New Television Purchased for Tangerine Lounge

By Pan A. sonic

A new 8" black and white television has been purchased for the Student Council Tangerine Lounge and will be in place by the beginning of the spring semester. The $50 television set will be donated to the SCWSC and will be located in the SCWSC Student Council Lounge for the spring semester. The $50 television set will be located in the Student Council Lounge for the spring semester.

Anette Work, SCWSC '98, who has been working on the Student Council Tangerine Lounge project, said that the new television set will be a welcome addition to the lounge. "The current television set is quite outdated and does not provide enough seating for all the students who want to use the lounge," she said. "This new television set will provide a more comfortable and enjoyable experience for everyone who comes to the lounge."
Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

As a result, I have been putting off my engagement for some time now. My chasunah has proposed three times already and as much as I would like to agree to marry him, under the current condition I have no choice but to refuse. At first my chasunah was very understanding of the fact that I can not get engaged until my engagement dancing plans are worked out. After three proposals, however, his patience is wearing out. Every time he proposes, the ring he offers me has one fewer karat. Needless to say, this is a very serious matter. The new Impromptu Engagement Dancing rules are ruining what is supposed to be the happiest period of my college career. It therefore must be revised; my future is at stake.

Sincerely,

Kallah in Waiting

Editorials

The Acronym has decided that there is no point in criticizing SCW any more. The Editorial board has come to the realization that no one reads a word we write or listens to our calls for action. As a result, we are on strike. That means no more issues of The Acronym ever.

Since you're still reading this, there must be some people that read The Acronym. Therefore, we've reconsidered.

The Acronym

Located on a small corner on 34th Street near Simpsons and an empty lot. You may just need a microscope to see the campus of St. WSC. Published annually by SCWSC. Paid for by SCWSC. Approved by SCWSC. SCWSC must be held accountable for the contents of this newspaper, which is sponsored by SCWSC.

Governing Board

R. F.
Milbeck Chick

A. S.
Shadchan

G. B.
Correspondent Commentator

D. H.
Page Maker

J. S.
Caf Critic

S. L.
SCW Archivist

D. P.
Letter Editor

L. M.
My Two Cents

C. Y.
Lady Mac Attack

Associate Editors

L. I.
R.
S. F.

Mazal Tov to the Following Recently Engaged Students:

Nightowl@yahoo.edu

to

Insomniac@yahoo.edu

Websurfer@yahoo.edu
to

Webcrawler@yahoo.edu

I just check my mail@yahoo.edu
to

I'm not addicted@yahoo.edu
SCW Hires Firm to Assess Student Opinion

By Survey Says

In an attempt to assess student opinion of SCW, the Office of Student Services and the Office of the Dean of Students have hired the firm of Aultz the firm to determine who students choose to attend SCW and if they are happy with their educational experience receiving here.

Students were asked to complete a detailed survey of their personal history, religious backgrounds, the academics at SCW and the reasons they chose to attend the 45th best school in the nation. In order to ensure that full student participation, completion of the survey will become a requirement for graduation.

The following are sample questions from the survey recently distributed by the firm:

Personal History
1. At what age were you toilet trained?
2. At what age was every member of your high school class toilet trained?
3. Did your toilet training experience impact your decision to attend SCW or was it all a result of your brief experience?

Religious Background
1. What was the religious affiliation of your parent's third cousin twice removed?
2. Did that impact your decision to attend SCW or was it all a result of your brief experience?
3. Academics at SCW
   a. Do you feel that you are learning anything in this institution?
   b. Did the learning impact your decision to attend SCW or was it all a result of your brief experience?

Vital Information
Are you a: Please make the choice which best describes you:
A. Nudist
B. Masochist
C. Narcissist

Your Decision to Attend SCW
1. Please list all of your acquaintances and the reasons why or why not they decided for or against attending SCW.
2. Did your acquaintances impact your decision to attend SCW or was it all a result of your brief experience?
3. Why are you here?

The Office of Student Services will be offering a Time Management Workshop to discuss "Balancing More Than Three Dates on the Same Night."
The workshop will feature special guest speaker Rabbi Dr. Norman Lamm and will be open to all SCW and YC students.

Stay tuned for further details.

YC Deans Go Into Shock

By Anonymous Staff

A Hatfields emergency rescue unit was summoned to YC last week after two YC deans lost consciousness. It seems that the deans fainted from surprise after reading the newly issued edition of YC's 'Communicator' newspaper and discovering that there was no cover article that attacked their office in the entire issue.

The deans were taken to a nearby hospital and treated for extreme shock and received that skin.

Pick up your Purim gift now!

To receive your STERN COLLEGE FOR WOMEN THERMAL UNDERWEAR, please see The Office of Student Services.
Ha’Ish Nikneh

By Shlo Moshe

Jewish people and left conversations, the information about students and Rabbi Lamm has sparked debates regarding the dating situation in the Yeshiva world. Dr. Lamm, who also addresses the subject of dating, is one of the few who has addressed the student population in this manner. It is a very personal discussion, as the subject has never been addressed in YC circles.

A select group of YC and YC students, all close friends and contemporaries of the author of this article, were polled on their dating experience, as the experiences of these eight people stretch from the general dating experience of the entire student body.

Some students found certain remarks that President Lamm made to be controversial. "I don’t understand what Rav Lamm means by telling his girls that they need to evince their husbands. I am in my car for three hours a day trying to figure out our parking permit," said a YC junior who spoke on condition of anonymity because he did not wish his name to be attached to a remark that would certainly be misconstrued and taken out of context.

Many YC students reacted with surprise to Rabbi Lamm’s comments that a person is allowed to date multiple people at the same time. "That’s ridiculous. Stringing four or five girls around is not as easy as it’s made out to be, but that’s why we are here," said a Stern sophomore who spoke anonymously so as not to ruin his chances of a good shidduch. "But it has turned out to be a lot of fun. I used to only meet three girls a month, but now I meet so many girls a week that I don’t have time to date anymore."

A select number of students, before that stack of Mishnah study, boy. He looks me in the eye--"Remember, you meet so many guys a week, but at least you know where the important places in the city are."

The fire hazard is very much real. But that story is too far fetched. I mean, picking my bride through a beauty contest? As if!

Student Notebook

By Tal Midah

School’s over for the day, the Yeshiva Store opens at 3:30, Facilities Damagement at 5:02, and the only van with room is at 10:00.

We decide to take a cab, all the eligible guys will be taken by then.

Okay, I haven’t got time to eat. I’ll show now, while my roommate chooses my outfit for the evening. I finish showering and start on my makeup. Everything is going wrong. The eyeliner smudged and my lipstick is running. I don’t have time to eat. I’ll bath in the bathroom?

We decide to take a cab, all the eligible boys will be taken by then.

Okay, on the way. The music section, gongly fingering three of the latest CDs. Next to me is that really hot boy from before. He looks at me across the Shlomo Carlebach tape. He smiles, then walks away. Thank you, my roommate can answer. She may be color-blind, but at least she knows where the important places in the city are.

We made it, YU at last. It’s 7:00--time to make our entrance into Belfer Hall. We walk in. What’s this? No one is waiting.

We have to do something. It’s fortunate I am not alone, or what would I do? My roommate thinks fast. She asks the first guy she sees where the Gemara section is.

He points across the room. Good thinking.
Tuna Light a Hoax

By Phyrreghr Lover

Men's history broke out in the SCW cafeteria last Wednesday night when it was discovered by a member of the Food Service Committee that the tuna salad was labeled “Tuna Light” in a way different from the fish labeled “Tuna.” The committee member, who went undercover in an attempt to bust the suspected tuna fraud, was posing as a cleaning person when he noticed a food service worker scooping “Tuna” from a large vat and putting it in small bowls. She then watched as the made-up employee stack little orange “Tuna” labels on some of the bowls, and little orange “Tuna Light” labels on others.

The employer, when approached, did not seem to actually speak English and, therefore, could not be faulted for his perpetration.

“Know all along,” said a certain SCW Senior. “I had been eating Tuna Light sandwiches every day for for my Sophomore year, and after a couple of months I noticed I had gained 26 pounds. I suspected something fishy...”

The student, unfortunately, did not finish her sentence due to the fit of wild laughter that followed her unintended pun.

It seems that this problem went unrecognized for so long due to the fact that no student who regularly eats the “Tuna Light” would ever be caught purchasing the plain “Tuna,” and no “Tuna” sisters cared enough about what they ate every “Tuna Light.” Recently, however, a desperate student bought the regular “Tuna” instead of her usual “Tuna Light,” swearing to herself that she would do an extra hour on the treadmill at the women-only gym she belongs to. After trying the “Tuna,” and regaining it was no different from the “Tuna Light,” the student burst into tears and was placated only when Hatzolah arrived to pump her stomach.

20 Years From Now in The Acronym

By Tarot Card

The future of SCW will be both eventful and exciting. Here’s a look at what will be going on...

After completing structural repairs, in the spring of 2017, Schottenstein Residence Hall will be open for the fall semester of that year. Dean Tani Greenberg will encourage students to apply to live in the single-occupancy dorms, saying, “I realize that living with 10 of your closest friends in a room made for three or four people at most may be more conducive to group studying, but some students must sacrifice the campus experience for one that is more college-like.”

The women’s career program is in its third year, will undergo changes for its annual convention by selling tickets to all SCW students.

The first international conference on “How To Make Tuna for Both of Your Husbands” will address the concerns of women who encourage their husbands in their dual philosophies, but not, obviously, between boyfriends.

The Office of Placement and Career Services will begin offering dating services in addition to career services. According to the director of the office, Simcha Sasson, “We would be remiss if we did not recognize that part of the students’ success in life is finding a suitable mate. We are geared to serve the whole student, not just trying to fulfill all of their needs.”

Madam B. Raham, Rabbi Shidduch, approved of this decision saying, “This is just another example of this institution trying to fulfill its goal of integrating Torah and the world.”

Director of Student Service: Emily B. Shapiro will lead a food service workshop titled, “Avoiding Your Identity When Someone Has Your Name.” The workshop will be held in Room 518 by approval of SCWSC and the calendar committee.

Emily J. Shapiro, Dean of the Epstein Kaufard Department of Judaic Studies, will announce the inception of a new Gena program called the Bark Bet Midrash Program. Chairman for the program will take place in the recently renovated Hebrew’s place.

A SCWSC/CWPC/SSB/SSBS/SSBS/SSBS Shabbaton co-sponsored by the Israel club, Feminists, Advocacy Council for the Inclusion of Men, Environmental Club, E-mail Anonymous, and UN Model Arms Pro- liferation Council, will attract 100 participants, including the waiters, waitresses, interns, rabbi’s wife, and others. In addition, a new study will be held to SCW every Shabbat.

YUNMUN XXVII will be held at the Waldorf Astoria in an attempt by Admissions to boost undergraduate enrollment. The event will attract over 500 high school students from the United States and Canada and will be run by a staff of 350 SCW and YC students.

Food Services will raise the rate of the meal plan from $2,000 to $3,000 a semester. The change will be in response to student complaints that they pay out of money after two weeks of school. The new hours for the International Cafe in Dinkins Auditorium will be Monday and Tuesday from 11:45 p.m.-2:00 p.m.

For the first time, wrestling and bowling will be offered as options to fulfill the gym requirement.

The Alumni Association will donate four new Windows 2015-equipped computers to the SCW computer lab, completing the final stages of an upgrade. The last computer overhaul will have been done at January of 1997. However, the E-mail server will not be replaced until an uncertain date. E-mail users have several minutes to send and receive messages, to log-in and log-out.

A Club Fair will be held for new students arriving in the spring semester. Only five students will attend because sign-up sheets for the event will be torn down by Burns Security Guards.

The Biokale Hall elevators will still have temporary certificates.
The SCWSC Shabbat Enhancement Committee is proud to announce their newest incentive for staying at SCW for Shabbat.

Five dollars will be awarded to your caf card for each Shabbat spent on campus. For every third Shabbat spent at SCW, students will be entered into a raffle to win a date with the Shabbat Rabbi.

Please remember to sign up by Wednesday in the caf.
Opinion

YC Student Demands Women's Tefilah Group for Men of Washington Heights

By Green Blueberg

Yes, it's true. I am a YC student attempting to form a women's Tefilah group for the men of Washington Heights. Why do I pursue such a "Kosher" and sexually impossible goal? The reasons are numerous, but first let me tell you about myself (maybe you already know someone for me?).

I am not just any sort of feminist wanna-be. In fact, I'm really from the HASSC. I live in Miami, I wear a hat and a black coat. I have never heard of the macarena, I chose Shalavim over Gush, back, I was even rejected from Ben Yisroel and Tara Mushke for being too brama.

It is precisely my frumkeit which has championed me to promote women's Tefilah groups for men. How can we, who consider ourselves Orthodox Jews, subscribe to an allegedly moral system that allows 50% of the world population (and 100% of the 6 p.m. downtown van). As a committed Jew, I cannot think of a detail ear to this injustice. What will I respond when my child asks, "Abba, bimma, where were you?" We meyn are sick and tired of being relegated to the way.

Unlike some of my peers, this feeling of inadequacy has not led me to publicly demand all members of the movement. Rather, I have chosen a constructive inclusive mode of dealing with this injustice by proposing a women's Tefilah group for men on the YC campus.

Consider if you will, the analogy of an old man and a carob tree. The old man was buried by the macaroni tendency to indulge in meaty foods. He felt violated by this outright assertion of domination over the animal kingdom. Consequently, he planted a carob tree instead to provide herbarious with an alternative to meat. Did this not for his own benefit, but for the benefit of generations to come.

Similarly, I demand the establishment of a women's Tefilah group, not for myself and Fernandez, but for our sons. The is my carob tree, mayn, empower yourself. If there is a SOY will, there is a vegetarian. I mean halachik way.

Let us now join together as way, "Achotami, Kol Ben Yisroel..."

---

A Headline Completely Unrelated to Ha'Ish Nikneh

Continued from page 4

likely the least of all the dangers SCW students face when they ride the elevators. Jeffrey Voel, director of Facilities Management, was asked to comment on these student concerns. "I'm sick of questions about the elevators," Voel stated. "Find something else to write about in your paper." No University official has even attempted to give a rational explanation for the rules regulating dancing in the Blue Oyster lounge.

These new regulations have definitely affected engagements. Without the sign in the elevator and the impromptu dancing as goals to aspire to, many seniors have lost the all-encompassing desire to get engaged.

A great complaint of SCW students in the active dating scene is the inequity of SCW students in planning dates. "I know everyone at the Broadway party," said a SCW Freshmen who spoke up for a date, "It's very embarrassing to walk in a restaurant and have the waiter recognize you.

On the subject of inequity, the YC Senior who also would not attach his name to this comment stated, "Women need to dress differently from each other. She tells me she has shoulder-length brown hair and is wearing a denim shirt and a black skirt. The elevator opens and 12 girls who fit that description walk into the lobby."

Another source of discomfort in the dating scene is the pre-date phone call. "How am I supposed to make conversation with a girl when I don't know what she looks like," asked a YC Sophomore.

A SCW Sophomore commented, "I love when the guy asks me what school I went to in Israel. As if that wasn't the first question he asked the shadchan."

Finally, Dance Hall and CafConversations also sparked a lot of discussion on the dating pressure at SCW. "Sometimes I feel I have a little pressure to be going out on Thursday night," said a SCW Junior who would not give her name as she does not want to receive prank phone calls. "But then I remember that YU guys are not half as good looking as Chandler, Ross or Dr. Carter and I feel much better."

"I'm more concerned with the pressure in my shower." said a YC Freshman.

YU has definitely spawned many Shadchans. The upcoming Parent's Uganda and the addition of the Post-Parent Extravaganza Concert (an attempt to top the social scene of the year, the Hamshik Concert) will surely raise the YC/SCW intermarriage rate to 99%.

---

Student Services to be Featured on "Murphy Braun" Episode

By Diane English

Since Mrs. Zelda Braun's secretary, Diane Carter, fell off a ladder to explore the possibilities of being an executive assistant to Murphy, the Office of Student Services, has seemed more like the set of a sitcom than an office. "We've been working so hard to improve our service for the past few weeks," Mrs. Braun told staff. "This situation only makes things more difficult, but I'd do anything to make sure that the show was a success, no matter what it means to the students." Murphy Braun will play Murphy Braun, a newly-appointed Assistant Dean for Students. Her cast of short-tempered characters is sure to be as fun as the first episode, which received the highest rating in all of broadcasting last year.

The upcoming Purim Extravaganza Concert, featuring a full cast of student performers, is scheduled for March 24. A YC Freshman said, "I heard that there is a huge crowd expected to attend the concert." The SCW alumna turned Executive Director of the Orange Lounge will be on hand to ensure the success of the event.

---

The Commentator is looking for new writers.

Below is a list of guidelines to follow when writing a story:

1. Find a story to write about.
2. Blow it out of proportion.
3. Blow it even more out of proportion.
4. Exaggerate the details.
5. Speculate.
7. Put it on the front page in bold with a huge question mark.

$22 million will be awarded for each submission received.

In addition, The Commie is offering $50 to anyone who will read the paper.
Premiering Next Week: Burn's Wrestling Federation Main Event

By Xena Warrior Princess

SCW's own Blue Oyster Lounge will be host to the BWF (Burn's Wrestling Federation) Main Event next Saturday night. The world renowned BD-1 will be facing the unknown Bankdale Club Lieutenant. The two wrestlers have been feuding since BD-1 wanted to allow a 158 lb junior student to ride the van on the night of the Chanukah concert when van transportation for the whole evening was booked at 4:58 p.m. The lieutenant refused to allow the extra passenger. While the dispute began over van transportation, it quickly escalated into a heated discussion of their mothers' physical appearance.

SCW senior Novak Peh witnessed the entire event. "At first it was just an issue of whose mother weighed more, but then BD-1 called the lieutenant 'a fat' son of a , and then all hell broke loose," said Peh. "The lieutenant responded by saying, 'you fat', your mother never should have a , had you.'"

Shana Better, SCW '98, also witnessed the event. "This was so traumatic," said Better. "I haven't heard such language since before I went to Israel. I've been brought down six miltrogog. My Israel Rabbin were right when they warned me about taking the van." Better commented that she plans to use the money she hopes to win from betting on the fight to pay for a trip to Israel so she can recharge her batteries.

When the Burns' wrestlers ran out of creative uses of the English and Spanish languages, they moved on to a more physical form of communication. BD-2, who witnessed the entire event, quickly booked the two fighters for a BWF wrestling match.

Better's will be taking bets until Thursday night at 1 a.m.

Fitness Flash

Brain Over Brawn

By Shannon Richards

It's a well-known fact that 90% of your body is made up of water. But did you know that by making one small change in your diet you can actually help your brain? The brain is made up of mostly water and is very sensitive to the quality and quantity of water we drink.

"The brain functions best when it is hydrated," said nutritionist Dr. J. Smith. "Drinking water can help improve cognitive function, increase alertness, and even reduce the risk of developing certain diseases, such as stroke.

The Acronym
245 Lexington Avenue
New York, New York
10016

Approved By
SCW Student Council