670 Jewish Encyclopedia 1906 online ¶b (Schmid, Anton von; Christian publisher of Hebrew books; born at Zwettl, Lower Austria, Jan. 23, 1765; died at Vienna June 27, 1855. In 1785 he entered as an apprentice to the court printer Kurzbeck whose Hebrew types and business he eventually bought. He petitioned Emperor Francis II to obtain permission to become a printer and was granted permission on the condition that he supply the court with a copy of every book he printed.
He reprinted the books of Wolf Heidenheim, and, as he became prosperous, he enlarged his establishment to include Arabic, Persian, and Syriac books. His most significant Hebrew works were the Bible with German translation, the Talmud, the Hebrew periodical Bikkure ha-Ittim, the works of Maimonides and Judah Löb ben-Zeeb, and Jewish prayer books and catechisms.

Yaakov David Kalish (ha-sheni) (Rabi Yaakov David Kalish = רבי יעקב דוד קליש (1906-1942) was the Admor of Amshino before the Holocaust. Born in Ostrovah, he became rabbi of Z'yrardov and in 1936, after the death of his father, he was also appointed rabbi of Amshinov. At the outbreak of World War II, he hid for two years in Warsaw but contracted typhus and died. He is buried next to his father, Yosef, and grandfather, Menahem Kalish. His wife and children subsequently perished in the Holocaust. He was survived by a brother, Yitschak, who established the Amshinov dynasty in the U.S. Another branch of the family established itself in Jerusalem.)

Conclusions—What’s changed

1) RDA has caused us to relearn some of our most basic tasks.
2) More details required = more work, more research, more time-consuming.
3) Online resources help us formulate names.
4) We rely more on the cataloging community and new tools for information.
5) RDA is international and future-oriented.
