The Commentator

On The Sidelines

By charles Weinstock

In the latest episode of the campus soap opera, the

Mendel and Chasids

in America. A typical example of Yeshiva's line with Orthodox and Modernist Jews. The battle lines are drawn and everyone is looking for each other's victories and weaknesses. The stakes are high and the consequences of a defeat could be severe.

Yet, unfortunately, the Unanswerable Question in Jewish life today is not whether the peace process will succeed or fail, but whether the peace process will lead to peace or further division. The answer to this question is not clear, but the stakes are high.

Abelev, Aaron—brought in from Boston in his freshman year and has been a star since. Learning to articulate the Must absolutely love him," so he turned his attention to the subject of geography—

Tunisia. "The Most Jewish

about Math or Physics ask Shelly?

Aikin, Abraham—came to Y. C.

crop of mustache weeds. Abe, the quiet, intelligent type, Averbuch, Leo—A.A. Grad of the first order leads the new order of the Debating Society.

Realizing that he possesses more power, he talked himself into a staunch Zionist. In connection with his playing activities, this long, jovial senior takes a good game of tennis—with both hands.

Bell, Morris —... he is the first Senior to leave school, as his hometown is "Babylon." One of the few nice-looking seniors, dand ing the role of the elodie of Mas ood as its Co-Manager.

Morris was a critic for copying the news from the "The Gentleman"—now we know for whom the bell tolls.

Blass, Jerome —... was in line for the secretariat of Student Council. He was the first penchant in hand. Here's the only guy who ever loaned me his raincoat. Jerome, Yeshiva student, has time for only two things: Ema Tov and and traveling to and from White Plains.

Bronnblech, Norman — the Arifon student who knows his stuff. Conscientious and brilliant, Nochum prepared for his College Admissions to S. O. Y. at Tel Yeshiva in Lithuuania. If anyone appreciates this man, he is the boy who is in votating for the initiation of the Sicha Committee.

Cohen, Arthur — doesn't live here anymore. This lad

Malden picked up his scientific knowledge and excelled out to

Medicine Medical School in December.

Ariel left behind two memories: his honors work in Chemistry and the editorialship of The Maimon.

Cohen, Stanley — claims the honor of being the human dictation of Joel the "Jewish light" of class—the unoffending chain of cigarettes dangle from his parted lips. When you see him thinking — please make no disturbances—he's psychosynching himself...

Letter Writing Campaign

The last, and perhaps passage of the Jewish

Commonwealth Resolution have been sent to the House, Senate and

Affairs.

Yeshiva Zionists in cooperation with the Dov Yovel chapter of The Mapa Misraim also have distributed leaflets to outdoors encouraging them to write. The leaflets, containing suggested texts, have been sent to the editors

Chains Berlin and Jewish

Vodavith, the Hilul, Menorah, and Harry organized a mailing of religious and political affairs, the part of the Jewish institutions throughout the country.

A-One Track Approach

One cannot look himself in a stereotyped mirror of the world and run between a one-track thinking. Our teachers, our student, our students in general must relay the necessity for recognizing what you are and where you are. And when that understanding has been approached, one has truly achieved a liberal education and has a basis toward evaluating all types of the universe in their universal perspective.

If it appears queer to hear a spokesman of the student body and supercilious, then he is only doing so because he is encountering the perfectionist who demands everything through a filter colored with "what has this got to do with the Jewish world?"
