The conference concerned itself with various problems confronting students at present. The general theme of the conference was "Students in a Changing World" and was discussed by various commissions which dealt with specialised aspects of examinations.

Both Rihner and Gabriel participated actively in the work of the conference. Rihner was a member of the commission on student-faculty relations and Gabriel member of the student newspaper commission.

Other commissions at the conference discussed honor systems, student government, cooperation, and NSFA re-organization.

Two commissions considered national and international problems, and two commissions dealt with the relations between men and women in society.

Following public hearings at which commission resolutions were discussed, it was decided to go ahead with the conference as was planned. All student representatives were chosen at the conference and will serve until next year's regional conference.

A heavily discussed resolution was passed by the conference which the N.S.P.A. was to discuss.

ewer Air And Sunshine Alluring, Classes Are Held On The Roof

BY A. LEIB LIPSHITZ

The blossoms are out, the gentle breeze blows, and the students are enjoying the outdoors.

The sun is shining, the birds are singing, and the atmosphere is lively. It is a perfect day to be outside and enjoy the beauty of nature.

The students are taking advantage of the pleasant weather and spending their time outdoors.

The classes are being held on the roof of the building.

The building is located in a quiet area, away from the hustle and bustle of the city. The roof is spacious and provides a comfortable space for the students to learn.

The students are sitting under the sun, taking notes, and discussing the topics of the day.

The professors are leading the classes with enthusiasm and keeping the students engaged.

The outdoor classes provide a change of scenery and a refreshing break from the classroom.

The students are happy to be outside and appreciate the opportunity to learn in a more relaxed and enjoyable environment.

The outdoor classes are a great way to learn and a welcome change from the usual classroom setting.

The students look forward to spending more time outdoors and enjoying the beautiful weather.

The outdoor classes are a testament to the Yeshiva College's commitment to providing a rich and diverse educational experience for its students.
The Way To Peace

As the students of the American colleges prepare to demonstrate, for the fourth time, their solidarity in the cause of peace, war is no longer a hypothetical spectre whose horrors require imaginative projection. It is a grim actu-

Within the range of the Spanish conflict appears to be a complete neglect of all the major international events. We are beginning to speculate upon the fates of the future war, there is a concrete example of them before us.

We are able to see the pernicious influences promoting war in our action. Our press, including that of certain religious groups, is aiding the insidious propaganda of parties having the productive role of the war. The Spanish war is indeed an experiment in the construc-

If the world is to come into peace with America, is a question to be decided by social rather than national orientation.

What this implies for us is that the fact that the future war will be fought for peace can be altered by the decisions made in the present.

Heidelberg—Now Gottingen

American universities and colleges are today more than ever before, it seems to the irretrievable loss of every shred of self-respect (the cause) that they have ever had. They have been attacked by their despicable action on the Goettingen celebrations this summer.

America, as a result of seven acceptations already sent, and a number of others to follow, will send the largest delegation of all to the 200th anniversary celebrations of Goettingen University, to be held this summer, as it did last June to Heidelberg's 500th anniversary, which was converted by the Nazis into a propagandistic demonstration for National Socialist ideals.

Ironically enough, both celebrations take place on the anniversary of the historic blood purge of June 30, 1930.

By declaring themselves in sympathy with that for which Goettingen stands, these colleges have forfeited every right to the respect of American students.

They have signified their intention of join-

I believe it proper at this time to call the attention of your readers to the fact that the present system of universal conscription is a gross violation of the Constitution of the United States, and that it is being fraudulently urged by the government.

This is a clear indication of the fact that the government is lying to the people. Having been purged of a faculty of independent thought, the university becomes a mere anachronistic instrument of war, designed to furnish the government with the latest in scientific military advancement.

Under these circumstances, other American colleges are not permitted to send the seven leaders to contaminate them. They must make it clear, in no uncertain terms, that they will have no part in the blood- purge an-

As for the seven who have accepted the Goettingen invitation, they have touched pitch, and are accordingly defiled.

For some time past, there has been a steady increase in the number of letters received at this office from our subscribers, expressing dissatisfaction with the present system of universal conscription.

The main objection is the objection of the so-called "Peace" movement, which is based on the belief that war is not the solution to any of the world's problems.

Moreover, this movement is not content with attacking the present system of conscription, but seeks to annihilate it entirely.

In conclusion, I must say that we stand ready to answer any questions that may be raised about our policy in this matter, and we look forward to hearing from you soon.

Yours truly,

PLAY BALL

Yesterday's opening of the baseball season was \( \text{a healthy reminder of college sports for the moment, and discussing America's favorite pastime. Those who attended the Washington game at the Yankee stadium were greeted with an impressive sight. The game was particularly so, from behind the players' dugout. The introductory proceedings began with the band marching around the field in full regalia, followed by the Yankee star players. The Yankees then assembled around home plate where they were presented with World Series championship rings.}

When a professor gets down-right impatient, you can usually tell he has exhausted all his resources. And when this situation arises, Dr. W. D. Funkhauser, professor of sociology, must come to the rescue. Funkhauser is known for his patience and almost superhuman calmness. When the students line up to take his course in sociology, he always finds a way to keep them engaged. Funkhauser is a master of the art of teaching, and his classes are always full of interesting and thought-provoking discussions. When a student asks a question, Funkhauser patiently answers, encouraging the student to think critically and independently. His approach is so effective that students often leave his class feeling inspired and motivated. Funkhauser's dedication to his students is truly remarkable, and his teaching style is a testament to his passion for education.
