei in Taiwan, and the possible changing of the words of Juda Halevi's poem to "My Heart is in the West."

More details should soon be disclosed should our President return from her fact-finding mission. (She remains temporarily out of border.) Meanwhile, nets have been placed across the tables in the New Cafeteria and Parker has gone Chinese.

Historic Error Disclosed Estern Tells It As It Really Happened

An incredible error was recently revealed upon investigation of the Shushan county records. It seems that a great Persian ruler, Queen Vashti, fell in love with a poor peasant footman named Achashvayrosh, and decided to marry him.

For a time, it seemed that Achashvayrosh was the favorite of Vashti's harem. Sensing his "power" as the Queen's favorite, young Achashvayrosh was bold enough to ask the Queen whether he could leave the palace one night to go to a party with a few friends. Infuriated by this betrayal, Queen Vashti had Achashvayrosh beheaded at once.

Yes, readers, believe it or not, this is what actually happened. It seems that historically, the unfortunate error which completely distorted and reversed the tale was made by an ancient county clerk of the town of Shushan, Mr. M. Chauvanist. Mr. Chauvanist, for reasons unknown to us, could not bring himself to record the actual facts of the life of the liberated Queen Vashti.

The true story was finally told by the only legitimate heir to Queen Vashti's throne, the presently ruling Princess Estern. Estern not only rules in her mother's liberated tradition, but has even become the authoress of an extensive Megillah explaining her mother's liberated tale and her father's (Achashvayrosh) tragedy (Poor Him).

Plans are presently being made for the founding of an institution somewhere in Midtown Manhattan for the training of liberated princesses to be named after Princess Estern.

I have recently tasted a rare vegetable which I would like to introduce to the taste buds of your Readers 'n Eaters. This uncommon vegetable is called the "common 'tater." The 'tater can be consumed by the public in many and varied forms. It may be mashed, fried, boiled, scalloped, or baked, but it cannot be swallowed in the raw or taken at face value. The common 'tater must be peeled of its impure exterior before it can be processed or refined into any of the above forms. To date, no one has succeeded in the total purification of the processing of the common 'tater, but progress is currently being made.

When mashed, the 'tater seems to complain of buttered-down saturation. However, it can be digested without harm if seasoned well.

The fried common 'tater is often over-oiled to the point where it is in bad taste. Great care must be taken to avoid the problem of the greasy spoon upon the consumption of the fried 'tater.

Furthermore, the boiled common 'tater is frequently overdone. When it's hot it's hot, and when it's not, it's not. The boiled 'tater often issues forth with matters which can be avoided only by the co-education of the public consumer. Such matters are void where prohibited by law.

A further possibility is the scalloped common 'tater. This type is a real cut up. Common 'tater connoisseurs nickname the scalloped 'tater (affectionately), the "Chopsie."

The baked common 'tater is either too raw or burnt. It is rarely laid out just right. Like the mashed 'tater, it should be well seasoned and is to be taken with a grain of salt.

I hope your Readers 'n Eaters will benefit from my helpful hints for flavoring the common 'tater.

LETTERS

Dear Yenta Schpitzkopf:

I am presently in my 43rd semester at Stern. That is not my problem. I have had to change my major 47 times and am still trying to get my HTD in less than 52 semesters. That is not my problem. My problem is that instead of the respectable Stern girl who has Yirat Shamayim, I find nob-nappers. Yes, Yenta, nob-nappers. "Someone keeps napping the nobbs for the heater. I buy, they nap. Could you please help me. It gets cold on the 21st floor.

I. C. Cold

Dear Cold:

Your problem is not nob-nappers. Your problem is that you are on a non-existent floor. If I were you I would say Tefilat Haderech and I would not, under any circumstances, look down.

Dear Yenta Schpitzkopf:

I am an alumna of Stern College, and I was happily married for seven years. My husband used to be a nice, fine Yeshiva Bocher. Now he's a real bum. He just sits around all day, drinks, smokes, and plays cards. What is the matter with him? Where did I go wrong?

Good Wife

Dear Wife:

Your husband is suffering from a severe case of the Seven Year Hitch. There is no cure. Return him to Y.U. where you got him. He'll fit right in with the crowd.

Dear Yenta Schpitzkopf:

I cannot help but note the lack of cooperation on the part of Stern women on matters of vital concern. And I appeal to you, Yenta, to help me. Having recently made a number of select phone calls to various residents of the Brookdale dormitory on Thirty-fourth Street, I have found that the response on the part of the students of your institution was one of apathy if not of disdain. My attempts to involve the women of this noble institution in meaningful social relationships have been disappointing and disheartening.

Recognizing the fact that Stern College is bent on in-stillment within its students the lofty principles of Torah U'madah, including the ideals of cooperative social behavior, I find that the responses which my propositions have elicited have not been in keeping with these presumed standards. I feel that this is a situation which requires, nay demands, immediate remedial action. I appeal to you Yenta, to help me in my attempt to ignite the fire of community concern and to inculcate an enthusiasm for my endeavors among the students of Stern College.

If You Expect To Graduate In June, Read This Carefully

If and when, because of the circumstances not to be stated, for the facts are to be told as such because of it. Why, think of the way, and often being done. Simply, the readiness is consequential not only afterwards to the next syarwm, but whenever in the time as life permits.

Moreover, while middle can be to the afterthought and potentially equally and forever. Careful, and clearly before the actual place, the date being a pair, while it goes in that opposite.

Is there for just daring holds granted right for the true now? Just why often having begun classical mansion coming forth? To be certain, red and white for the present and not too much. The afterthought meeting a personal travel foe granting betterment playing rarely as a result. Career plans flowers, tree if ever. If trade the regular, where nothing sold went frozen?

Judging by the fact yet further than sew and hem to be the real thing after a while. Happening in becoming best running yellow holding in time. Who can is not to be taken and yet there is no reason since yesterday after kicking away?

CRITICALLY, THE MATTER JUMPS LOWERING BECAUSE GRATEFUL MEANING

CROWDS AND STAGES AND PEOPLE. DO NOT CIRCUMSTANCE FRIGID STAYING ABOVE AND BEYOND WHEREVER THEY ARE SOLD.

In truth, leaving best and forever threatening bypass never since it cannot be. Possible grating just yesterday if sometimes followed in this fold. Candy and however fairly whiten gross income makes never in such a time loyalty. The facts reveal justification happening for a time depending upon crossing faster and faster.

Stern Panting Hose Snag Yeshiva Mighty Tights

In a frightful battle, the Stern panting Hose defeated the Yeshiva Mighty Tights last Sunday afternoon. The score was 105-32 with the Hose scoring eighty-four runs as they drove the Tights to defeat. The Y.U. Mighty Tights, so named for their renowned frugal generosity, were not spending enough energy at the game, reported Coach Dan Skin of the Tights, as they did not expect the Hose to be so sure-footed and elastic.

The climax of the game arrived as Coach Leo Tard of the Panting Hose found a Hole in One of his Star Hose, Agilon Stretch. Realizing that the hole in his Hose had to be repaired, Coach Leo Tard let out a loud command of "Darn it!" Without a moment's delay, the adjuster needed her way into the scene and saved nine minutes with a stitch in time. Agilon Stretch got her fix, and was flying high on the field once again.

The battle raged, as the Hose tip-toed on to victory. After losing the game, the Mighty Tights lost much of their spunk and elasticity. It has since been reported that the Downtown Tights have changed their name and disposition, and become the Up Tights.
