College Enrollment Sets All-Time High
Registrar Notes Trend In Statistics, Anticipates Slight Decline In February

Registration figures recently released by Mr. Morris Silverman, registrar of Yeshiva University, showed an increase in the student body over the fall term-1950. The present total of 477 students is seventy-one more than last fall and forty-two more than the spring term, Mr. Silverman said.

"This represents the largest Yeshiva College registration since its inception, and continues a trend of increasing registration through the years," Mr. Silverman said.

The fall term-1951 also brings the largest Freshman class to Yeshiva College. The 134 incoming Freshmen and five students with advanced standings bring the entire student body of the Teach-ers Institute held on September 14, to 477 students.

At the same time, Mr. Silverman announced the promotion of Nathan Goldfarb from lecturer to associate professor of Sociology.

Prof. Chamberlain To Address I. R. S.
Dr. Waldo Chamberlain, Professor emeritus, N. Y. U. and chief consultant to the United Nations on procedural matters, will speak at this year's inaugural meeting of the Inter-Jewish Relations Society which will be held on Wednesday afternoon, November 28, 1951. Stanley Siegel '52, president of the I. R. S., announced. He also stated that both Ralph Halsey, Clark M. Eichelberger, Chairman of the American Association for the United Nations, and Leon S. Levy '52, have been tentatively arranged for the future meetings of the society.

Dr. Churgin Talks At T. I. Assembly
At the first assembly of the entire student body, of the Talmudic University Institute held on September 24, Dr. Pinchos Churgin, Dean of the Talmudic Institute discussed the 3rd Zionist Congress which he attended as president of the Mizrahi Organization and chairman of the American Committee. The Congress was held in Jerusalem from August 5 to August 29, 1951. Dr. Churgin declared that one of the most pressing problems of the new State of Israel is the need for Chalutzim from the Galil. He emphasized that since America is the largest single community of Jews in the world today, she should take an active part in fulfilling this need.

Moses Is Frosh Prexy; Harris Voted New V.P.
David Moses was elected president and Judah Harris, vice-president of the Freshman class of Yeshiva College.

"Mr. Moses was elected on the third ballot, defeating Howard Spielberg and Pinchos Churgin with 17 first ballot votes and Ralph Schulhafter with twelve, who was secondly eliminated. In the race for vice-president, Mr. Harris and Isaac Sherman each received 20 votes. Robert Rosenzweig was third with 24 and Moe Fischlin was fourth with 18. Harris won on the fourth ballot with 45 to Rosenzweig's 35. Sixty-six percent of the Freshman class voted.

Smoking Seniors Fete Flighty Freshmen With Lyrics, Laffs, Ledger, Lollies

By Sol Steinmetz

Smoking, the saying goes, is a vice when there is no one to mooch from, a virtue when the sucker offers you one, and a veritable battle royal when the smoker is ready to celebrate the smoker. One tradition tells us that it all began when some yellow freshmen resolved to insure peace between the seniors and themselves, and a peace-pipe was then passed for the purpose. Well, that tradition is all the way up the creek, be cause, as the saying goes, it mooched up with the Indians. For as sure as I smoke Havana no such thing as a peace-pipe. With all due respect, however, much more certain seems the Persian tradition that the whole route can be traced back to our childhood, when happiness was expressed by blowing soap-bubbles. Blowing . . . puffing . . . get the connection? Sure you don't, and that's why the first tradition tells you that the second tradition is just a lot of bubbles.

And as far as I'm concerned, you may call them both for a single puff from your weed.

For so far good, for an account of the origin of the purpose of the smoke-pipe, the best proof is that nothing more enlightening literary than to be present at one. Such a one was held last Monday, November 5th, at 8 p.m. when Stern's Cafeteria was all abuzz with the ten or fifteen pale freshmen that managed to crawl in. 1

In remarks overheard: "Plenty of Company (in light of ads), but where are the smokers?"

Ten tables abashed (that is, without, tablecloths), but filled with potato-chips, apples, coffee, pretzels, and soda. Somebody hit a Lucky and was nearly down and broke a fellow's toe. Soon enough, however, the Chair-man, said to me, "Rabbi Miller, take the floor for free student expression.

Personal History

Rabbi Miller, majoring in Psychology and Social Science was class valedictorian whp he graduated magna cum laude from the College of Cincinnati. In his student days he was editor of Maasiy. In 1948 he received his Master of Arts from the Hebrew Union College of Cincinnati. He was ordained in 1941 by the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary.

In 1941 Rabbi Miller accepted a position with the Kingsbridge Heights Jewish Center of which he is present spiritual leader. During World War II, he served as an Air Force Chaplain, stationed at Lawry Field, Denver, Colorado, and later in Greenland, while on leave from his congregation.

Congrats

The Commentator extends its heartfelt congratulations to Irving Schlipper '49 on his engagement to Miss Debrah HDR; to Mark Brenner '51 on his engagement to Miss Lorna Ko-ken. In 1950 Engagement List: 25 on his engagement to Miss Har-riette Weinstein; to Reuben Des-ler '50 on his engagement to Miss Phyllis Laver; to George Marcus '52 on his engagement to Miss Dorothy Stadmauer '52. '52 on his engagement to Miss Marilyn Felsen; and to Jerry Wander '53 on his marriage to Miss Hemele Steinberg.
Conflict of Values
Stressed In Movie
By Arthur Test
Little boys play with their toys, little girls with their dolls...The self, it is said, emerges from the nameless infant zero of non-identification to a world of self-definition, a "generalized other," a series of impressions, variegated and complex, yet converged upon a central societal, cultural theme. The "other" contains the essence of the approval and disapproval of the adult universe.

The self emerges from this development un-integrated and raw in spots, yet receptive and individual. A dynamic entity, the self mutates as it matures, and acquires values, traits, the culture, and the self of serve. From a maslomst of values, an ordering principle emerges, a hierarchy to be imposed upon the progressive development of the person. From this, the mental age of the person forms.

For George Eastman, of the street corner shop of the charity mission, of a poverty of spirit, of a hungering for which there is no nourishment, of a vacuum, the movie "The Place in the Sun" is a first experience of this kind. For George Eastman, of many such others, it is a beginning of the beginning of the dim hint of hope, the pale flicker of a glimmer of the dreamer's dream.

A Human Goal
To be sure, Angela Vickers, the rich girl, is the harbingers of tragedy. Yet, in the movie version, as distinct from the Dreiser novel, she turns a knife in the quick-cut throat of conflict by her own extent of destruction, rather than by her own weakness. Here, she belongs to two of George's worlds. In his mystical, variegated world, she is Angels, human, whose love is surging in its warmth and reality. In his dazzled world of grasping dreams, she is but a goal; she is like a punchbowl, a homey tale, the pulsing "Vickers" sign outside his window, now bright and alive, bitterly, achingly so, and now peaceful to the eye.

It is a dynamics which throbs throughout the drama, as vividly real as the shift from the frenzied whirling dance to the calmness and drabness of a homey table. At the dangerous scintillation of the Eastman home, the Place in the Sun. It is a dynamics which may be experienced in the radio of Alice Tripp's dingy room, in the joyous roar of the Vickers' speedboat, and in the feverish search for a way out.

Tragedy of Conflict
Money. I maintain that above all else, the tragedy is that of money. Conflict is. Money alone would not cause George to write in indelible agony, sweat and shout in the boat on his way to the airport. Money alone would say, "Here it is. No, but George will not have it so. Alice is his past, she is all that is left to him of the street corner shop, of the community, the homey song is home and peace, bumbling, yet, to George, choking. Her humanity, her very terrified and systemically human, her life, is a contradiction of the street. Alice is past, for the effortless and easy to frustrate and destroy hopes and desirers.

Commentator Adviser
For the first time in the history of Commentator, it now finds itself with an adviser. This fact does not inspire us with a feeling of relief at having shelled part of the responsibility for what appears here in print. It is rather with a feeling that we have not yet greeted this new arrangement. For a newspaper which has since its creation existed as an independent and courageous organ of the student body, it is difficult to accept even this limited curtailment of freedom.

Rabbi Miller, our adviser, has been found acceptable both to the administration and student representatives. His job is of necessity a subjective one. He will find that many times he will not please all the parties concerned with an issue printed in Commentator. Should the arrangement fail, it will not be due to any shortcomings in the work by our adviser, but rather in the impossibility of the existence of an honest advisory system.

Library Troubles
Most everybody who has had to make use of the college library has been led to the conclusion that the library does not keep up to date on recently published books. We found that a number of outstanding books are taken out of circulation for an excessive period of time, which books should be on the shelves, and which books should not be. We made a preliminary survey to determine just what the trouble is and here are some of the major sore-spots.

1.) Many vital books that students need are not available when a student requests a book that is neither a text nor an assigned reading the library usually doesn't have it. In such a case the student must get the sponsorship of an instructor to obtain the book.
2.) The library is badly understaffed so that many of the books which the library does have are not available to students. Each book that is aquired by the library must be processed and catalogued before it can be actually used and thus that have to be rebound are taken out of circulation for an excessive period of time. The problem of processing periodicals is extremely acute.
3.) The card-catalogue is overcrowded and consequent- ly doesn't permit adequate cross-referencing. The problem of obtaining new card-catalogues is financial, and the problem of providing the cross-references is manpower.
4.) The library does not keep up to date on recently published books. We found that a number of outstanding books were not available because the library could eventually receive them as a donation.
5.) A closer look at the line between the Judaica, found in the Pollack library and the Gottesman library, does not exist. A student is liable to vacillate between the libraries before a librarian will admit that the book in question is in his library.

The View of the difficulties enumerated above, we are led to inescapable conclusion that the primary source of the trouble is financial; it is not the librarians' fault. The budget of the library just isn't sufficient to meet the library's needs in terms of acquiring new books, catalogues, and seating facilities. The shortage of available help could also be remedied by paying students for working in the library. We also suggest that a survey of the library be made by competent people in various fields and that they make definite suggestions as to which books should be obtained.

It should not be necessary for us to stress the importance of a well-organized, efficient, and comprehensive library in the educational structure of the college. We do feel, however, that the library has been neglected. We urge, therefore, that further and accelerated steps be taken to bring our library up to par.

Rabbi Avrech To Attend To Alumni Affair

Rabbi Abraham Avrech, Chairman of the Yeshiva University Athletic Association, was appointed this week to head a trip which is to be held in February. Rabbi Avrech is in his second year as a member of the Athletic Association. The appointment was made by the President, Dr. Aaron T. Ginzberg.

On this committee, Rabbi Avrech will be joined by Rabbi Joseph Palley ’45, Edward Jakubovitz ’53, Athletic Manager, and Sheldon Rodoff ’44, sports editor of the Commentator. It will be the function of this committee to insure a well-planned and interesting trip for the alumni.

The price of admission to the trip will be $50.00 for the alumni and $75.00 for the students. The trip will be self-supporting.

The alumni will be appointed chairman of the Lost and Found bureau which has been established.

Victor Solomon ’41 and Zechariah C. Cooper ’43 have been appointed as representatives to the Inter-Yeshiva Student Council.

Rabbi Avrech continued, "The alumni are interested in the basketball games, and I am sure they will be interested in the athletic program as well." He brought to their attention the following:

Full Board Named By Masmid Editor

Joseph Erushalmi ’52 and Manfred Fulda ’52 were appointed literary editors, Isaac Gelman ’53 and Norman S. Shapiro ’52, business managers, and Morton Richer ’53, photography editor of the Commentator. Barry Kaplan ’53 and Herbert Witkin ’51 will head the Masmid Committee. It is to be hoped that the alumni will participate in the activities of this committee.

Student Draft Tests To Be Held At Y. U.

Yeshiva will act as a center for a new series of Selective Service College Qualification Tests which will be given on Thursday, December 13, 1951 and Thursday, April 24, 1952. Dr. Moshe L. Isaacson, Dean of Students, announced.

The tests will be administered by the Selective Service System, which has more than one thousand centers throughout the U. S., may be obtained by the registrant at any local draft board office. A letter of recommendation from the Selective Service advisor advised students whose academic year will end in January, 1952 to apply for the December tests so that they will have scores in their files when the local boards receive them.

Dr. Isaacson urges all students at Yeshiva to take the exam during the December test period, if they are not previously done so. Seniors accepted for the December tests should be freed of all immediate draft responsibility if they stand in the upper half of their classes, or make average grades of seventy-five or better on the test.

"To be eligible to apply for the test, General Hershey pointed out, a student must: (1) intend to request deferment as a student, (2) be pursuing a full-time college course; and (3) must not previously have received a draft card. The application should be made to the Selective Service College Qualification Test.

Commenting on the 1951 conscription system in the Universal Military Training and Service Act authorizing Preliminary Education Draft, he said that the randomNumber of any person's activity and study is necessary for a national security and national health, safety, and interest, General Hershey said, "We are faced with an increasing number of experts who are going to want the country, and it is in the not just those interested in the draft, that we must, therefore, think in long range terms. I believe the country has to be aware of the situation, to defer those who are interested in the draft, instead of gambling on those with lower capacity."

Dr. Churgin spoke at length in his remarks, but no information is available. However, at five to one, what should have been his lunch hour was nearing its completion and we were not yet quite finished. Dr. Churgin rose to go to his next engagement. So, our conversation continued as we walked through the corridors, but at the entrance to Room 442... well, we couldn't overdo things, you know!

Get-Together, Tuesday, To Welcome Students

A Kabalat Panim for all new students of the Yeshiva will be held on Tuesday night, November 14, 8 p.m. in Kalla Hall. Speakers and a musical program have been arranged.

Faculty Notes

Dr. Hyman B. Grintstein, professor of Jewish History, opened the Yeshiva History Symposium at Station WFVE. In this connection, a copy of Dr. Grintstein's book, "The Rise of the Jewish Community of New York," was presented to the symposium.

Dr. Bruno Kisch, professor of Chemistry, read a paper at the annual meeting of the American Physiological Society in Cleveland, which has been destined at the Masmid Committee.

Nahum Shulman ’49 and Ger­ald Sadeghi ’52 have been designated in all Yeshiva classes.

America must learn to hide her valorized colors, to despise the selfishness of all men and morality. Little girls may covet dolls, and little boys may play with toys, but big kids, as they mature, cannot afford to do so, for, in the last analysis, they play with the souls of humanity."
The Honor List

The Academy News

The Honor List

The Academy News

It has been said that an artistic creation reaches its height when a perfection of form and content is effected. In like manner, an opera to be truly great must be a meeting-ground for the best in music and the theater. "The Dybbuk" claims to greatness so readily and convincingly that it is incapable of realizing their subject. It overwhelmed their abilities.

"The Dybbuk" needs a genius to bring it to fulfillment. There is a wealth of spirits lying around in this drama of Jewish life.

The Story of Chanana

A girl and boy, Leah and Chanana, fall in love at the young age of fourteen. (Of course, in doing this the two fathers, beloved friends, will have to face the mess next day; and the community, including the town council, will be biological opponents.) Soon, though, the two families are separated and when Leah and Chanana meet again years later and fall in love, it is because Leah misunderstands the strength of their relationship. Leah's father betroths his daughter to a young man, but Chanana disregards his agreement. Chanana, while studying the Law, becomes poisoned by an evil spirit and dies. On her wedding day, Leah is seized by her dead lover's spirit, a spirit which follows her. Chanana's spirit is then forcibly and unceremoniously transferred to her by David. She dies immediately and in this way joins her predestined lover. It is interesting to note that the majority of professional reviewers expressed great liking for the opera. This may indicate that for the non-Jewish public "The Dybbuk" was very satisfactory. Of those of us who are in a position to be familiar with such settings and the fact that the characters are Jewish, will be followed was hardly a depression. Music and good feelings simply pierced the air, as the audience experienced a double-Burack duet, as well as the band, performed some American and European classics with precision and self-possession of successful professionals. Two freshmen, Dave Mostofsky, the College's expert saxophonist, and Allan Gewurtz on the accordion, contributed as never before to the atmosphere for the "Dybbuk", bringing forth series of top-notch imitations.

The large audience now joined in the rendition of "Hiru LAMED". It was really an aesthetic experience to hear the spirit-injected rookies thrill the theatre. The melody harmoniously. The hop, however, run not over; the threat of over-sentimentality was avoided in the presentation of "Good Night Irene" and "You Are My Sunshine."

What an evening! The venue was the old-day yoyos and five-year-plan place. The audience was in the line of mature amusements, and we have been charged with everything from irresponsibility to malicious intent. But for us, it was just a place where saints became sinners, and serious students were prodded by subtle suggestion. Thus, for the seniors, it was Purim the whole year around.

Now, all is changed. As the college grows, the personal contact between students is lost, and the quaint touch of being robbed in the school newspaper is out of place. We hope, however, that even when our student body numbers in the thousands, there will be some who will look, slightly envious of the days when we were a small school.

Of Mice And Men

We note with interest and call your attention to the small item on page 6 concerning the appointment of a guard on the premises. We feel that larger enrollment in weightlifting, boxing, and judo classes would serve the same purpose.

The Academic News

We note with pleasure the appearance of a printed "Academy News", not only because it reminds us of The Commentary, but because of the sparkling and intelligent fashion in which the paper is constructed and written. The serious vein in which problems of high school and Jewish life are handled, demonstrates clearly that a newspaper of such technical excellence is only a fitting vessel for the talents of the Talmudical Academy. Let us hope that the administration sees fit to see that their efforts are not hampered by financial limitations.

The Honor List

The Commentary welcomes the announcement that a Dean's Honor List will henceforth be issued at the end of each term. However, we cannot help but express our disappointment at the standards for the list. As it stands, a student must attain a 3.4 average to be listed, which means that a student must rate an A in half of his grades. Our opposition to this necessary high average is twofold. First, most colleges require only a straight B average. Secondly, those students who maintain a 3.4 or higher average during their college careers, receive their deserved honor at graduation. It is our opinion, therefore, that the required average for the Honor List should be lowered to a three or straight B average, and allow for no mark lower than C.

Meet the Seniors

The "Meet The Seniors" column will no longer appear in The Commentary. This column has always been the center of heated controversy, and we have been charged with everything from irresponsibility to malicious intent. But for us, it was just a place where saints became sinners, and serious students were prodded by subtle suggestion. Thus, for the seniors, it was Purim the whole year around.

The Award Problem

Much discussion is caused annually at graduation by a relatively indiscriminate and subjective distribution of awards. In the past, heads of departments were empowered with the right of decision. There were no fixed standards of qualification.

The administration has finally decided to set up a system of standards. To accomplish this a faculty committee has been gathered up to draw up a list of conditions. Before acting, they have seen fit to ask the Committee on Student-Faculty Relations for its proposals. The students, through Student Council, have been requested to submit their suggestions.

We, as students, welcome this for two reasons. First, that this problem is finally being dealt with properly. Secondly, and of utmost importance, is that the student body is being consulted on a problem which concerns them. This is a most gratifying step forward. May we continue in the same direction toward better relations.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor,

I am taking this opportunity here to point out that the system of elections used by the Y. U. Student Council. As a freshman, my first encounter with the multi-talented George Foil, informed me that the system was in the recent freshmen elections.

"The Dean informed students knows that under this system it is possible, and in a close election improbable, that the winning minority of the first place ballots may win the election on the strength of last-ballots votes cast for him by those who desire his candidate least of all those candidates.

It is also interesting to note that in this particular election, for Student Council, not yet realizing the importance of student elections, failed to vote. The totals of 94 presidential and 90 vice-presidential votes cast out of a possible 141 attest to this fact.

These defects in our system can and should be remedied. The proportioned representation system could be replaced by a system of runoff elections, for-run-offs in case of ties. For freshmen, a member of the S. C. Executive Board could inform them of proportions at the importance of voting. Elections, and at the same time by the enthusiastic spontaneous supporters.

Theatre Review

After the drama came comedy as the featured attraction of the evening, "Dakotas". This was on the verge of being run out of time by the enthusiastic audience, but the multi-talented George Foil, who went on to lead a professional career, was able to present the audience with a vivid picture of the tragic last scene of the play. After the drama came comedy in the form of a magic show performed by Mr. Wolofsky, who introduced the entertainment was getting better and better.

The Freshmen will play the Sophomores Tuesday night, Nov. 15, at 8 p.m. in the new Yeshiva High School gymnasium in the cur- tain raiser of the 1951-52 intra- mural basketball season. The game is slated to get under way at 8 p.m. sharp. All members of the Yeshiva team, as well as those of the Sophomore class, are eligible to participate in the intra-mural clash, excluding members of the varsity squad. The only requirements are those of proper attire; sweaters and shorts.

This year, the spacious gym at George Washington H. S. has been leased for intra-mural use, assuring safer conditions for the players. As usual a close race is expected, with the defending champions, the class of ’53, trying to duplicate last year’s victory. It would be possible to repeat the practices instituted last year of awarding certificates, set medals. With proper spirit and attendance this year could be a banner year in intra-mural his- tory. There is plenty for all to re- plete with exciting games.

The remainder of the schedule for the fall semester is: Juniors vs. Seniors -- Nov. 20. Frosh vs. Juniors -- Nov. 27. Sophos vs. Seniors -- Dec. 4. Junors vs. Sophos -- Dec. 11. Frosh vs. Seniors -- Dec. 18. In case of attrition, replacements are to be referred to the S. C. Bulletin Board. All suggestions or questions are to be referred to the intramural chairman.

Coach Arthur Tauber announced the tentative Fencing schedule for the 1951-52 season. The Y. U. Duellists will be pitted mainly against the University of Pennsylvania, a 4-2 record. A noteworthy addition to the schedule is the match with Syracuse University, against whom Yeshiva will open their season at home on Dec. 7. The Yeshiva Gymnasium will once again serve as the fencers’ home court.

The purpose of the council is to tap the various interests of the intra-mural program which may include all college students. In the past many college series have been sponsored involving in such a project were left to a non-representative com- mittee. Out of this situation arose many conferences and interviews, the result being that the athletic council will raise intra-mural sports to a deserved place in the general Yeshiva extra-curricular picture. All college presidents are urgently requested to appoint athletic representatives to a committee so that a successful intra- mural program may be effected immediately.

SUMMER SPOON MEDALS

Each of the eight summer spoon medals is awarded to the winner of an individual event. The medals are awarded to a representative of the winning team at the closing banquet.

Placement Bureau Offices Relocated

The student placement service is now located in the office of the Community Service Bureau in Room 129 in the Graduate Hall, it was announced by Manfred Pudla, '52, chairman of the Intra-Yeshiva Student Council.

It was also announced that the members of the two placement committees will be in the office every afternoon from two to three p.m. The members are: Jack Adelman, '53, Manfred Fulda, '52, Otto Newman, '54 and Isadore Tennenberg, '52. The committee meets once weekly to set policy and to give priority ratings.

All jobs given out are reported to the office of the Bursar and to the Hebrew Department which the applicant attends. The registrars of the Teacher's Institute and of the Yeshiva and the Bursar can recommend students in financial duress for priority ratings.

Y.U. Guard

President Delkin announced today that a guard will be appointed to patrol the University Buildings from 4 p.m. in the afternoon until 12 Midnight.

Scripta To Be Published By Yeshiva Math Dept.

The March-June, 1951, issue of Scripta Mathematica has just been published, announced Professor Jekuthiel Ginsburg, editor of Scripta. The magazine includes an article on: "Six Female Mathematicians," and others. Scripta Mathematica will also sponsor a new series of lectures at the Joan of Arc Junior High School, the first of which was held on Tuesday, October 20.
