

The observant

THURSDAY,

March 15, 1973

VOLUME XV NO.10

THE OFFICIAL NEWSPAPER OF STERN COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

Students Nabbed In Attempt To Reveal Registrar's Secret

Last night two SCW students were apprehended in their attempt to solve the mystery of the new pseudo-registrar. The girls, wearing Stern T-shirts which they had mistaken for night shirts, were found asleep in room 101 where they had spent long hours relentlessly searching for the identity of their new administrator.

"We had to find out what was going on," one of them patiently remarked. "There are just too many baffling incidents which no one, including the grape vine, can explain." When asked to specify these occurrences the girls immediately proceeded to give a detailed account of recent happenings.

SCW's new pseudo-registrar blankly stares at his wall of silence.

"It all started with Rabbi Toughsky's transfer," both of them exclaimed. "Since then nothing has been the same!" Although the school claims it has appointed a competent replacement, students and faculty feel otherwise. To them, the new administrator and his actions seem nebulous and devoid of meaning. For instance, they cannot understand why he insisted on tearing down all pictures and substituting them with a tapestry of castles in the air, a fabrication of a man chasing windmills, and a poster reading "Ein lo guff v'eino guff, guff" taken from Yigdal.

Other rumored peculiarities include the registrar's hobbies. It is whispered that he enjoys building model cars with a fifth wheel and negotiating business deals where he can act as a silent partner. Most unusual, however, are his attempts to make grass grow under one's feet with which he experiments during school hours.

The registrar's laissez-faire attitudes and utopian ideas have proven to be a source of agitation. About one week ago the clairvoyant registrar decided it would be best to erase all lines of delineation not only between himself and others, but between various courses. As a result there (Continued on Page 5)

Silverman, Reich Arrested

Police Raid Posh Mirsky Club Seventh Floor Closed To Students

CAUGHT IN THE ACT—Prior to a New York Police Department raid on the notorious Mirsky Club, University Registrar Morris Silverman and SCW Undersecretary General Mrs. Esther Reich let a little red tape unwind.

Flash (no, not Gordon): Last night the police raided the seventh floor of the Stern College building, better known among the elite circles as... "Mirsky's."

First to be confiscated was the food. Mirsky had hoarded 75,092 Parker's Deluxe Cookies (mostly the kind with the apricot jelly in the middle), and there were danishes and doughnuts and—note this—500 super-deluxe Carvel ice cream cakes! (Rumor has it that Mrs. Reich makes her appearance on the 7th floor via a chocolate super-deluxe Carvel ice cream cake, but conflicting sources believe that it is really a strawberry one—the spectacle is supposed to be smashing.)

And then there were the girls, millions of them! There were registrar's aides, lost secretaries, sociology teachers and mathematics professors (you should have seen their figures!). Wow, Mirsky had hoarded them, too!

The girls informed the press that they were treated quite well (to be sure), and their only complaints were that they were never allowed off the 7th floor. Parker's cookies were stale, and the intercom system which enabled them to hear all the classes being held in the building was a miserable outlet for their tensions, a terrible form of entertainment, and an unfair source of torture.

Now that Mirsky's has been raided, plans to renovate the 7th floor of Stern College labs are being discussed. The captive girls will receive volunteer jobs in the Registrar's Office as reparation for their unfortunate experience.

Late Breaking Report: The police conducted a second unofficial raid late tonight to assure the complete dissolution of the 7th floor Mirsky Club. To their utter amazement, five bunnies (no, not rabbits) hopped out of their concealment beneath the go-go dance platform. Their tails had been badly crushed and they were rushed immediately to Einstein Medical School for treatment. Their condition is said to be satisfactory.

Fiscal Crisis Hits Stern College Administration Cuts Departments, Faculty, Courses

Severe budget cutbacks for Stern College are forecast for the near future. As a result of the reduced allowance, the University will have to limit its spending in the next fiscal year. To investigate this serious problem, a Committee for the Conservation of Monies CCM, has been established. Distinguished members of the Budget Committee have been chosen to represent Stern College as the CCM prepares to chip away at the unnecessary expenditures of the Midtown Center. Interestingly enough, no faculty members or students were invited to serve on the committee.

Reliable sources report that the most serious monetary cutbacks will be felt by many of the departments, which will be forced to fire professors in some cases and close down completely in others. On the other hand, our sources relate that the future is not as bleak as it may appear. Teachers will only be demanding from such less demanding departments as biology, English, and history, so that more money can be made available for the institution of more popular courses. With these new additions, the committee expects that enrollment will naturally increase, more tuition will be collected as a result, and the monetary problems will iron themselves out.

A confidential list of the proposed courses as outlined for the coming year has been submitted by the CCM for consideration. Advanced Home Economics will be taught next year by the kitchen staff in order to avoid hiring another teacher and to give the staff something to do between the idle cafeteria hours of 2:30 and 5:00 p.m. Library 59.8C will be an independent study course emphasizing the art of silence, and a special lab will be conducted to gain practical knowledge in sitting, eating and sleeping in the library. Art 78, entitled "Advances in Art of Design," will deal with the unique craft of crocheting yarmulka patterns, and will be open only to students who are engaged or who are dating seriously. All students will be required to take Health 93, a one-semester course in fire prevention and the art of lighting Shabbat candles. Finally, Health 5, "Punchball for Majors," will be cancelled due to the inflationary cost of the air needed to fill the punchballs every week.

The members of CCM hope that once the aforementioned schedule changes go into effect, the budget crisis at Stern College will immediately decline as the quality of education in which the university so prides itself rises.

Revised Marking System Will Decrease Grade Pressure

In accordance with a request by the student body, the Office of the Dean recently announced the implementation of a new grading system, effective next semester. It is hoped that this completely revamped grading system will alleviate many of the inequities and complications caused by the A-B-C-D system presently in use. After many weeks of discussion, the following grading system was finally agreed upon:

- SSP - Supreme Pass - 4.0
- SP - Superlative Pass - 3.77
- UHP - Ultra High Pass - 3.68
- HHP+ - High High Pass Plus - 3.41
- HHP - High High Pass - 3.0
- HHP- - High High Pass Minus - 2.57
- HP+ - High Pass Plus - 2.24
- HP - High Pass - 2.0
- HP- - High Pass Minus - 1.86
- P+ - Pass Plus - 1.32
- P - Pass - 1.0
- CE - Commendable Effort - .97

Dean's List honors will go to those students achieving an average of HHP+ (3.41) or better. The following indexes will earn graduation honors: HHP+ - cum laude; UHP - summa cum laude; SP - magna cum laude. Students with an average of P or less will be placed on probation.

In announcing the new grading system, the Dean stated, "By abandoning the standard A-B-C-D system, it is hoped that we have removed the undesirable emphasis on grades found in most schools. Yet we have not abandoned the use of pluses and minuses, which have proven to be so popular with our student body. And furthermore, we tried to assign the simplest point values possible to each letter grade in order to facilitate the job of computing each student's index. In short, we feel that what we have created is the simplest and fairest way of evaluating the performance of our students."

Shekel Approves Council Budget Unprecedented Amount Allotted

It may have taken a long time but good things are worth waiting for: finally, as second semester draws to a close, Student Council's annual budget for the present school year has been approved.

In accordance with the efficiency and accuracy with which all business is handled at Yeshiva, Dr. Sheldon Shekel, Yeshiva University Secretary, accepted the new budget only after receiving audits from twenty-nine accounting firms. The result of this thorough investigation is the allotment to Student Council of a minimum of fifty cents and a maximum of five dollars per student. These figures may appear ridiculously low at the onset, but Dr. Shekel explained that after paying the salaries of the twenty-nine accountants, no more than this sum could possibly have been spared.

In addition, Dr. Shekel explained that, "Stern College Students must realize that the allotted sum is actually quite generous considering the absence of any University accountant N. Lee Kesel is whipped by Dr. Shekel for suggesting that SCW students receive an equitable activity budget.

allotment whatsoever during the first semester."

This statement cannot be disputed.

Up, Up And Away

The removal of the official registrar at Yeshiva University's midtown center and the subsequent survival of Stern College for Women more than supports the contention of Observant staff members that the women's branch of Yeshiva can be run effectively from the main administrative offices uptown. We applaud the actions of Registrar Morose Silverman to reduce the flow of red tape between the SCW offices by stretching it a mere distance of 151 city blocks. In support of "Finicky Morose," we urge that additional administrative offices be moved to Furst Hall as well, thereby leaving a vacated first floor for use as a television lounge and an experimental psychology laboratory for testing the reaction of human victims—er, subjects, to puzzling mazes.

We also urge Acting Librarian Mrs. Edith Lubetski to move SCW library facilities to the Pollack and Gottesman Libraries uptown. With this change, needless duplication of books could be avoided and the resulting extra funds could be allocated for keeping the uptown building open longer and implementing many of the suggested renovations of the second and mezzanine levels of the SCW building: an off-Broadway theater, an additional bathroom, and a private rendezvous area (with additional carrels).

Cut And Dried

The students of Stern College have too long been victimized by the inefficiencies of building maintenance. The sad lack of elevator service in both the school building and in the dormitory has threatened the social and educational well-being of SCW students, who are unable to get to classes or meet their dates on time. We have also gained a not-so-clean reputation because of the deplorable absence of washing machines and hot water in the residence hall. This coupled with a dwindling maid service crisis, has forced the health department to fine dormitory administrators $20,000 for contributing heavily to air pollution.

However, The Observant staff must protest the most unfair service cut-off to effect SCW students yet: the curtailment of rest room facilities on the first floor of the school building. We note that this indiscriminate lock-out of students has resulted in more student unrest than can be appreciated. The anxious student body is now left without facilities on the first, second, and mezzanine levels, not to mention the lower level, where service is only available from 8:30-2 p.m. and 5p.m.-7p.m. In addition, lavatory supplies are missing from rest-rooms on floors 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, and 11, a situation which magnifies the crisis.

We of The Observant suggest a simple remedy to this unfortunate situation, a suggestion which is bound to be a profit making venture as well. We suggest that all rest rooms be unlocked and pay-toilets be installed in each lavatory.

Although only ten cents need be charged, the University can gain close to three times that fee if the doors are serviced by the same mechanics who repair snack bar machines. We also request that such necessary supplies as soap and paper be kept on hand, as the monetary rip-off experienced by students more than compensates for the paper goods they rip off.

Through the profit gained on this enterprise, SCW students can expect resumption of several services which were once curtailed due to a lack of funds: the real true, honest-to-goodness grand opening of the student lounge; the purchase of Hoover washer-dryers for each dormitory room; the reopening of the suites on floors 19 and 20 of the dormitory; the renovation of the 6D kitchen with asbestos cabinets and furniture; and the rehiring of Dr. Carol Gruber to the SCW history department.

Why You Rushing?

One of the current issues undergoing discussion at the Senate is the question of the four-year residency requirement. Both students and faculty of Stern College have felt that the four-year residency requirement is not sufficient and should be raised to eight years. The new eight-year residency requirement definitely offers benefits to both the students and Yeshiva University.

First of all, doubling the residency requirement would reduce the number of credits that students must carry per semester to complete all of Stern's requirements. Students would no longer be forced to take 23.5 credits a semester, nor would summer school be a necessity. Students will be able to take 16 credits per semester, as they have double the time in which to complete their courses.

Socially, an eight-year residency requirement would also be advantageous to the student. Some girls are shy and have difficulty in meeting boys and find that four years are not sufficient time to get engaged in. Four additional years would give the slower girls more of a chance to meet someone.

An eight-year residency is also necessary in terms of the students' maturity. Four years are not enough time for certain students to gain this maturity and four more years at Stern would definitely prove beneficial in this respect.

Finally, four extra years would be a big financial boon to the university. Assuming that the student does stay all eight years, this would mean that the student must pay four additional years of dorm fees and tuition, income that would help ease some of the financial problems from which Stern College is suffering.

We of The Observant strongly urge both the Senate and Faculty Assembly adopt the eight-year residency requirement immediately as it is an improvement which offers advantages both to the students as well as to the university.

The observant

Published by Stern College, an undergraduate division of Yeshiva University
 First Class Rating Printed by Photo Text
 Published Every Two Weeks—Subscription $3.50 per year

EDITORIAL BOARD

Editor-in-Chief	Sherry Scheinberg
Executive Editor	Esther Fuchs
Managing Editor	Aileen Pollock
News Editor	Tammy Fredman, Judy Yager
Features Editor	Esther Epstein, Barbara Reichlin
Senior Editor	Rachel Goldsmith
Research Editor	Pearl Newman
Contributing Editors	Anita Gittleman, Karen Taylor
Assistant to Ed.-in-Chief	Arlene Planko

TECHNICAL BOARD

Production Editor	Rachel Shapiro
Make-up Editor	George Jakubovic
Business Manager	Chani Haber-Korn
Photography Editors	Irene Flink, Cheryl Merzel
Copy Editors	Judy Kleinerman, Deina Shapiro
Art Editor	Mindy Ganz
Typing Editor	Susan Dobkin
Circulation Editor	Mark Koslowe
Exchange Editor	Debbie Herman

Staff: Judy Friedman, Susan Metzger, Fran Kaplovitz, Ashira Rappoport, Liora Nestlebaum, Dvora Greenberg, Sylvia Tishler, Judy Fruchter, Ellen Heck, Lori Coler, Lita Kohane, Barbara Lips, Marion Dere, Debbi Muschel, Debbie Neiss, Sharon Lowell, Tony Zeig, Alina Weisman, Debbie Fances, Harriet Resnick, Jeanette Stobitzki, Anne Zucker, Hreddel Goldberg, Mimi Kolman, Susan Nunberg, Dori Shertz, Gwen Sack, Rochelle Yellin, Debbie Kamaras, Valerie Margolis, Ellen Stern, Judy Aitschul, Rhona Peyster, Sandy Katz, Sherry Cumsky, Sharon Krug

Photo Credits: Irene Flink is responsible for all photography, whether she says so or not.

Letters To The Editor

Multiloquence

To The Editor:

It has come to my attention that The Observant, a supposedly "college-level" newspaper written for "college-level" mentalities, has repeatedly relinquished its obligation to be understood by its intended audience, and has achieved a comprehensibility meritorious of a post doctoral candidate in nuclear physics. In other words, the average Stern College mind cannot suffer itself to "plow through" the exorbitantly sophisticated text, and the journal's purpose—to inform—is thereby nullified by its complexity.

It is my humble suggestion, as an expert in the field of comprehension, that the honored editors take a concentrated course in onodography, so as to improve their denitulation and insure the proper metonymy of their intentions.

To facilitate the maximum gain from such a valuable course, I also suggest a prerequisite and imperative reading of a most hameamelidaceous book on the above-stated topic. It is a textbook designed especially for the novice writer—or editor—and is recommended for its clarity and utility—The Rogation Syndrome: A Guide for Cephalagic Tendencies in the Center Fissiparity by Morlon Plonka and Beulah Hackbarth

I hope that this expostulation will not be construed in a negative connotation, for I firmly believe that it is in the best interest of The Observant and its prospective readers to establish a samogadic truncheon in which both parties can enjoy a flexible ingravescence, and do away with their present state of bifurcation.

The Editor-in-Chief and governing board of THE OBSERVANT sadly note the untimely passing of a long-time friend, Mr. Sam Fee. This friend of the University is now the Late Fee. He is survived by his wife, Scholarship Application Fee, and his children, Locker Fee, Transcript Fee, and Laboratory Fee.

Looking forward with karyoplasmic intensity to the New Observant, I remain inscrutably clear.

Prof. Ire N. Plynack, B.A. in B.S. School of Journalism Seton Hall Institute of Technology

Roving Reporter

"Y.U. Should Ask Such A Question? I Don't Know"

Editor's Note: Despite the fact that this is the Purim issue, the responses below are genuine reactions to two questions asked of neighborhood passers-by by The Observant's Roving Reporter.

"Could you tell us what a Y.U. Boy is?" A Y.U. Boy is one who comes down to the lounge only when the Y.U. Morgenstern T.V. blows up. It blew up this weekend.

"I haven't the slightest idea."

"It seems to me that you're trying to figure out why a person is a boy rather than a girl." "And what about a Stern Girl? What does that mean to you?" "A girl with a machine-gun in Israel. Remember the Stern Gang in Israel? Or a girl who doesn't know how to smile, one of the two."

I never went there. But Y.U. could mean Yale University, anything. Youngstown University, anything.

"What kind of building is that white one with the blue canopy that says 50 East 34th St.?" "Well, I have no idea." "Do you know what's going on in there?" "No, not to my knowledge. It's a regular residential building. That's all."

"Oh, now you're trying to pull a fast one on me. That is not a red building, that is a gray building."

"I said it was a white building."

"That's an apartment house."

"Are you sure?" "Why would you ask that?" "We suspect that it was something else. We were sent here by the Times." "By the Times? And you're trying to find out how good we are at finding out things quickly?"

"You mean there should be something going on in there?" "I don't know." "You mean it's a Massage Parlor in there?" "A Massage Parlor?" "AHAH! We have a Massage Parlor now!"

"There's a whole bunch of girls in there." "Girls? Doing what?"

"There are a whole bunch of single girls living there."

"Well, that's a Yeshiva Dormitory for girls." "How do you know that?" "Well, I've been

Intersession Breaks All-Time Record

During intersession, Sarah Sternlie and her friends thought of new ways to degrade themselves in future issues of THE OBSERVANT.

Now that the routine of classes is well underway, it is comforting to reminisce about those carefree days of intersession. Due to the extensive period of time allotted, many students were able to undergo very exciting experiences. Chaya Reizel wrote a quick novel of 898 pages; Cranindel went on a trip to Rome; Rivka Tova took a complete cruise around the world. Chana Leah sewed wedding gowns for all her engaged friends, and her roommate Zipporah crocheted thirty-five yarmulkehs for some of her boyfriends.

watched her little niece grow up. Nechama Brenda stayed at home figuring out the units of her last phone bill.

The group of girls from Teaneck, New Jersey got together and organized an orderly fire drill run. Sarah Sternlie spent her intersession thinking of new and better ways to degrade herself in the forthcoming issues of The Observant. All the girls interviewed felt that the first week of vacation was most certainly the best.

"Do you know what the concepts represent: Y.U. Boy or could you take a guess at what a Y.U. Boy is? Or a Stern Girl?" "Stern Girl sounds like a mother, a very strict mother."

"A what?" "A Y.U. Boy and Stern Girl." "A Stern Girl? Well, the only Stern Girl was a College, a Jewish College." "Oh, yah? Do you know anybody who went there?" "Well, some friends, it was quite a while ago." "And what about a Y.U. Boy, did you ever hear of that concept?" Also, it was a Hebrew, but I don't know if it's the same Y.U. that you relate to. It was what we call Yeshiva University."

Administration Announces Instructions For Leaving Dorm In June

When that morning finally arrives, she came from a warm forest of far away Africa. Of course, it was mother who slipped on the peel, but I wonder if she knows who looks like her. Meanwhile, the writing in the sauceman was cunning as Moroccan leather, but the wicked, judging from often being done, would give almost anything to previously prepared porcelain.

urgent, ideal. Therefore, problems to be busy, require a week, maybe forty-nine to reach toward the end of the term.

Roommate Evaluation Form

- You are an eager freshman at Stern College. You meet your first roommate, who is a wise old senior—does she?
 - Tell you to ajax out the bathtub immediately?
 - Con you into having the phone put under your name so you get stuck paying the last bill at the end of the year?
 - Cause you not to flush the toilet in the mornings during freshman orientation so you won't wake her up?
- You are a wise old senior at Stern College. You meet your last roommate, who is an eager freshman—does she?
 - Run into the room bragging about how she got an upperclassman to sell her a dormitory elevator pass for only $10?
 - Bring in three little freshman friends who just sit on her bed and giggle for an hour?
 - Go to registration four hours early and then list her major as "dance"?
- It is your very first blind date: does your roommate—
 - Turn off the water valve so you can't take a shower before you go out?
 - Answer the house phone and ask him why he's going out with you?
 - Lean out the window and wolf whistle at your blind date as you walk down 34th Street with him?
- The blind date is a success. He calls you back and you make plans to go out again. Before your second date, would your roommate—
 - Put your one and only clean pair of underwear in the freezer?
 - Short circuit your hair dryer so you end up looking like a frizzy mess?
 - Spray your dress shields with hair spray (the sticky kind)?
- Tonight is the night. The freshman Blind Date Party—the most exciting night of your life: does your roommate—
 - Run downstairs to look at your date and then come back laughing hysterically and clutching at her heart?
 - Find out that her date is a drip and then engineer a switch that lands her your Mr. Gorgeous and leaves you with her drip?
 - Advise you to wear 5 inch platform heels, while all the time she knew that your date was 4'8"?
- The Blind Date Party is over. You have decided to stop dating for quite a while. Now it is time to buckle down and devote some time to more profitable and enjoyable enterprises. Will your roommate—
 - Go to the Flek and tell you to order the "Kitchen Sink" (24 scoops) and then she orders a Tab?
 - Cross the wires on the dorm switchboard so you can listen in on everyone's conversations and file all info for future use?
 - Help you organize a floating crap game on the 19th floor of the dorm and then tell Mrs. Milner about it?

Ode To A Schvitzboard Operator

I click and click and click to no avail, No matter what I do my efforts fail. Please answer me to let me know you're there, At least one word to let me know you're there.

Again I click, and in my mind I see The schvitzboard girl, just laughing there at me. To her it's just a flash that she ignores. For me, despair, and still I click some more.

I understand not why she treats me so, With each new click my desperation grows. Faint voices, ringing, these sounds do I hear, But no "Hello" to greet my lonely ear.

My patience thins, and anger takes its place; My cruel treatment is surely a disgrace. Each futile click increases my distress. And then, success, oh thank you for that "Yes?"

21A I cheerfully request, And sigh relief over my long, hard quest. A stranger's voice, awoken from her sleep, Growls out, "Wrong room! You've woken me, you creep!"

Do I dare click and face defeat again? Resigned, I turn, I know what I must do. I press—but fear—for sooner or later, I must write an "Ode to an Elevator."

Thank you. As we now commit mansions and Palm trees with juicy carrot-like spirits, to the brave and the faithful, perhaps a word will stir up the hornets. A prickly poppy fastened together loosely with string, because, consequently, not every Apollo commander is a porridge which resembles the back of the page. Whether loud or soft, the vinegar is punning, although we know long ago that he did not want to made into a pastry cook. Doesn't that suggest a rather narrow deluge, not so much growing as a ticklish affair. Leaving all insects aside, it is preferable to put them to sea.

When these things have been carefully arranged, an outstanding athlete may close the group of employees, being sure not to fill, in large part, even if the stilling may seduce the oil lantern, freezing the gain. No sense. No cents. Acting as chairman, her, as well as them realized very quickly that any piggy would planet a Franklin, even a cute one. Thus, notwithstanding, therefore, tomorrow's seven is yesterday's shorts. According to a recent thirteenth, further ping and lather pong southerly as the introduction, but the path was hangout and the nooks forsook the crooks when he looks.

Warm up before accusing Kansas, who didn't know that reverse is sometimes truer than daily which is less true and more false when considered seasoned. Lack of the faint-hearted is crucial.

"Absolutely nothing. Y.U? Woman's United."

"A Y.U.?" "Yeah, a Y.U. Boy." "I don't know—a Faggot." "Why do you say that?" "I don't know." "And what about a Stern Girl?" "Yeah, I guess she'd be a counterpart."

"Something to do with Women's Liberation?"

"I haven't heard it at all." "Well, it's like a grassroots term." "Grassroots term?" "Do you know what that means?" "Grassroots?"

"No, no, Y.U. Boy and." "Some people eat it and other people smoke it. Did you like that, then, I'll go for my ace stuff."

"Could you come up with a definition of those terms?" "No, well it's gonna be very difficult with anything. The only thing that together, if they really play it straight between one another."

"Y.U. Boy? And St.? Um, I haven't heard them associated with anything. The only thing that comes to mind is Youth something, Youth Union."

"Well, I don't know if you want to use me because I want to Y.U. High School and I'm familiar with the terms, so, Well, I haven't heard the term Y.U. Boy, but when I was in high school, a Stern Girl was someone you stayed away from."

"A what? I really don't know. Please, believe me. If you were talking about race horses, I would know what their names were or who the Jockey was; they would have the same kind of name that you mentioned, Y. Boy or whatever you said, and what was the other one? Yes, Stern Girl. There are horses by that name, and that's the only thing I know."

"Yeshiva University and Stern College. I don't know anything about them, I just know that the school exists."

"Well, a Stern means a star in German and Stern in English means serious-faced." "And what about a Y.U. Boy?" "Y.U.? There are so many... letters I could never guess at because it could mean anything. So many short letters. I just don't know."

"I'm not a Y.U. Boy. I never went to Y.U." "How do you know you're not a Y.U. Boy?" "Because

Administration Fears Overpopulation Takes Steps To Discourage Enrollment

Crowded out of his office, Dean Mirsky ponders the problem of Stern's population explosion.

Bedlam erupted at SCW yesterday when the administration officially announced that no students will be taking a year's leave of absence to study in Israel or transferring out of the school for the academic year 1973-74. The College has been alerted to prepare for the impending inundation by an estimated 150 students beyond the expected enrollment level.

The shocking news has evoked various negative reactions on the part of several school officials. As Dean Mirsky indicated, "Who ever complained that the enrollment was too small at Stern College?" Mrs. Giges, housemother of the Brookdale Residence Hall, brooded over the prospect of an overcrowded dormitory. "The only solution is to marry them off so they'll have to commute to school," was her response.

Student leaders, too, held pessimistic outlooks regarding the unfortunate situation. Reflecting on the legacy of burdens awaiting her successor, Student Council President Shirley Stark claimed the additional students would mean more people involved in student activities. Thus, the new president, she feared, would not be prepared for such an active student body. In the same fashion Torah Activities chairman Judy Katz was doubtful as to the future expected inconvenience. The Administration intends to add the thirteenth floor to the twenty-story dormitory by next fall, thereby partially alleviating the housing shortage. In addition, the seventh and tenth floors of the school building, which presently are not utilized for classes, will be transferred to the residence hall.

Changes in the school building, are also underway. In order to accommodate the heavy flow of students into the Office of the Registrar, a call-number machine similar to the type found in bakeries will be installed. Builders are being contracted to erect a balcony level in the auditorium to serve as an Ezrat Anashim during the Shabbat services. The auditorium will also undergo a functional change when it is converted into a lecture hall for the Taharat HaMishpacha class, which is expected to double its already overcrowded enrollment. In anticipation of the new flood of students, the Library Committee will augment a change in the reserve-book policy; beginning next fall, instructors will be notified not to assign any readings in reserve books or articles. This will alleviate the already serious pre-exam hassle by the students in obtaining articles assigned for such courses as Survey of Jewish History. Finally, in view of the crowded elevator conditions which are expected to worsen next fall, a committee has been selected to consult with a local sanitary canning company for tips on how to most efficiently stop a container.

Not many months ago the diminishing enrollment rate at SCW was a major issue. Now that the school will not be able to depend on its yearly leave-of-absence contingent, it is faced with the opposite problem. Dean Mirsky is still trying to sell the Stern Program in Israel if any freshmen or sophomore changes her mind about leaving.

Faculty Averts Study Day Controversy By Planning From Moment To Moment

In an unprecedented move, the administration and faculty of Stern College has decided to shorten Study Week to Study Minutes. The announcement came just moments after Dean Irky's statements about the unique character of the school. In his concluding remarks the Dean said that "the women's branch of the University will strive to maintain its status as the only institution of its kind on this great earth."

To many, this achievement can be interpreted in only one way—the administration has cut its red tape and has become sensitive to the pleas of its students. Students have been informed that Study Minutes will remain optional, and faculty members have been asked to take into account that while some book worms will be able to take advantage of the Study Minutes, the majority of Stern's overly active students will be too busy with their extracurricular activities to spend precious time on study. Members of the Student Council have expressed a sincere hope that instructors will take this into consideration, as it wasn't long ago when they, too, were in college.

It was initially feared by Student Council members that "Uptown" agents might interpret their petitions to abolish Study Week as an indication of immaturity on their part. They have been assured, however, that such has not been the case. The "Uptowner's" have come to realize that it is and always will be a woman's right and privilege to change her mind. The majority at Stern appreciate this apparent display of peace and good will.

It is hoped that the introduction of Study Minutes will be beneficial to both students and administration as well. Instead of studying, students will now be able to spend their valuable time on matters of true significance. Since there will be almost no free time, administrators can be assured that no one will be wasting her time.

Abolishing Study Week also means obvious benefits for the administration. Since prior study habits of yesteryear will no longer be tolerated, those rooms which were specifically designated for study will be permanently closed. Thus, the administrators will not only be conserving time, but electricity as well.

Stern students note that they have finally come to realize that they are not now and never have been on the receiving end of school politics. The communication barrier between Stern College and her brother institutions has been

Funds Furnish Fantastic Facilities For Future

Despite the disastrous state of the U.S. economy, a devalued dollar, increased inflation, and a decreased employment rate, the Stern College dormitory has managed to overcome these fiscal catastrophes and to prosper in this time of extreme depression.

With an overabundance of funds, dormitory personnel have found advisement in budget planning. In the ratified bill to the finance committee, it was suggested that the dormitory be refurbished. This bill entails ornately designing and redecorating the dorm rooms, bathrooms, roof, basement, food rooms, study halls, and lounges of Brookdale Residence Hall.

Two suggestions for remodeling of the rooms themselves are remote-control color television sets and mini-refrigerators installed near beddies to alleviate the tedious trips to the kitchens. Other proposed items include alarm clocks that play "I'm getting married in the morning" and shag carpets imported from Israel to replace the muddy oatmeal ones. Transparent lucite plastic desks will be available in the storage room to replace the enlarged orange crates now in use. The proposal also includes the engagement of Normal Rockwell (not to a Stern girl) to paint the dormitory walls.

Stern girls have walked hunched over for years. It was originally thought that this condition was due to crouching over books. However, after observing the situation closely, the proposers of the bill felt that this irreparable situation was not due to the girls' study habits, but rather to the abnormally low bathroom sinks. Hence, high sinks will replace the low ones.

Proposed refurbishing of the Blue Lounge.

With regard to the roof, a convertible skating rink-swimming pool, conducive to fun and games, winter and summer, will be installed. Bathing suits with sleeves and knee length skating skirts are the only requisites.

The committee has also delegated funds for the revitalization of the basement. Billiard and ping-pong tables, pin ball machines, sauna baths, exercisers and noiseless washers and dryers will be purchased.

The committee felt certain that Stern girls were tired of soggy tuna fish sandwiches and stale nutty brownies; therefore they have allotted money to put in pizza, falafel and hot-dog vendors. Do-it-yourself sundaes-soda paraphernalia will be available and hot chocolate machines will plop thick whip cream into steaming hot beverages. A dollar bill changer will be installed for which will automatically usurp five cents for tzedakah. For the multitudes who want to learn Torah but do not wish to be subject to the almost fire-hazard level of overcrowding in the Beit Medrash, a sefarim machine will be installed with Hebrew and English books on all levels. Such books as Michtav M'Eliyahu, Nechama Leibowitz on the Torah, and Gemara Sanhedrin will be offered.

The most exciting plan is for the beautification of the lounges. The main lounge will have its walls in white silk. Slides of Michaelangelo's Sistine Chapel will be projected on the ceiling, giving the lounge a Renaissance success of the voluntary T.A.C. Lecture Series. "With so many more girls coming to the lectures," she asserted, "the speakers will be overwhelmed and frightened away." On the more daring level, Student Admissions Society Chairmen, Debbie Hollenberg and Sherry Scheinberg suggested the College simply revoke the acceptances of the members of the incoming freshman class "After all," they reasoned, "why should we bother to orient them and help them adjust to a school which can get along without them?"

(Continued on Page 7)

The Governing Board of THE OBSERVANT wishes a hearty mazal tov to Editor-in-Chief Sherry Scheinberg upon her engagement to O.B. Server.

Despite the widespread opposition to the news of the increased enrollment, steps have already been taken to reduce the

Want A Fresh, Country, Grassy Smell To Brighten Up Your Dormitory Room?

TRY HI TH'AIR

The Room Deodorizer That Won't Let You Down

The Elite Young Jewish Miss Lives In Elegance At BROOKDALE HOME FOR THE UNWED On New York's Fashionable East Side Call MU6-5900 For Application

Upset Predicted For Sternlie In Tight Council Office Race

Based on early election returns from densely populated districts, it appears conceivable that Sarah Sternlie, a write-in candidate for Student Council President, will score a stunning upset victory over her eight official opponents. At press time, with only 27.8 percent of the total votes calculated, Rabbi David Victor and Mr. Joseph Friedman, Co-Chairmen of the Election Tabulating Committee, voiced hesitation in projecting a winner. Said Rabbi Victor, "One can a priori project a winner if and only if one differentiates between heavily populated sections (i.e., the History 2, English 3, and Chemistry 2 classes) and sparsely populated areas (i.e., the Physics 2, Math 24 and English 56 classes) with respect to student preference. That therefore implies that one can then proceed to integrate the results into a total finite sum, provided that sum exists." However, Dr. Ellen Robinson, Chairperson of the Statistics Department, feels that based on "inevitable positive correlative median statistical factors," Sarah Sternlie will win with 30.7 percent of the vote. If these calculations are correct, this year's Student Council race will have been "the closest and most exciting race since that of Spring, 1972." Shirley Stark, former Student Council President and President of the Former Student Council Presidents Association, thoughtful students ponder the issues and personalities of the campaign as carefully as they ponder what to purchase from the snack bar. When pressed for her reaction, non-candidate Sarah Sternlie said, "I'm so glad to see that the student body is as involved, in the election as it was in the Jewish Arts Festival."

This year's campaign has been dominated by many diverse candidates and their platforms. Etta Cation has pledged to work for a complete overhaul of the entire faculty every two years, in order to expose the students to as many teachers as possible. Jean Blue has protested the harsh enforcement of the dress code. Fruma Dati has urged the cancellation of all term paper assignments during the Shmita year. Reggie Strar, who throughout the campaign has vehemently denied charges of nepotism (she is the niece of Dr. Samuel Belkin) has pleaded with her Stern sisters not to begrudge the finer members of the Stern College faculty to the graduate schools of the YU system. Mary Callah has proposed the publication of the "Rings and Things" column on page one of The Observant. Kayla Ree has supported the meeting of all 12 o'clock classes in the cafeteria "so that the students will not be deprived of a much-needed lunch hour." Jane D. El vigorously protested the cancellation of Sociology 7 (Jewish

But by far, the candidate whose campaign has generated the most excitement is Sarah Sternlie. It is to her credit that she has amassed such a large percentage of votes without even having taken time to declare an official candidacy. Although she has no stated platform, she places high priority on converting the Orange Lounge into a beauty salon and hiring "Nick," thereby saving many a student a long trip. But her most significant proposal has been to deliver absentee ballots to each dormitory room for those students who are too busy to make the trip to the school lobby to vote in person. (She herself has taken advantage of this convenience.)

It is not yet known how long it will take to finish tabulating the 72 ballots submitted in the school building plus the 256 absentee ballots. Complete election results and analysis of these results by Dr. Michael Hecht and Dr. Jos. Bernstein, Co-chairman of the Election Analysis Committee will appear in the next issue of The Observant.

Twersky Plans Concert Tour; Faculty All-Stars Vie For Top Billing

Former SCW Registrar Rabbi Norman Twersky prepares a routine for his world concert tour.

On February 30, 1973, former SCW Registrar Rabbi N. Twersky left Stern College to go on a world concert tour. He took the following musicians and actors with him: Professor M. Silverman, Dr. Carol Silver, Dr. Irene Goldring, Mr. Joseph Friedman, Mr. Avigdor Bittman, and special returning guest star, Dr. Carol Gruber.

Their tour will take them through 34th Street to 125th Street, Harlem, U.S.A. From there they will proceed south to the cotton fields. Their acts include belly-dancing, juggling, musical chairs, card tricks, and a fortune telling act entitled "Who's Next?"

The songs they plan to sing are: "Freedom," "Mr. Lonely," "You're So Vain," "Singing in the Rain," "I Wanna Go Home," and "Take Me Back."

The revelation that Twersky had, in truth, left his position to enter the entertainment field rather than the registrarship at Perkauf Graduate School came (Continued on Page 8)

Students Nabbed In Try To Unmask Registrar

(Continued from Page 1)

was a session of sessions and a constant stream of confused students and faculty flowing into the registrar's office. All were waiting to hear the transparent reasoning of this lucid non-ministrator.

In an attempt to keep himself aloof and withdrawn, the registrar worsened the situation by erecting a wall of silence. Only after signing one-hundred request slips and running around the building seven times (both being ancient Stern customs), were a few allowed through this barrier: Once there, they met a dreamy, out-of-this-world person who was blind to all questions and deaf to all protests.

In desperation, a Ways and Means Committee was formed. Its purpose was not only to raise funds, but also to find ways and means of gathering evidence which would reveal the true identity of this mysterious personage. Proof of this eccentric's idiosyncrasies had to be found since Yeshiva University, unlike Stern College, was unable to see right through the new administrator. The situation had become one of blind frustrations.

"We volunteered to investigate immediately," chimed one of the girls. "We hoped that by solving this mystery we would find the reason for many other strange occurrences such as the four fires which happened in the school building." "Yes," added the second suspect. "We just don't understand why the university destroys us, sends ladders to save us, and then insists that we remain on the bottom rung."

When asked if they had solved the mystery of their pseudo-registrar, the girls hesitated and then admitted, "One problem still remains. We're not sure if this whole episode was a vision or a waking dream." With this final comment, the students were dragged off by the police.

Seniors Unite At Meeting; Class Lauded For Outstanding Service

Officers of the Senior Class were overcome by the tremendous surge of unity that was exhibited at the latest Senior Class meeting. Cheers of approval and overwhelming applause punctuated the statements made by Debbie Hollenberg, Senior Class President, as she announced plans for the year.

Since many of the officers were accused of being overly energetic and not allowing the rest of the class to participate in past activities, a vote was taken at the meeting concerning the Senior Farewell Dinner. The decision was unanimous to hold the dinner at Kasher King and the reception at the McAlpin Hotel.

Once again the crowd applauded as further arrangements were announced. For only $5.50, a student and her parents or date can enjoy a Kingburger, french fries, and a large Coke and then ward off would-be muggers and rapists on her way to the serene atmosphere of the McAlpin for an evening of restful recuperation from exams amidst the many speeches lauding the members of the Class of 1973 for their accomplishments.

The meeting ended on an unpleasant note, however, when Freshman Class President Rivki Davidowitz crashed into the Orange Lounge and chastised the seniors for setting a poor example for underclassmen who, after following the advice and actions of more experienced classes, experienced a relatively fruitless year. Ms. Davidowitz was advised to forget about her classmates and let them spend the next few years finding out if Stern College is really for them before attempting any new activities. On this note, the meeting was closed.

Non-candidate Sarah Sternlie (top left) discusses her platform with fellow students.

reminisced fondly.

And indeed, this year's campaign seems to exceed all others in terms of crucial issues and student involvement. Campaign posters are vying for bulletin board space with notices of used Palmer and Colton history books for sale. Last Wednesday's campaign assembly dominated the ranks of those following the adventures of Dr. Joe Gannon's dimples. Wrinkled-brow Consciousness) and Health 63 (Advanced Karate). Abby Thetic has suggested the formulation of a committee to investigate the feasibility of the construction of an enclosed all-weather mall connecting Brookdale Residence Hall with the finer 34th Street department stores (though she has not specified which stores she considers to be finer for fear of alienating a portion of the student body).

Come Join Us At
The Annual

"Jewish Soul Festival"

Celebrating

Sammy Davis'

Birthday

Can't Sing ? Can't Dance ?

Enter The SCW

No Talent Show

Application In Speech Office

New Book Gives Stern Professors Manual Dexterity; Warns Ignorant Instructors Of School's Idiosyncracies

New UFO Sighted Freaky Oddity Discovered On Dormitory Rooftop

Dr. Manuel Professor, author of the Professor's Manual, warns of lack of attendance in class to both participants in his seminar.

The American Association of University Professors recently announced the publication of a revised Guide to the Perplexed, or Handbook for Professors at Stern College for Women. The Association feels its duty to advise potential candidates on the conditions of the institution prior to their accepting positions at the College. It is advised that all potential candidates consult this manual, and it is therefore being offered for sale at the Stern College Book Store at the low price of $16.95.

The AAUP feels it is essential to prepare its member professors for the conditions that await those who defy all warnings and accept positions to teach at Stern College. They are cautioned not to unpack their books in the closet that has been assigned to them for use as an office. "It is just possible that there were no offices available and you really were given a closet. However, in any case, the bookshelves are likely to collapse. It is not advisable to settle into your new office, because you might not remain at the college for as long as you think."

The manual also suggests that almost immediately upon appointment, the new professor must begin to look for a position for the following fall since the college is in the habit of hiring new and different instructors every year. High quality professors are not necessary because the college believes in the saying "money talks."

"On your first day of classes," the manual notes, "you may expect your entire class to be in attendance. Many of the students will offer you blue cards. Don't however, be so naive as to ask what they are to be used for. They're used by the Registrar's office to make paper airplanes."

"Upon entering a classroom, it is advisable to wear sunglasses. Without this simple precaution, the sparkle and shine of diamonds in the room may easily blind you."

"If you are one of those unfortunate instructors who must teach a class at 9 o'clock in the morning Beware! A handful of girls will appear at five minutes before 9. You must wait, however, for the 9 o'clock elevator before starting to lecture. Then you can expect to see additional students trickling in slowly until 9:24. Never expect to have the entire class in attendance except at the midterm and final examinations."

"All instructors must be prepared at any time of the day to see more than half of his/her students enter the class carrying a white cup containing a steaming caffeinated liquid better known as coffee. The cafeteria is known to brew this magical solution daily, in order to open the drooping eyelids of the bloody-eyed students. "Due to the shortage of chalk cliffs on the outskirts of Stern, all instructors are advised to bring their own supply of chalk and their own chalk eraser. Also essential to the instructor is three packs of cigarettes, and his own ashtray."

Teachers are warned never to set the date for an examination in advance. The students will complain and insist that the date be changed at least four times before the exam will finally be given. Even to announce an exam in class may be dangerous. "You will undoubtedly have at least two articulate members of the Student Council or Senate in your class. These students will exert pressure on you to cancel the exam. If you are not careful, these erudite students will convince you that the class is such a bright and intelligent group, that an exam would be unnecessary, and only an added burden on your already busy schedule. Once you succumb to the pressure, you can expect to face a slowly dwindling number of girls each succeeding day. Finally, you will find yourself embarrassingly lecturing to a single faithful student who is attending only because she hopes to ask you to write a letter of recommendation for her. Although you may feel hurt and forgotten, do not despair. You will become known to the students and assured of the highest enrollment of any other class for the next semester."

The Handbook ends with a request that all instructors who have survived their periods of appointment at Stern send to the AAUP any tips they might add to this manual in order to aid future generations of Stern College professors.

Look! Up in the sky! It's a bird, it's a plane, no—it's a Commie Kozie pilot! Improbable as it seemed to the innocent dwellers of Brookdale Residence Hall in Manhattan's fashionable East Side, on the cold and foggy night of February 29, a 1945 twin-engine fighter-bomber made a successful crash landing on the roof of 50 East 34th Street. Many of the female residents were awakened from their sleep as a result of the deafening impact, and the braver ones took to the roof of the twenty story building to investigate.

Observant reporters rushed to the scene and interviewed the pilot who had miraculously escaped from the wreckage of his craft. The Kozie was visibly shaken ("This is my first failure," he commented), but regained his composure immediately and spared no words in explaining the incident. "I first ran into trouble over the Hilly Davos region. There had been a violent but the air was just so thick that I completely lost my bearings and the next thing I knew, I hit rock bottom."

Commie Kozie spares no words when commenting about the turbulence over the Hilly Davos region.

The Commie Kozie pilot, chief bombardier in the "Comb and Hatter" bomb squad, was then taken to the hospital and his doctors tell us he won't be doing any high flying for a while.

storm, and the turbulence was great. Pressure mounted in the cabin and I had to do a nose dive.

New Bookie Joint Opens On 34 Street Will Aid Stern Immensely

A spokesman for Barnes Ignoble, New York's leading used book dealer, announced the opening of a Lexington Avenue and 34th Street branch yesterday. The specialties of this store will include foreign language books complete with handwritten running English translations, personalized lab reports, survey course notebooks, and math books filled with step-by-step analyses of each problem. The site for this highly priced specialty shop was chosen after a year-long search for the ideal academic atmosphere.

Barnes Ignoble 34 will also provide a school activities poster service. No longer will Student Council officers be forced to cajole publicity committees. A short, quick stop at the poster department will provide instant publicity for everything from blind date parties to blind date parties.

The Observant will also appreciate the services of this innovative shop. Enough articles about TAC lectures have been compiled to fill the next ten year's issues. In addition, there is a file of editorials dealing with the administration's insensitivity as well as a well stocked folder of editor-in-chief columns on student apathy.

Students interested in selling their used texts to Barnes Ignoble

34 should be aware of the stringent requirements for merchandise the store accepts. In order to be accepted, a foreign language text must have every word translated into English. Literary works must be accompanied with the appropriate Monarch Notes, and twenty sharpened pencils must be tied onto each math book. The Copy Staff of The Observant will supervise the proofreading of all materials.

Funds Furnish Fantastic Facilities

(Continued from Page 4)

aura. Chagal will render his services to paint (paint, posters on the wall. For the piano lounge, both a Steinberg baby-grand piano and a harpsicord will be bought to encourage the creative ability of those longing, frustrated baroqueists.

Last but not least, the proponents of the bill felt it crucial that Stern girls be made aware of the space age automation which has been sweeping Western civilization. Hence, for the third and fourth floors a moving "electric chair" will be installed to curtail the excruciating journeys up and down the stairs. A pollution-free enclosed mall will be constructed to connect the Lexington Avenue building with the Madison Avenue dormitory, thereby completing the SCW microcosm.

All of this is developed for student comfort.

Comments on the proposal should be submitted before March 15 in the suggestion box under the "To be as to be perceived" sign on Rabbi Twersky's desk.

"Wake up, Yussie, Mrs. Milner's coming!"

If You Need A Place To Get Away
Come To Luxurious HOTEL ELOPIN
Only 2 Blocks West Of
The Stern Dorm

Local Rabbis Discuss Sticky Problem; Attack The "Chew Jew"

A number of halachic problems regarding gum chewing have recently come to light. The subject was fully discussed at a recent convention of rabbis held last week at Yeshiva University, after much observation of the students at Stern College for Women.

All agreed that the very sound emanating from the mouth while in the process of chewing draws a girl's chewing gum while looking for a husband. "Because of the increasing number of Jewish pre-dental students, this ugly habit must be resolved, particularly on the girl's part, in order to insure more probability in becoming engaged. Most of these future dentists will not desire to marry women who have tooth decay or related mouth problems resulting from the ill-effects of chewing gum."

The majority of the rabbis present also decided that there is too much doubt in regard to the kashrut of most brand-names of gum being sold on the market. "Unfortunately," related one of the rabbis, "when a person is overcome by mouth-watering desire and/or boredom, she may take a piece of gum offered to her without necessarily noticing the brand-name and its ingredients."

One speaker recalled the line from the Torah: "V'nishmartem u'od Eufshosechem. And you shall carefully guard your bodies," and questioned the practice of chewing gum in this respect. He noted that it has been proven that chewing gum can cause tooth decay and disorders of the jaw. "Thus, by consuming gum, and making it a habit," he concluded,

"we are actually causing harm to our bodies and, hence, violating this very important precept in the Torah."

Still another rabbi presented his opinion, stating that the crackling sound of gum can be quite distracting and could possibly drown out words of Torah if the person is in the process of chewing while another is speaking about Torah. He felt it sinful to prevent words of Torah from being heard or understood as a result of this action.

Lastly, the problem of chewing gum on Shabbat was discussed. Some rabbis pointed out that many people forget to remove their gum before going outside. This is considered an act of "carrying," a violation of the Shabbat. Also involved in chewing gum on Shabbat is the question of esor boneh, the prohibition of building on Shabbat. The very formation of bubbles can constitute an act of building, thereby being in violation of another law of Shabbat.

"We urge," concluded Rabbi Shadchin, chairman of the convention, "that steps be taken to prevent the consumption of gum amongst Jews, and ask that the observant dentists instruct their Jewish patients accordingly."

"The problem of girls chewing gum is related to the concept of tzniut."

much attention to the physical structure of the mouth. It was not felt necessary to elaborate on the sensual connotations of a mouth in action. Thus, it was pointed out, it seems that mothers are not, in actuality, informing their daughters about the sex-appealing nature of the teeth. A prominent biologist, Dr. Shomer Eigoof, explained the physical motions of the mouth, whereby the teeth are revealed. "Halachically speaking," he said, "the problem of girls chewing gum is related to the entire concept of tzniut."

Rabbi Aaron Shadchin, former teacher of Taharat HaMishpacha at Stern College, spoke of the serious considerations involved in

Stern Coeds Skirt The Issue

The 34th Street department stores, including Franklin Simon, Macy's, and Altman's have been sending letters of complaint to the Stern College administration regarding the sudden crash run on their long skirt stock. They claim that it is unfair for Stern girls to monopolize their stock on mid-length skirts. Women from all over the city are frantically searching 4th Street for knee length skirts, and they are nowhere to be found. Why the crisis? Because Stern girls are hoarding them by the dozens in their Brookdale Residence Hall closets.

The shortage began when Stern's rabbinic faculty demanded that Stern girls wear dungarees to class. In an uproar, the student body rebelled, threatened to call a strike and burned their mini skirts in effigy. Married students rushed in torrents to the Lower East Side to buy tichels to cover their hair. Morning minyanim were sprouting inconspicuously in the study halls and embittered protesting began against those who violated halachah. All bare shoulders were immediately covered and hems were immediately lengthened down to the knees. Hence, those students with only one pair of rotten jeans flooded the 34th Street stores for long skirts so that they too could join the new "frumme revolution."

Players Collect $200

Davis In Jail; Stark Escapes To Mediterranean

Members of the Bikur Cholim Dance Troupe provide the half-time entertainment at YU's first Monopoly Marathon.

As the three spectators cheered along with the Senior (Class Varsity "Hah-Tah" squad, the first annual intercollegiate Monopoly Marathon began. Under the sponsorship of Dr. Sheldon Socol, the game of high finance and real estate started with players Hillel Davis, representing Yeshiva College (coached by Dean Rabinowitz), and Shirley Stark, representing Stern College (coached by Rabbi Berman). The opponents chose their tokens. Ms. Stark, after careful consideration, selected the tumbler, although it had been expected that she would pick "iron." Without a moment's hesitation, Mr. Davis placed "top hat" on the game board.

At first it was touch and go as Shirley acquired Oriental, St. Charles Place, and then Water Works, while Hillel invested in Connecticut and New York Avenues. Shirley took an early setback when Hillel landed on Chance and was instructed to "take a walk on the Boardwalk." Two spectators cheered - one booped. But in the next spin around, Ms. Stark made her comeback by landing on Mediterranean. Shirley then pulled snake-eyes and established the first monopoly of the game. Coach Rabinowitz called time and the audience was entertained by an SCW Bikur Cholim Club dance routine to Lerner and Lowe's "I'm Getting Married In The Morning."

An Observant on-the-spot interview with Coach Berman revealed that the former law student favored immediately putting up hotels on the property. His player complied, although she suffered some financial difficulties in the form of a $75.00 luxury tax.

Two hours later, Hillel had hotels on Boardwalk and Park Place and owned vital railways Short Line, Pennsylvania, and B & O. He also possessed other undeveloped properties. Ms. Stark had amassed a small fortune with her Mediterranean-Baltic, for which Mr. Davis seemed to have an affinity. As yet, Ms. Stark has not yet taken a walk on the Boardwalk of its counterpart. Presently, Mr. Davis is in jail after three doubles - "put him in the pokeny."

Although the game could go either way at this point, Dr. Socol had to call a recess until tomorrow, when as rumor has it, Hillel will pay $50.00 to get out of jail and resume his jaunt around the board. Ms. Stark has hinted that she will call for an auction. (Possibly she will barter with Davis for an exchange of Ventnor for Connecticut. Though a seemingly unprofitable venture, this move would wrap up that whole side of the board for Stark, who already owns Reading Railroad and her trusty Mediterranean-Baltic.)

The odds are approximately 50-50 at the moment, but Dr. Socol has assured The Observant staff that the Office of Student Finances will continue to accept bets until 1 p.m. tomorrow, when the tournament resumes. Students are urged to participate in the betting, which, despite its halachic implications, will save the YC and SCW Student Councils from financial collapse. In addition, tickets to view tomorrow's final round can be purchased from any YCSC or SCSC member for $1.50.

Boys! Are You Having Trouble Finding That Ideal Mate?

Does That Friendly Voice At MU6-5900 Scare You Away?

Is Your Mother Your Best Girlfriend?

Are You Forced To Take Out Ads In The Jewish Press?

Does Sarah Sternlie Still Turn You On?

Let Mumsey's Dating Service Solve Your Worries! Marriageable Girls Galore-Just For The Asking

THE OBSERVANT Salutes

Our Guardian Angel

Yes, Yussie- There Is A YU Boy

A Name By Any Other Name Is Still A Name

Samuel Mindlessman, 5'2", 250 lbs.
Q. "Could you tell us your opinion on The Observant?"
A. "No, I couldn't."

Chaim Farkus, Jr., 5'3", 200 lbs.
Q. "How do you find the overall religious atmosphere in this austere and respected institution?"
A. "Far out, man. Far out."

Smiley Slobkin, 5'5", 98 lbs.
Q. "Tell us your opinion on the physical education program at Y.U."
A. "It's helped me bring my weight up to 98 lbs."

C. Suey Goldberg, 5'6", 165 lbs.
Q. "How would you rate Y.U.'s food?"
A. "I've been trying to balance it with Keopetate Pepto Bismol, Aika Seltzer, Bromo Seltzer, Tums, Roloids, to name a few. Nothing works. Regardless of what I eat, 15 minutes after it goes down, it comes up."

The Chinyek Brothers, Moishe and Yossie (identical twins)
Q. "What do you think of Reits form?"
A. Moishe: "If I didn't have to share a bed with Yossie, the Bed-wetter, things would be fine."

Shlomo Goodygoody, 5'7", 170 lbs.
Q. "Do you feel there should be a curfew at Y.U.?"
A. "Certainly, I feel boys should not be out roaming the streets after 10 p.m."

Meir Fagowitz, 6'4", 120 lbs.
Q. "Tell us, if you will, how your social life has improved since you came to Y.U."
A. "My social life has improved to the point where I not only have time to do this year's homework, but next year's as well."

"Martha, darling, would you be so kind as to purchase a panacea for my ailing gastro-intestinal tract?"

"Yes, dear, I know just the cure. Parker's Prune Juice for the ultimate in cafeteria remedies."

When he Metzger on the street, he didn't say hello, and she was so angry, she wanted to knock his Ros off! The Ber man poured the customer a Mirsky sour on the rocks. Schram! Schram! Get the Hecht out of here... You're such a Weiss guy! Always Bickering with everyone... Kamri go outside and play now?... It was such a Fine day. The sun was like a Gold ring in the sky, and when it Schoen, feid was very warm; the clouds wese like Silver threads as the Appels fell to the Greene grass... The wind blew her Hat very far and left her head Baron..." Zuroff to see the Wizard, the wonderful Wizard of Sar"... David said, "Hay a zelet with your coffee..." "When the red, red Robinson comes Dob, Dob, Dobin along..." A Rose en bloom by any other name is still a rose en bloom... I Grant you this much that the Spector was no Perl man... "Bleich, I beg your Gordon..."

In times of conflict, we must stand by our country, Or fian to the enemy, in order to Skor a Victory... Dubitsky four bitsky, six bitsky, a dollar. Sold! to the Alt man who Levy... twas once upon a Winter's day, Twersky of gray and the breeze blew very Arieli... Oh Krumbein! I Dunne dropped my bi Vogel on the floor... The demonstrators shouted: Bern stein for he is a Gross man... Their Thanksgiving dinner was Ful da Turkel stuffed with, Reich... He kicked my Shim off with his Laufer... Never use a Giges-counter near a wax man... Mostow, the capital of Russia, is known for its dancing Kosaks... Flash! Snake Hitt man and gave him a Fein stein.

Red Y. Flunking, 5'8", 175 lbs.
Q. "What are you majoring in?"
A. "Pre Med."

Classified

LOST—Engagement ring, 15 cts. Marquis setting. Last seen in vicinity of Blue Lounge. Reward. Contact OBSERVANT, Box Number 12D.

LOST—Roommate. Last seen in vicinity of Laundry Room November 1, 1972. Last seen wearing pink flannel nightgown and carrying two laundry bags. Contact Mrs. Milner.

LOST—Two grey mice. Last seen in vicinity of Snack Bar. Reward - 1 year's supply of chocolate bars. Contact Sam Klein.

FOUND—Lost freshman in laundry room flood. Wearing muddy flannel nightgown and carrying two laundry bags. See Jessie, storage room.

WANTED—One elevator repairman. Very experienced, must like sardines. Contact the Colonel, LO 8-8400.

WANTED—Girl Friday. Typing, steno unnecessary. Must, supply own red tape. Contact Morris, LO 8-8400.

WANTED—Stern girl. Hip, groovy, far-out. Object - Matrimony. Contact 29th Street Schul.

FOR SALE—Standardized final exam crib sheets. Specially designed to fit into pocketbooks, belts, and sleeves. Contact T/W office.

FOR SALE—Xeroxed, neatly printed notes for Philo 86.1, History 71, Poli. Sci. 21, and other courses. See our complete catalogue. Reasonable prices. Used by hundreds of Stern students. See Sherry, 1C.

NOTICE—Will the person who removed the map of Europe from room 407 please contact the office of the dean.

NOTICE—The first meeting of the Young Anarchists will be held on club hour, March 21. Elections will be held.

Hurry, Girls! There's A Sale On Mini-Skirts At OHRBACHS!

And They Thought They Were Joking About The Horsemeat!