

STUDENTS HAIL UNITED FRONT OPPOSING WAR

Four Resolutions Adopted By Students Urging World Peace

MASS IN SYNAGOGUE

Pledge Support Of Groups Seeking Prevention Of Jingoism

BY GERSHON J. FEIGON

Pledging themselves to "the preaching and dissemination of the grim facts of war," 300 students massed themselves in the Student Synagogue last Monday, and enthusiastically participated in the Nation-wide Mobilization for Peace.

Resolutions were introduced by the principal student speaker, Moses I. Feuerstein '36, Editor of The Commentator, calling for: support of legislation decreeing the R.O.T.C. optional in colleges, "our unalterable opposition to loans, credits, or secondary war material being sent to belligerents", an opportunity to relate our education to such problems, and "as future rabbis and teachers of American Jewish communities, to utilize our positions as a media through which we may spread a true understanding, and thus an eradication of the real causes of war."

NEWARK COUNCIL HOLDS NEW LECTURE SERIES

Mayor Delivers Address At Initial Meeting

A course of ten lectures on Jewish traditions and culture to be given over a period of 20 weeks is being presented in Newark, N. J. under the auspices of Yeshiva College Sponsors Committee (Newark Branch) in cooperation with Yeshiva College.

These extension lectures are for the expressed purpose of emphasizing the traditions and ideals of the Jewish people, as a vital part of the equipment of the educated Jew.

The lectures are being given by men of distinction and achievement in their special fields. The first lecture was given by Dr. Leo Jung on Wednesday, November 6, 1935 on the topic "Foundation of Judaism". Amongst the prominent people who will speak are: Dr. Bernard Revel, Dr. Pinkhos Churgin, Dr. David Macht, and others.

Hon. Meyer C. Ellenstein, Mayor of Newark, N. J., gave

HEALTH SERVICE HAS NEW OFFICE

Infirmary Now Occupying Modern Quarters

The Yeshiva College Health Service moved last week from the second floor office to larger and modernly equipped quarters on the fifth floor of Riets Hall in preparation for this winter's sick students.

The new quarters contain among their modern conveniences a sick-room, fully equipped with lavatories, and such conveniences as signal buzzers. There is an ample supply of medicals, a sterilizing machine, and operating tables.

Other rooms in the hospital include a medical examination room, an office containing complete health records of those students examined, which will be used by Dr. Swick, director of the Health Service. A student member of the medical committee is to be a permanent resident of the hospital and will care for sick patients.

The medical committee has already examined the Freshman class and the new high school students. Plans are being discussed to raise funds to further enlarge the Health Service equipment.

STUDENT MEETING HEARS DEMBOWITZ GIVE PLANS FOR COMING SEMESTER

Text Book Loan Service To Be Instituted; Loan Fund Capital Gets Increase

The establishment of a Students' Text Book Loan Association was promised by Morris Dembowitz '36, president of the Yeshiva College Student Council, at an assembly held last Monday afternoon while outlining for the student body the various facilities offered by Yeshiva College to its undergraduates. The Loan Association will acquire a stock of text books from upper classmen and will loan these out by the term for a nominal fee.

The Loan Fund has been reorganized this year with a capital of $100 and will make loans to undergraduates to the extent of $5. Hyman Aronoff '36, chairman of the fund, will arrange loans to students of the Teachers Institute, and Eliezer Goldman '37 will take care of the Yeshiva students.

Free tickets to various events throughout the city will be available through Marvin Hurewitz '36, who is in charge of the Concert Bureau. Student cards for theatre ticket discounts are also procurable through the Concert Bureau.

The Employment Bureau, tentatively headed by Gershon J. Feigon '36, will attempt to place students in as many positions as possible. The student body was requested to cooperate with the bureau in establishing contacts with prospective employers.

COMMENTATOR POLICIES COMMENDED BY ALUMNI

SOY IMPERILED, KATZ DECLARES

Students' Cooperation Held Necessary

The S. O. Y. is in serious danger of being abolished, according to Leon Katz '37, recently elected president of the organization. Mr. Katz stated that unless an appreciable change of attitude on the part of the student body towards the S. O. Y. would be evident soon, the organization would be forced out of existence.

Mr. Katz, who originally refused to run because he felt that in a critical period such as the S. O. Y. is passing through at present, a president was needed who could devote his entire time and energy to the organization, finally consented to run only at the request of Dr. Revel.

As president of the S. O. Y. two years ago, Mr. Katz succeeded in arranging a variety of extra-curricular activities including a theatre benefit. However, Mr. Katz said, "I cannot promise any extra-curricular activity before I get the fullest extent of cooperation from the entire student body."

Elected with Mr. Katz were Hyman R. Friedman '35, vice-president; Louis Werfel '37, secretary; Nathan Taragin '36, Dining Room Manager; and Hyman Bloom '38, C.C.N.Y., editor of Hedenu.

Members Pick Winterset; College To Receive Proceeds

At a meeting of the Alumni Association of Yeshiva College, held last Sunday afternoon in the dormitory-Social Hall, plans were perfected for a theatre party to be held Tuesday evening, December 10, at the Martin Beck Theatre on West 45th Street, where Burgesse Meredith and Richard Bennet are starring in "Winterset", one of the current Broadway successes.

Israel Upbin '32, general chairman in charge of the theatre party, said, "Inasmuch as the entire proceeds of the affair will go to the College, we expect the full cooperation of the undergraduate student body in order to make it a success." Isaac Goldberg '33, secretary of the association, will be in charge of the sale of tickets, which may be procured from any alumnus.

ADMINISTRATION PLANS SMOKER FOR FRESHMEN

Faculty And Students To Meet Informally

A smoker, given by the members of the faculty of the College in honor of the incoming Freshmen will be held on Sunday, December 1, in the Social Hall at nine o'clock. This was announced by Dr. Safir, dean of Yeshiva College, who is representing the faculty in making the necessary arrangements for the affair.

To Be Held Dec. 1

The purpose of this smoker is to permit instructors and students to know one another personally. It will be in the nature of a "get-acquainted" affair.

Dr. Safir, rather than set the date for this affair himself, put the matter up to the Freshman class, which chose the date most convenient to the members of the class, December 1.

This will be the second smoker to be given in honor of the incoming Freshmen. The first one was given by Hapoel Hamizrachi on November 17.

Hapoel Hamizrachi Greet Freshmen With Billows

Of Smoke, Cake, Speakers, Dances, and a Veteran

BY S. KOOP REHD

Amid billowy clouds of smoke, curling and floating their way to the ceiling and walls of the Dormitory Social Hall on Sunday night, of that never to be forgotten Nov. 11th, 250 students of all ages, sizes and departments gathered to attend the first meeting of the academic year of the Hapoel Hamizrachi, given in honor of the Freshman class to add to their knowledge of Miz-rachi ideology to drink tea and eat cake, to smoke cigarettes "on the house", and to be entertained by the Old Maestro himself—none other than "Shamai" Kurtzman and his gang of merry music-makers.

Mr. Moses I. Feuerstein '36, Editor of the Commentator, who acted as toastmaster, utilized his basso profundo voice to good advantage, and bestowed the title of "honorary member of the boys" upon Bernard Lander '36, President of the society, in introducing him to the assemblage. Lander welcomed the guests and new members of the organization and thanked the members of the Arrangements committee for their co-operation in general, and those delicious (Yum Yum) cakes and cookies (especially those cookies), in particular.

Benjamin Kreitman '39, President of the Freshman class was the next speaker, and in a voice 22 fathoms below sea level, thanked the organization and its members for their efforts, and voiced the importance of the society as a means of enlightenment to the Jewish Youth on Contemporary Jewish problems.

Samuel Adelman '38, did his bit by singing a song, after which Morris Dembowitz, (Ye President of Student Council), pledged his support and co-operation with the organization. (For a past Agudah member to say this, means the organization is making headway).

Representatives for the Alumni were Joseph Kaminetsky '32, David Petegorsky '35—Simsowitz Administration—and that favorite veteran, Louis "Pop" Simowitz '76 (not 1876 but 1776, one of the signers of the Constitution, not the S. O. Y. Constitution, if there be such a thing, but the Constitution Hearst is so fond of). Simowitz formed an impressive sight as he sat there with two canutes to support him (he lost a leg in

A System, Finally?

Now that the last academic year for the seniors at Yeshiva College is well under way, the thoughts of many a member classman are focused on that day of days—Commencement. Long before the day arrives, however, these same dreamers will have awakened to the realization that "there's many a slip 'twixt cup and lip."

Particularly will the financial aspects of Commencement consume a great deal of hitherto carefree moments. Ways and means of financing the grand exodus have always given their shares of worry to the supposedly blasé senior.

Living as we do in an age of rugged individualism, The Commentator finds that much as it would like to be of some material assistance, society has relegated the sacred opportunity of solving these problems to the individual ingenuities of each respective class member. So, despite our good intentions, must the perennial worries of the senior class go on unabated.

But there is another aspect of graduation which is not in the hands of the senior or the student body. We are referring to the presentation of awards at commencement exercises, and, while discussing awards, the division of scholarships for the entire college year.

Till now, Commencement Day has always aroused much more excitement at Yeshiva than at any other college, and for a perfectly logical reason. Whereas at all other institutions only the natural jubilation of the great event is experienced, at Yeshiva there is a decidedly added tension, for it is at that ceremony that the graduates actually discover what medals and prizes are to be given and who will be the lucky ones chosen as the recipients.

The past few years have witnessed a steady growth of resentment against this arbitrary procedure. Nor have the objections been raised by those students physically unable to undergo the emotional strains of the moment. It is rather the feeling of the past few senior classes. And it would be no exaggeration to state that the reactions of the entire student body are the same in regard to the secret presentation of scholarships for yearly tuition and board.

With this sentiment we are perfectly in accord. We can see no reason why the awards and scholarships should be given in such a manner, and feel that the objections are wrong only insofar as they have not been presented to the Administration with enough vigor.

If these medals, prizes and scholarships are awarded solely on merit—and this should be the only consideration—we feel that as students, we have a right to ask that all the awards up for competition be posted at the beginning of each college year with the respective requirements. Such has been the procedure adopted in every college of note, which prints the requirements for all awards in the yearly catalogue.

Student Council should pass a motion at its next session to form a committee with the purpose of arranging with the Administration for the publication of this data. Prompt action by council members should succeed in establishing, once and for all, a definite system in the presentation of all academic medals, prizes, and scholarships.

Congratulations... BUT

Reports from the administration have reached us that two additions have been made to the college faculty, one in the language department and the other in the philosophy. Though such news is usually a sign of the college growth and consequently a source of joy to us as students, on this occasion we find our reactions marred by a variety of mingled feelings.

To Dr. Belkin, who will be the new Greek instructor, we wish to offer a hearty welcome. As a man who has established a name for himself in both secular and learned Jewish circles Dr. Belkin is ideally suited to become a member of the Yeshiva College faculty. The administration is to be commended on its choice, for it is men of this type who have a real understanding of the ideals of Yeshiva that should be attracted to this institution.

BUT—the addition of a new instructor to the department of philosophy we can only view with dismay. Until the present, the policy of the administration has always been to offer only those courses which were absolutely essential for a degree. Though there was a great need for additional faculty men in many departments of the college, appeals from the student body have brought the constant reply that the financial status of the institution has made it impossible for the past few years and the present, at least, to realize any such additions.

Understanding the difficulties facing the Administration, the student body has constantly acted with irreproachable courtesy and understanding. Never was a petition for a new subject pushed by any student delegation when convinced of the inability of the college to carry the financial burden.

If ever the co-operation of the student body with the Administration in this matter was brought into direct relief, it was this term. Two groups of students, one far above the required registration number and the other fulfilling it, both petitioned for courses in Education and Embryology respectively. Nor were these courses that merely charmed the intellectual predilections of the applicants. Both were absolutely necessary to the future careers of these students. One is required by the Board of Education for a teacher's license, while the other would have probably played a decisive part in the admission of those Yeshiva students applying to medical schools.

Yet, realizing all the implications of the student petitions, the presentation of these courses was refused by the authorities. In spite of the tremendous issues involved, the students this time, too, withdrew their petitions after an appeal by the Administration to the effect that the College was not yet able, because of financial reasons, to absorb these courses.

After thus showing, not theoretically, but actually, an ideal co-operation with the Administration involving such vital sacrifices as no college has any right to expect from its undergraduates, the student body had every reason to believe that any expansion in courses would take in those subjects so necessary to the students. Surely, we were perfectly justified in our convictions that the Administration would reciprocate by cooperating with us at their first possible opportunity.

It is for these reasons that we find ourselves utterly unable to comprehend the recent appointment of another instructor to the philosophy department. Not only had the students never appealed for such an addition, but during all the crossfire of student criticism leveled at different times during the past few years against nearly every department in the college the philosophy courses have been among the few that have remained unseathed. In fact the interest manifested in the presentations and contents of these courses has developed so rapidly that the department is increasingly being regarded by upper classmen and alumni alike as the outstanding one in the college.

That expansion, which the Administration realizes is so vital in certain courses, should be wasted on a department which has the least need for new blood appears unintelligible to us. Whether the Administration had any ulterior motive in appointing an additional Philosophy instructor, we do not know.

But if it did, the mere recollection of the vital sacrifices undergone by the most promising and talented students of this institution for the welfare of the college should have been sufficient to arouse far more than a minimum of Administration appreciation, which would be to gladly drop the ulterior motives in the face of present exigencies.

We believe that in view of the sterling record of unselfish student co-operation in the past, the Administration should feel morally bound to reconsider this new addition to the Philosophy department, and, if at all possible, to expand along the lines so vital to us.

We earnestly trust that this issue will receive the sincere attention of the Administration and that the spirit of cooperation established by the student body with the authorities will not be disturbed because of any difficulties in rectifying this misunderstanding.

IN THE EDITOR'S MAIL BOX

To the Editor of The Commentator.

Dear Sir:
The institution of a class in Greek was hailed by many Yeshiva College students this year as a very welcome addition to the college curriculum. Nevertheless, disappointment has followed in the wake of earlier satisfaction.

The uncertainty and postponement that marked the first several weeks of lectures served to dampen enthusiasm to no little degree. Change of instructors after the course had been inaugurated was not calculated to stimulate flagging zeal. However, after the appointment of Dr. Reinhold, the students of the class were reassured and were looking forward to an intensive, profitable study of the Greek language. The scholarship of the instructor together with his wide teaching experience and pedagogic skill began to build on what had promised to be the ruins of an ill-fated venture.

Just at a time when the course was beginning to assume some semblance of stability, a third instructor has taken his place in this passing show of fleeting faces. Though the attainments of the latest instructor in the field of both Jewish and Secular scholarship merit our highest respect, his teaching experience has been limited and his pedagogy is yet an unproved quality. It is both unwise and impractical, we feel, to experiment further with a course so important as is this one, at a time, when the course was about to be crystallized and to assume form. The entire class, without exception, has urged the retention of Dr. Reinhold.

That the latest addition to the department of Hellenic literature would be a most decided asset to the Hebrew and Talmudic departments of the institution is the unanimous opinion of everyone. That his appointment as instructor of Greek is as desirable, is less certain.

The plea of the students, I feel, should not be disregarded in this matter.

MORRIS DEMBOWITZ,
President of Students' Organization

To the Editor of The Commentator.

Dear Sir:
In the name of Hapoel Hamizrachi of Yeshiva College I wish to express my thanks to the following people who helped to make our smoker the brilliant success it was:

1. To the Toastmaster and speakers for their inspiring words.
2. To Mr. and Mrs. Gruber of the Cafeteria for their kind cooperation in lending the necessary utensils for serving tea.
3. To Mr. Purvis for his help in getting the necessary chairs and tables.
4. To Lou Muss, "Red" Kasten, Eliezer Goldman, and "Zach" Gellman for those delicious cakes and cookies.
5. To the fifty-odd students who volunteered their nickels and dimes to cover the expenses of the affair.
6. To "Maestro" Kurtzman, Sam Adelman, and "Chazan" Cooper for their entertaining singing.
7. To Nat Taragin, Student Dining-Room Manager, for taking charge of the Cafeteria while we used it to prepare the tea.
8. To the Co-op Store for supplying us with cigarettes at cost price.
9. To all other fellows who, each in his own way, helped towards the success of this Smoker.

LOUIS WERFEL,
Sec'y of Hapoel Hamizrachi of Yeshiva College.

We learn with deep sorrow and regret of the passing of Mr. Berzon, father of Rabbi Bernard L. Berzon '35, who was called to eternal rest on Friday, November 15, and of the passing of Mrs. Finerman, mother of Aaron S. Finerman '33, who was called to her eternal reward on Saturday, November 16.

We extend to Rabbi Berzon and to Mr. Finerman, on behalf of the student body, our heartfelt condolences in their bereavement.

ON THE SIDELINES

By RED KASTEN (Pinchhitting for Bill Kaufman)

PROGRESS

Four years ago the Yeshiva College varsity had engaged many ordinary clubs in basketball games with relative success. Only an individual with a fantastic imagination would have prophesied the active participation in intercollegiate sports within two years by Yeshiva College. Even today imaginative students predict an outstanding varsity whose latent abilities will be fully developed and foretell the acquisition of all the finer qualities of a well coached squad. Yet predictions, as expectations, are irrational, Dr. Litman will remind me. Nevertheless, even an unemotional and scientific analysis will warrant this prediction.

It is unanimously acceded that the present varsity is the strongest thus far although many sceptical "connoisseurs" claim that the pinnacle has been reached, and subsequent teams will be inferior. They base their presumption upon the fact that experienced veterans as Aronoff, Krieger, and Muss are graduating—thus leaving but two active players, Levy and Mager, to form the core of future varsities.

Although this is true we must not overlook the fact that conditions in Yeshiva College as well as in the universe are in a constant flux. A Junior Varsity was organized this term which is being coached regularly by Hy Aronoff. They have a schedule independent of the varsity and will gain much experience. It can be expected that a few outstanding players among these plebes will have sufficiently developed themselves to be eligible for positions on the regular varsity. However we must consider that they will not have acquired that degree of skill to balance the loss of the veterans.

This consideration will be granted if the formation of the J.V. were the sole factor of the flux. The potentialities of our newcomers are inferior to those of our seniors. Furthermore, with all other factors remaining constant the maximum point of our cubs will not even equal the maximum point of this year's varsity. However, with the increased investment of additional factors all subsequent squads can be assured that they will by far outclass the varsity of 1935-36. This can be achieved only through the medium of a coach. This marked difference of latent abilities necessitates the acquisition of a coach if the same or greater progress is to be expected from our Basketball varsities. Capable, coaching offers the team visible smoothness, polish, and dexterity in its manipulations on the court.

The idea of a coach is not an impractical dream. Your scribe has confronted himself with all the possible difficulties and after much serious thought has arrived

Outplay Upper Classmen As Burstein, Gellman Star

In the biggest upset of the season, an inspired Freshman team completely overwhelmed an apparently strong Junior quintet by the startling score of 19-7, on the Yeshiva court. The game was featured by the brilliant pass-work and co-operation of Burstein and Kleizman. Throughout the game, the ball passed between these two mainstays of the team, Burstein usually tallying the points.

Action started immediately when Gellman getting the jump from Crandell, tapped the ball to Kleiman, who in turn passed to Burstein, the latter tallying the first two points of the game. The Frosh scored three rapid goals in succession before Kaplan tossed the ball through the strings for the first Junior score. The second quarter saw a letdown in the hot pace set by the Frosh, but the Juniors were unable to take advantage, the half ending with a score of 10-3.

The third quarter was merely a repetition of the first, with Kleiman and Burstein performing thrilling shots and passes. The Junior Five came out for the fourth quarter determined to stave off certain defeat, but they were unable to penetrate the marble-wall defense of the Freshmen. The game ended with the final score 19-7.

High scoring honors of the evening was captured by Burstein of the Frosh with 8 points. Gellman was next with 4, followed by Milians of the Frosh and Singer of the Juniors with 3 apiece.

Basketball Varsity Shows Power In Mopping Up Engelberg's Quintet

By BILL KAUFMAN

There is no longer the slightest doubt that Yeshiva has one of the strongest basketball teams in its history.

Striking through the air, surging across the court, making breaks and taking the fullest advantage of them, the Blue and White tide swept aside the hand-picked, but strong Engelberg "All Star" quintet in its initial performance of the season last Thursday night. The score was 21-16.

Varsity Trails

The game was not always on the winning side for the Yeshiva basketeers. A series of snappy plays by Frankie Shapiro and Tsvi Brown enabled the "All Stars" to run up a score of 9-3 in the first half. Lou Engelberg, ancient flash of '31, upheld the spirit of the days of yore by the practice of that good old Darwinian theory, "Every man for himself," but after a few unsuccessful "pops", Lou decided to stay with the boys, and so, he condescended by passing the ball.

The third quarter saw a change of spirit on the part of the Varsity. Inspired perhaps, by a few well chosen remarks by Captain Hy Aronoff during the rest period, the boys reeled off a clean basket a few seconds after the the beginning of the second half. Goal followed goal in rapid succession as Muss and Eisenberg began to sink them from all parts of the court, and as the quarter ended, the count was 16-11 in favor of the Blue and White.

The final period ushered in a change of pace on the part of the "All Stars". Lou (Flash??) Engelberg, attempting to reenact the glories of '30 and '31, began to drive, push and shove through his opponents' defense,—but somehow his shots always managed to find their mark in the enemies' hands. And so the hoary one had to yield to youth.

During the last four minutes of play, the "All Stars" put up a valiant but futile last stand against the Yeshiva Jugernaut, and when the final whistle blew, the scoreboard read: Yeshiva, 21; "All Stars", 16. Feuerstein also played. For whom? Well, I really don't know. You see, it's a matter of interpretation.

SENIORS' RALLY NIPS FRESHMEN

The seniors, after a spectacular performance, subjected the freshmen to an 18-11 lacing in their frantic effort to gain their share of first place in the intra-mural basketball series.

Using their first stringers sparingly and playing a cautious game, the men of '36 butted out 18 points as the freshmen continuously threatened to score. Ted Adams and "Irving" Zolt, the high scorers for the upper classmen, kept their team inspired with their spectacular playing.

Seniors Take Lead

Early in the first half the seniors emerged into the lead when Dlugazch sank the first basket as the freshmen defenses were swept aside by the snappy playing of Feurstein, Kaufman and Marine. Willie Cohn, high scorer for the freshmen, slashing through the upper classmen, almost tied the score with his hurried passes and sensational field goals. Apparently aroused by the beating they took during the first part of the game, the Frosh broke into the scoring column midway of the third quarter but an ill advised defense left the seniors in the lead.

In a vain attempt to overcome this lead in the last quarter, the yearlings attempted several shots at the basket, completing only two. The game ended just after Mike Hurewitz scored in favor of the seniors on a pass from Bill Kaufman.

CHESSMEN LOSE MATCH WITH NYU

The Yeshiva College chess team was swamped by a powerful New York University quartet at the N. Y. U. chess headquarters to the score of 3½ to ½.

Morris Poupko '36, president of the chess club, played white in good style at the second board, and after a drawn out middle game began to check and double-check his opponent, Friedman, until he saw he could get nowhere by checking and grimacing. He finally decided to share the point with Friedman, and give Yeshiva its only tally.

Lawrence Charney '38, and Milton Shapiro '39, got into opening complications and it was not long before they both had to resign to Henkin and Koenigsberg, respectively.

Silver Forfeits

George Silver '37, captain of the chess team, had to take a chemistry exam and forfeited his game to Chernowitz.

At present, the Yeshiva chess team is getting ready for its next battle against Columbia University, the date of which has not been decided as yet.

A motion to award the Alumni Medal for 1935 was defeated. In the presentation of the medal in 1934, the administration acted contrary to specific provisions of the Alumni Association's constitution despite the Alumni committee's strenuous objection to such action. Because of this, the Alumni executive voted not to present the medal in 1935 and so informed the administration.

The Alumni voted to create a permanent Committee on Curriculum as proposed by David W. Petergorsky '35.

The administration has seen fit to act in harmony with the alumni's sentiment for the new Sociology Department and opposing the proposed School of Business.

Mr. Engelberg brought before the alumni a request by Dr. Revel that the association use its money for the purpose of endowing lectureships in the college. The alumni were also informed that a chair in Jewish philosophy has been endowed for this year, and that the administration is trying to arrange for Dr. Wolfson to deliver the lectures.

Mr. Petergorsky, in the name of a large number of alumni, voiced a vigorous protest against having Dr. Wolfson deliver lectures in Jewish philosophy at Yeshiva College, because of his reputation as an outspoken opponent of orthodoxy and a disbeliever in divine revelation.

In the most heated and forceful address of the afternoon, Feuerstein denounced the economic arguments for war as being entirely without justification. "There's no such thing as glory in war. All we see are mangled limbs, blood, and grim death. By kidding ourselves, we are only killing ourselves," he emphasized, striking out strongly against the jingoistic philosophies of glory and patriotism.

David W. Petergorsky '35, representing the S.O.Y., said that in seeking peace "we should denounce war as making the world safe for plutocracy."

As representative of the Administration, Dr. Shelley R. Safir, Dean of Yeshiva College, pointed out that "a new philosophy is pervading the campus today", differing vitally with the attitude prevalent in the various colleges during his career as a student.

Rabbi Mirsky, speaking for the Faculty of the Teachers Institute, pleaded for the cessation of all violence, and urged the es-

Administration Proposes 2 New Faculty Members

Two new additions to the faculty of Yeshiva College have been made, the administration revealed today. They are Dr. David Bidney, instructor of philosophy, and Dr. Samuel Belkin, who will teach in the Ancient Languages Department.

Dr. Bidney, who obtained his degree at Yale University and has lectured at the University of Toronto, will assume his new position here next term. Dr. Belkin, who received his doctor's degree at Brown University and is also a former Yeshiva student, is to instruct a class in Greek and Hellenic Literature. Up to the present, he has been doing research work.

Although Dr. Belkin's appointment was for this semester, semi-official reports from administration circles had offered grounds to believe that he would not actually begin his lectureship until next term, due to a petition of the Greek class.

The latter filed vigorous objections with the administration against the induction of a new instructor at this time, maintaining that the present instructor should continue to the end of the semester because of the late date.

They cited the fact that the induction of Dr. Belkin this semester will constitute the third instructor the class has had in the last month.

the French and Indian War). A hushed murmur went about the room as this Grand Old Man of the Mizrachi paid keen attention to the proceedings with no evident display of the senility one would be likely to expect in a man of such venerable age.

Dr. Churgin, Dean of Teachers' Institute, emphasized the need for unification of the efforts between those who work intellectually and those who work materially for Eretz Yisroel.

"Hapoel Hamizrachi is following the principles of the Prophets, Ezra and Nehemiah, who built Palestine and the Jewish nation according to our present concepts and ideology, he declared.

The concluding speaker of the evening was Rabbi M. Wohlberg, Yeshiva graduate, and delegate of Hapoel Hamizrachi to the recent Zionist Congress, who discussed briefly the history of labor as regards the part it plays in present day Palestine.

"Until recently traditional Judaism remained aloof of the Zionist movement. Not until Mizrachi, through propaganda, agitation and organization, did Palestine become a living problem for Orthodox Jewry. "The Mizrachi slogan is Torah, as the aim, and Avodah, as the method," he stated.
