Peace and Partiality

At gigantic Garden rally

Much of world-wide significance has transpired between the close of the 1940 elections in the United States and the new school year in October. The Yeshiva student who left school for the summer felt as a student is a world torn asunder by war; he returns projected into the uncertainties of a new academic period. And with the events most keenly felt and long-awaited was the resounding defeat suffered by the Tories in the British elections, and the formation of what was hoped would be a liberal and progressive Labour government.

That hope is no longer present. The promises of the Labour Party, we have found, are as perishable and as empty as those of Winston Churchill before 1940. A dicatated and diaspora-weary Jewry has finally learned that imperialistic England remains imperialistic England whether under a Tory or Labour government. In a world free at last from the yoke of Fascism, the Jew, ironically and bitterly enough, finds that the only country in which he is legally and dangerously discriminated against is Erets Israel.

There, a past and present as constantly pointed out these facts to their fellow Zionists. These few were not surprised at the continual limitation on immigration, at the air-born reinforcements, at the attacks on colonists. But these few were called "Jewish Fascists," "terrorists," and "wave-washers of the government" by the millions who in the past emphasized that Palestine is a United Nations problem and not one for the British alone to solve. But Zionist leadership, just as Labor leadership in England, has been old and smite both in mind and body, and this idea also branded as "irresponsible and unprogressive.

The wheel, however, has made a full circle. The latest report is that the Palestine problem will either be submitted to the United Nations or will be settled by the United States and not Britain.

Let the world be warned. No compromise will be tolerated by the Yishuv. Unless Erets Israel is unreservedly made a Jewish Commonwealth with all restrictions on immigration cast aside, a situation will arise there similar to the rebellion in Ireland during and after World War I. The Yishuv will not be compromised by its leaders or by England any longer, for the issue is life or death to Jewish aspirations as a people.

There will be those who will say that it is all of no use, that we cannot fight England. This is the same opinion found behind the four walls of Yishuv itself. The answer of the Yishuv will be the same as that of the defenders of the Warsaw Ghetto and of the other millions who fought tyranny; we are fighting, and we will die if necessary, for the dignity of Israel and for the dignity of the human soul.

"Boycott the "News""

One of the most disgraceful sights in Yishuv is the "Daily News," which still manages to attract buyers within the walls of our institution. Some are attracted by the funnies; others by the sports section. The fact that this paper is attempting to undermine the entire democratic system by actively supporting organizations which make anti-Semitism a primary requisite for the Christian American does not seem to disturb the faithful followers of Dick Tracy and Little Orphan Annie.

The newspaper's campaign of distorting its program of race in an aggressive clamp down last week. John O'Donnell, the Paterson's Washington columnist, claimed that General George E. Patton Jr. was relieved of his command because Henry Morgenthau, Felix Frankfurter, and Henry Hellman had applied pressure on the late President Roosevelt to replace Patton with Jewish soldiers. The statement was denied by all those involved. It was proven that at least one soldier of Israel is not Jewish. O'Donnell resents the fact that these men are Jewish and expects them to support his last gambit, the "Boycott the "News." It is futile to point out that many Jews fought and died under Patton or that such a man as the late Chaplain Werfel was once a rabbinical student. The situation is all the more disgraceful when Jewish students encourage O'Donnell by constantly buyiing the "News."

A Welcome From The President Of Student Council

To the Students of the Freshman Class:

In the name of the Yeshiva College student body I extend to you a hearty and most sincere greeting. Our welcome to you is a more lighthearted and serious one than has been accorded freshmen in the recent past. The reason is obvious: you are the first peace-time class in years.

And yet it is precisely because of this—because you are the first peacetime class in four years—that you are entering college as one of the most critical periods in the country's history. For although the daughter is over, the crisis is not. On the contrary, the crisis has just begun. During the war the student was expected to accept, continued to accept, without question, the ultimate authority of his government. The bonds between him and his country were the ties of war. Now, you are entering college, where the ultimate authority is the bonds of peace. You will find that the war has not ended, but that it has changed. That you will find that the bonds of peace are stronger, or weaker, than the bonds of war. That you will find that the bonds of peace are stronger, or weaker, than the bonds of war.
Jewish Athletic Heroes
In The World Of Sports

One has but to browse through the pages of any sports magazine to encounter the names of countless Jewish greats who have distinguished themselves in the world of sports. Nor have they limited themselves to any one field of athletic endeavor.

Boxing is one sport in particular in which Jews have earned fame to an extent that is truly remarkable. From the days of the great heavyweight champion of the British Empire, who was one of the earliest Jewish boxers, to the present day, the Marquis De Greenwich, boxer, Benny Leonard has long been recognized as one of the greatest pound for pound, who ever drew on the featherweight.

The tale of his rise to fame and world championship is one that has inspired many a young boxer to try his hand at the sport.

Football, too, has had more than its share of Jewish stars. Benny Friedman and Harry Neuman, both of whom captained for Michigan and Illinois, earned All-America honors, the highest that the gridiron sport can bestow. Sid Luckman, who played left end for the Chicago Cardinals, Louis Suber, All-America guard at the University of Minnesota, and Benny Friedman, whose performances in the University of Illinois, are but a few of the Jewish heroes who have distinguished themselves.

Basketball is another field of activity where the Jews have made their mark. Marshall "Biggie" Goldfish, the most successful of Jewish basketball players, is a member of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and has distinguished himself in the annals of the sport.

The same is true of the track, where Jews have also made their mark. From the days of Henry "Magoo" Miller, to the present day, Jews have consistently shown their ability to excel in this sport.

On the tennis courts, too, Jews have excelled. From the days of Jack Kramer, to the present day, Jews have consistently shown their ability to excel in this sport.

The list could go on and on, but the point is that Jews have made their mark in every field of athletic endeavor.

Jewish Athletic Heroes: The Legacy Continues

The legacy of Jewish athletic heroes continues to this day. From the days of the great heavyweight champion of the British Empire, to the present day, the Marquis De Greenwich, boxer, Benny Leonard has long been recognized as one of the greatest pound for pound, who ever drew on the featherweight.
